2023 GARRISON AG SHOW WELCOME

The Garrison FFA Chapter is ready to bring on our 29th annual McLean County Ag Show. It’s an exciting way to get the community together and a great way to jump start the new year. At the show this year we will be featuring many exhibitors, old and new. The Ag Show will be held on February 8, 2023 in the Roy Shei Gymnasium of the Garrison High School. Along with all the great exhibitors, join us for many door prizes, and cookies and coffee provided by our good friends at Farm Credit Services. From 11:00-1:00, there will be a free will donation lunch sponsored by TruCommunity Bank. The Garrison FFA Labor Auction will take place during the Ag show at 1 pm on the stage. Throughout the day, make sure to attend the speakers. WDAY Ag Director, Bridgette Readel will speak at 10 am on the topic of “Cyber Security on the Farm.” Shana Forster, director of NDSU North Central Research Extension Center, will speak at 1:30 pm about “Land Grant History and why it is still valuable today.” The Ag Show will be from 9:00 am until 3:00 pm. Along with the Garrison FFA Alumni, our Garrison FFA Chapter is excited for another great Ag Show, and are looking forward to seeing all of you there!

Garrison FFA Labor Auction

When: February 8, 2023
Where: McLean County Ag Show
Time: 1:00 pm

FFA members will be auctioned to the highest bidder to work a 4 hour time block at a later date (prior to 5/1) agreed upon by the buyer and member.

All proceeds go to leadership scholarships!

Items to avoid when composting

- Black walnut tree leaves or twigs: Leaves or twigs from black walnut release substances that might prove harmful to plants.
- Coal or charcoal ash: Coal or ash from charcoal, such as the ash that builds up in the bottom of charcoal grills, may contain substances that are harmful to plants.
- Dairy products: When added to compost piles, dairy products, including butter, milk, sour cream, yogurt and eggs, can be malodorous and may attract pests, including rodents and flies.
- Diseased or insect-ridden plants: The diseases and insects that plague plants may survive being transferred to compost piles. When the compost is ultimately distributed, these diseases and insects might then plague other plants.
- Fats, grease, lard, or oils: Fats, grease, lard or oils also may attract rodents and flies, and that might be due to the unpleasant odors such substances can produce when added to compost piles.
- Meat or fish bones and scraps: Like fats, grease, lard or oils, scraps from meat and fish and fish bones can smell unpleasant, potentially attracting rodents and flies.
- Pet waste: Pet waste, including soiled cat litter, may contain parasites, bacteria, germs, pathogens, and viruses that can be harmful.
- Grass trimmings treated with chemical pesticides: Trimmings from grass that was treated with chemical pesticides can negate the effects of composting by killing beneficial organisms produced within compost piles or bins.

My SAE project is my Co-op experience at JB repair. Every school day I go in for a couple hours and I help out around the shop. I typically do oil changes and change tires but I also do other things that I am told to do. I really enjoy it. I learn new things every day, and it will help me in the future so I can perform repairs on my own vehicles.

KEYNOTE SPEAKERS

Bridgette Readel

Bridgette Readel, farm kid extraordinaire, NDSU grad, passionate agronomist is from Wishek ND and now lives in Hunter. She is a very active FFA alumni and past state officer. Bridgette and her husband Randy, are both heavily involved in ag where he is a Dairyland Seed rep and she is semi-retired from a 25 year career with Corteva Agriscience. They are parents of two adult children who are mostly off the payroll. Although she graduated as a high school ag teacher, Bridgette is now busy teaching adults now regarding production agriculture and truly enjoys sharing the bright and positive message of ag in North Dakota. Bridgette is the owner of Lilac Lane Media, partner in the AgMafia and the Ag Director for WDAY radio/Flag Family Media. Bridgette will be discussing Cybersecurity on the Farm during the McLean County Ag Show at 10:00 AM.

Shana Forster

Shana Forster has served as the Director for the North Dakota State University North Central Research Extension Center in Minot, ND since 2016. She has also served as a District Director for NDSU Extension since 2019. She is a native of North Dakota, raised in Mandan N.D. She received her B.S. degree in Crop and Weed

Sciences and Plant Protection, her M.S. degree in Plant Breeding and Genetics and her Ph.D. in Plant Sciences, all from NDSU. She has previously served in a variety of positions including the assistant pulse crop breeder and the Area Extension Specialist in Cropping Systems. She currently serves as an Affiliate Faculty member in NDSU Plant Sciences, chair of the Minot Chamber Agribusiness committee and is a Certified Crop Advisor. Dr. Forster and her family reside in Minot. During the Ag Show, Shana will be presenting on the Land Grant System and why it is still valuable today. Her presentation will be held at 1:30 PM.

Justis Klabunde

My SAE is a forage production placement. I made most of the hay for the ranch this year. I made mostly large round bales but also a few hundred small square bales to keep in the barn throughout the winter. I cut, bale, and haul the hay for the ranch to keep the animals fed and healthy.

