Commentary: Camera and costumes leads to crying and cops

AIRMAN 1ST CLASS JESSICA WEISSMAN | MINOT AIR FORCE BASE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

MINOT AIR FORCE BASE, N.D. -- Usually, whenever I'm tasked with a work order, I'm not particularly excited about it. I mean, don't get me wrong, I enjoy watching Airmen win awards and learning what they do for their job, but sometimes they're just another job. On the flip side, when unique opportunities come up, I usually always volunteer my time to go photograph the event, even on a weekend.

Last month at our weekly meeting, my supervisor mentioned iMagicon, a comic convention, was coming to Minot, North Dakota. I had never been to a comic con before, so when asked, I immediately volunteered to go photograph the event.

On Saturday, April 25, 2016, a group of friends and I decided we would all go so we could spend the day together, I could capture a few pictures, grab a bite to eat downtown and then come back to base.

When we got to the convention center of the Holiday Inn, we had no idea what to expect being in Minot. When we pulled into the parking lot, we saw a little kid dressed up as Iron Man, so we knew we were in the right spot. As we walked in, we saw booth after booth of games, costumes, action figures, the whole nine yards.

We walked around the front convention room for about 20 minutes and as we were watching some kids play, we noticed heavy traffic coming from a hallway in the back corner of the room. We decided to follow suit and see what the fuss was about. After a short stride down the hallway, we came into a gymnasium-size convention room with more people, more costumes and more booths. This is where the fun began.

There were at least 10 tables set up for people to play Magic in the front corner, where I noticed my supervisor and his family were playing, martial arts instructors conducting "ninja training" in the back, six or seven TVs set up for gaming on the left and a Stormtrooper holding cell to the right. As we walked around we looked through comic books, experienced virtual reality goggles and stood in awe of some children magically creating villages on Minecraft. I captured pictures of just about everything in this room, and as the night progressed, I photographed the costume contest.

Let me tell you, some of the costumes were spectacular. The competitors ranged from ghostbusters and transformers to butterflies and knights. The contest consisted of age categories, infants and toddlers, youth and adult. As the contest started, I hopped to the front of the crowd, right next to the judges' table and stage. I captured images of every contestant and reactions from the judges and the crowd. While we were waiting in between contestants, I captured images of some attendees, including a child who, it seemed like, saw a lightsaber for the first time as he stood in awe of the glow. This was by far my favorite image of the night.

As the night ended, I made contact with some people to be sure they got the images I captured of them, showed my supervisor a few good images I captured from the costume contest and left for the night with no plans set for the rest of the evening.

As we left the venue, we decided to go grab a bite to eat and hang out downtown for a few hours. We went to Fuddrucker's, got some burgers and talked about life. After we ate, we decided last minute to go to the pet store and finish up the night bowling before we went home. As the night progressed and we were having fun out on the town, we decided to go to Rooster's nightclub, where a good majority of our friends were. We hung around at Rooster's for two or three hours and then our group decided they wanted to go to Sports on Tap. Since everyone was leaving, we decided that we would go as well. We got to Sports and stayed there for an hour and fifteen minutes until we decided to leave.

After a long night, we slowly walked to my friend's truck, laughing at all of the fun from the day. On the way, we passed multiple cop cars, who were prepared for anything to happen, as Sports is known to have a tussle every so often. When we reached the truck, I opened the passenger suicide door and as my friend got into the back seat, she noticed something wasn't right.

"Jessie, your bag is gone," she said. "What," I exclaimed. "You are joking me right? Come on, that's not funny." "I'm being serious. It's gone."

In an instant, a rage of panic, anger and confusion came over me. I jumped out of the passenger seat, nudged her out of my way and began to search the vehicle for my camera bag.

Sure enough, it was gone. At this point, I'm crying my eyes out in the front seat. My two friends re-search the vehicle as if it would pop-up out of nowhere after our first two checks.

Before going inside earlier that night, we had pushed the black camera bag between the passenger and back seats and placed a large digital-camo duffel bag over top of it.