Bailey Berntson

The purpose of my SAE project was to determine what affects consumer’s buying decisions. Sadie Majeres and I went to our local grocery store, and we saw that there was a large variety of brands. We wanted to see if the brand name or if the generic name of a food product would affect a consumer’s buying decision. This study was conducted by putting all the food items we picked out at our grocery store into a survey. In this survey, since the prices were put with the food we also found out if price affects a consumer’s buying decision. The results of this study have shown that with five out of the nine products, the name brand was over-powering the generic brand. It shows that taste and price is the biggest target for most consumers.

Colton Iglehart

My SAE project is a beef cattle production placement. I calve out cows, fix fences, feed cows, work on equipment, and make hay. I also have my own cows. I help my dad and step mom with their cows. I do a lot of stuff around the farm.

Kadin Kolden

My SAE is a forage production placement. I made most of the hay for the ranch this year. I made mostly large round bales but also a few hundred small square bales to keep in the barn throughout the winter. I cut, bale, and haul the hay for the ranch to keep the animals fed and healthy.

My SAE project is working with horses and cows. My family currently has 4 horses and 3 heifers. I work with horses to get them saddle broke and halter broke. I also help them stay fit. Last summer I taught my little sisters to ride and the importance of riding. Some important things that I teach my little sisters is the safety of not getting bucked off, letting the horse know that you are around them and being gentle with them. I groom the horses every day and usually before I ride. Usually once a week I bathe them. After I get done riding them they are usually sweaty. I spray them every morning with fly spray to prevent the flies from bothering them. My uncle comes down to my house once in a while and we train the wild mustang that my family bought from Medora. He is currently easy to catch with people that he is aware of or people that he is used to and he does really well when he has a halter on which is our goal.

August Majeres

My SAE project this year was working for the family farm. This includes moving vehicles around, planting the whole sunflower crop, running to town to get chemicals for the sprayer, and running grain cart.

My SAE is a Food Products and Processing agriscience project. Over the summer I paired with another student and we created an agriscience fair project. We researched the effects of different temperatures on different fruits and how fast it made them mold. We accomplished this by placing different fruits on the counter and in the fridge. We presented it at the state FFA convention and earned gold. Our paper advanced to nationals and we earned bronze.

Jamian Stelts

My SAE project is a Diversified Crop Production placement. I worked out on the farm all last summer helping with various tasks. During the spring I rolled soybeans, during the summer I threw square bales, and in the fall, I ran grain cart during harvest. I enjoy working for the farm and look forward to being out there again this year.

Ryan Trautman

My SAE project is tapping trees. I collect sap from box elder trees. I've been collecting sap for years. We start tapping in February and stop in April. We start by cleaning the equipment needed for tapping. Then we go to each tree one by one and tap them using a spile. As we are doing that we attach one end of the hose to the spile and the other end to the bucket then put a bucket at the base of the tree; so that we can collect it from the tree. Then we start checking for sap the next day. We check the trees two times a day, once in the morning and once at night.

Eat garden fresh produce

More Servings, More Benefits

Eating fresh fruits and vegetables every day is one of the most important things you can do for your health. Research continues to show that many essential nutrients in fresh produce may protect you from cancer, high blood pressure, heart disease and Type 2 diabetes, and they also give you more energy, help reduce weight gain and may even reduce the effects of aging.

Mighty Phytochemicals

Phytochemicals are powerful food factors that elicit profound effects on human health maintenance and disease prevention. Usually related to plant pigments, they are the reason we promote eating your colors. Yellow, orange, red, green and purple fruits and vegetables generally contain the most phytochemicals, with more than 900 found in plant foods.

Keep It Crunchy

Once you cook produce, you quickly lose the beneficial qualities. If you want to cook your veggies lightly sauté or steam them – you want to keep them crispy and crunchy. Once veggies lose their crunch, they have also lost their nutritional value.

Growing Inspires Eating

Gardening not only provides you with fresh fruits and vegetables, it also encourages you to eat them. Once you are blessed with a bushel basket of tomatoes, you will have newfound interest in finding recipes for tomatoes. What's more, picking fresh produce from your garden is a great way to get children to eat fruits and vegetables. It is fun for them to pick their own lettuce, tomatoes, cucumbers and peppers – and then eat them.

My SAE projects are poultry, beef and goat production. I maintain my chickens and goats by feeding and watering them every day. I collect the eggs from my chickens and I sell them to my five customers. I sell my eggs once a week or when my customers are in need of some eggs. I have two cows that I help feed and help fix the fence when needed.

Morgan Seidler

My SAE is helping my dad on the farm when he asks. Some of the things I do are run gates, fill water tanks, feed the bottle calves when we have some, and sort cows. Sometimes I help him during haying season by giving him rides to different fields. My favorite thing about this project is feeding the bottle calves and working cattle with my family.