With slightly tinted windows, we were sure the equipment would not be seen inside the vehicle and no one would try to break in.

As we began to search the outside of the vehicle for entry marks, I immediately turned to my friend with anger.

"Didn't you lock the truck when we left?" I bitterly asked.

"Of course I did," he said. "You know I always make it honk at least three times. I like to exaggerate things." I was not feeling his humor, as I was still crying hysterically.

At this point, we decide to immediately report the incident to the police that we passed on the way out. We quickly walked over to the police, and informed them of the situation. They walked over to the vehicle and respectfully interrogated us to try to get as much information as they could.

As we ended with the Minot Police, I immediately called my friend Kris who had gone through a similar situation a few years back. He reminded me that I should call my supervisor, so I did. Since it was nearing 1 a.m., I was honestly not expecting him to answer, and he did not. I figured it was going to be hard to understand me, so I did not leave a message, instead I called another NCO in my shop. Thankfully she answered.

In a very sleepy voice, she cleared her throat and whispered, "Hello?"

In a hurried and panicked voice I basically shouted at her in one breath, "Sergeant, my camera got stolen. I don't know what to do. I tried to call my supervisor, but he didn't answer. I didn't know if I should have called

TEAM MINOT WELCOMES NEW 5TH BW COMMANDER

Col. Matthew Brooks accepted command of the 5th Bomb Wing from Col. Jason Armagost during the 5th Bomb Wing change of command ceremony at Minot Air Force Base, North Dakota, June 3, 2016. Brooks comes to the 5th BW from Whiteman AFB, Missouri, where he served as the vice commander of the 509th BW. Brooks expressed his gratitude for being chosen to lead the Warbirds. "My family and I are thrilled to be part of such a legendary team," Brooks said. "I will do my best to uphold the standard of excellence that is the hallmark of the Warbirds and Team Minot." Armagost will be heading to Offutt AFB, Nebraska to serve with U.S. Strategic Command.

Minot AFB homes opens to military retirees, DoD civilians, single service members and civilians

AUTUMN K. MCGRATH | MINOT AFB HOMES

MINOT AIR FORCE BASE, N.D. -- Minot AFB Homes recently announced that a limited number of on-base family homes will now be available for rent by military retirees, DoD civilians, single service members and civilians.

About 160 residences, a mixture of two, three- and four-bedroom units in the Prairie Rose Estates neighborhood, are currently available to the new resident category(s), however inventory will fluctuate based on the demands of active-duty service members, who have first priority for all family housing.

"With military downsizing and other market conditions, there has been a decrease in occupancy for certain home styles and neighborhoods within housing at Minot AFB Homes," said Michael Lahr, Community Manager for Minot AFB Homes.

"If homes are not being filled by active-duty personnel, we offer opportunities for other eligible renters who pass our screening process to live in one these homes. Occupied homes make for a more vibrant community and also ensure adequate funding is in place to sustain ongoing renovations to the property, as well as new homes and amenities for our residents" added Mr. Lahr.

The advantages of living on-base are many. Most utilities are included in monthly rental and there are no hook-up fees. Curbside trash pick-up, recycle pick-up and water-usage charges are also included in the monthly rent. Additionally, all upkeep and regular yard and home maintenance is provided, including 24-hour emergency services. Security for on-base housing is provided by military police. Other amenities include: playgrounds, outdoor pavilions and dog parks. Not to mention Minot AFB Homes amenities to come which include: community center, indoor splash park, indoor playground, sports courts and a new maintenance facility. Residents also benefit from on-base housing being close to base-convenience facilities, including outdoor pool, fitness center, food court, coffee shops, the Base Exchange, the commissary and more.

As far as new resident screening and security is concerned, interested applicants must qualify through the Community Management office, successfully completing comprehensive credit, criminal and background checks. Monthly rental rates for non-active duty are based on market rental rates and the specific home style. Minot AFB Homes now joins the ranks of many other military installations around the country that are already leasing family homes to military retirees and other resident classes.

"The ability to live on base at Minot AFB Homes is truly a unique opportunity," Lahr said. "We look forward to welcoming new residents to our community."

Families interested in moving into Minot AFB Homes can ask for information from Minot AFB Homes leasing office at 844-334-1029 or online at www.minotafbhomes.com. Applicants from the newly eligible category will be required to pass installation background checks and meet credit and income requirements.

Health Department Urges Public to Take Steps to Prevent West Nile Virus

NORTH DAKOTA DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH

BISMARCK, N.D. – The North Dakota Department of Health (NDDoH) reminds residents of the importance of protecting themselves and their families from mosquito bites. While there have not been any human cases of West Nile virus reported to the NDDoH so far this year, the department expects that it will be only a matter of time before the first case is identified.

Most people infected with West Nile virus experience no symptoms or have only mild symptoms, such as fever and headache. However, the more serious form of the illness, West Nile neuroinvasive disease, can cause symptoms of high fever, severe headache, stiff neck, altered mental status, and death. People over age 50 or those who have underlying health issues are at greater risk for developing the neuroinvasive disease than others.

“West Nile virus is a concern in North Dakota. In 2015, 23 North Dakota residents tested positive for West Nile virus. Eight of those people were hospitalized, and one person died,” said Michelle Feist, epidemiologist with the NDDoH. “West Nile virus disease can affect anyone and cause serious illness regardless of age. Last year, the family of the young woman who died from West Nile virus publically acknowledged her death to raise awareness about the seriousness of West Nile virus and how to prevent the disease. The family will be doing that again at a community West Nile awareness event on Saturday, June 4, 2016.”

Preventing mosquito bites is the most effective way to avoid West Nile virus disease. There is no human vaccine for West Nile virus, and there are no specific treatments for the disease. NDDoH recommends residents take these precautions to avoid mosquito bites:

Use insect repellent registered with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) that contains ingredients such as DEET, picaridin, IR3535, oil of lemon eucalyptus (or PMD) or permethrin. Always follow the directions on the manufacturer’s label for safe and effective use.

Wear long-sleeved shirts, long pants, and socks when outdoors.

Limit outdoor activities between dusk and dawn when mosquitoes are most likely to bite.

Eliminate stagnant water in containers around homes where mosquitoes can lay their eggs (e.g., gutters, buckets, flower pots, old tires, wading pools, and birdbaths).

Keep mosquitoes from entering your home by installing or repairing screens on windows and doors.

Dancia Jackson, 23, of St. Michael, N.D., died as a result of neurological infection due to West Nile virus. Dancia’s mother, Darcie Delorme, has organized a Community West Nile Awareness Day in St. Michael, N.D., on June 4, 2016. The agenda includes an opening prayer, a presentation from the NDDoH, a run/walk, a balloon release, and a community feed. The event will begin at 10:00 a.m. at the St. Michael’s Wellness Center in St. Michael, N.D. Everyone is welcome to attend.

In addition to human surveillance, the NDDoH West Nile virus surveillance program will include trapping and testing mosquitoes, reporting and testing sick animals, monitoring illness in humans, and reporting and testing dead birds. For more information about West Nile virus and the 2016 surveillance activities, contact Michelle Feist, North Dakota Department of Health, at 701.328.2378 or visit www.ndhealth.gov/wnv.

Get Outside!

NORTH DAKOTA LEGENDARY

BISMARCK, ND – Summer is almost here and North Dakota’s great outdoors is beckoning! Longer days and delightful temperatures are the perfect complement to outside activities. Whether you’re in the mood to gather with a crowd or seek some peaceful solitude, there is something for you in North Dakota this June.

Warm weather is driving North Dakotans outdoors in droves, so get in on the fun. McQuades Softball Tournament, the world’s largest charity tournament, gets underway in Bismarck with more than 400 men’s and women’s teams playing to support local charities. Bait your hook and join anglers at either the Devils Lake 40th Annual Walleye Tournament, Jamestown’s Dakota Anglers Little Britches Fishing Tournament or Wahpeton’s Dick Bell Catfish Tournament. Curious about classic cars? Learn from the enthusiasts at Mandan’s Buggies-N-Blues, Valley City’s Rally in the Valley. If classic cult films like “Back to the Future” are more your thing, grab a blanket and get cozy under the stars for the Starlight Cinema series at Sleepy Hollow Arts Park in Bismarck.

If you seek tranquility, you can find it in one of North Dakota’s 13 state parks or in its most prized gem, Theodore Roosevelt National Park (TRNP). The visitor center at the south entrance of TRNP loans binoculars to visitors, so pick a hike and get acquainted with the splendor of this national treasure. Explore Fort Stevenson State Park near Garrison, with ideal access to Lake Sakakawea, widely known as the “Walleye Capital of North Dakota.” Sully Creek State Park near Medora is a prime entrance to the spectacular 144-mile Maah Daah Hey Trail. The trail is a favorite of hikers, mountain bikers and horseback riders because of its breathtaking views of the rugged Badlands and the Little Missouri River. Rent a kayak or canoe and trace the route of Lewis and Clark on the Missouri River, although we recommend doing it in reverse ... traveling downriver is much easier!

Summer is festival time and there’s no shortage of celebrations across North Dakota. Sample the delicious fare and enjoy live entertainment, including Uncle Kracker and Blind Melon, at Ribfest in Fargo. Rockin’ Rib Fest in Williston invites you to spend the afternoon taste-testing some of the best barbecue ribs around. Grand Forks’ Grand Cities Art Fest features artisans, food vendors and live entertainment on the banks of the Red River for two full days of fun. The beloved Medora Musical gets underway this month so check out the foot-stompin’ fun and enjoy pitchfork fondue while you’re there.

These are just a few of North Dakota’s activities and events taking place in June. Visit ndtourism.com for more information. Travelers are also invited to download or order a free copy of the 2016 North Dakota Travel Guide.

PRAIRIE ADVENTURES

BY PATRICIA STOCKDILL

“To really appreciate North Dakota, everyone’s got to slow down and take a look.”

- Bill Jensen, North Dakota Chapter of The Wildlife Society discussing the website, Facebook, and Instagram launch of “Prairie Matters.”

To the casual observer, North Dakota’s prairie may seem boring.

It doesn’t matter if a person is a North Dakotan or not.

To a lot of folks, prairie is boring.

Really boring.

Few trees dot the prairie.

Where there are trees, someone determined to try to stop what may seem like the state’s relentless, unrelenting wind likely planted them.

Admittedly, the prairie lacks the grandeur of mountains stretching skyward in rugged fashion, greenery of a tropical climate, or the sense of space afforded by an ocean.

It’s easy to fall in love with those places.

It’s not so easy to fall in love with the prairie.

But then again, maybe the prairie is like life – the more you work for something, the more you appreciate what you have. The more you appreciate what surrounds you.

The more a person stops and absorbs the sights, sounds, and smells of the prairie, the more one tends to appreciate it.

Yes, you may have to work to appreciate the prairie but once you stop and “smell the roses”, for some people the prairie is heaven on earth.

Some of the folks who found that slice of heaven in North Dakota that is the prairie teamed up to share their passion, launching a website, (<https://prairiematters.org>), a Facebook page, (<https://www.facebook.com/prairiematters>), and an Instagram page, (<https://www.instagram.com/prairiematters>).

The sites went live the week of May 16, described North Dakota Chapter of the Wildlife Society (NDC-TWS) president Bill Jensen.

The NDCTWS is an organization of natural resource and scientific professionals. Admittedly, Jensen said, as folks dealing daily with multi-syllable scientific jargon, numbers, and sometimes confusing government lingo, it’s challenging to communicate about the value of prairie ecosystem and its wildlife in ways that aren’t boring, let alone understandable to the average person. “It’s how we were trained to speak and write,” Jensen confessed.

So a group of chapter members decided there had to be a better way to tell their story.

A fun way. An entertaining way.

A way in which people can actually see up close and personal what it is about the prairie that makes it special. The idea of “telling a better story” had been in the works for a couple of years, Jensen described.

And tell a better story they do.

The photography is stunning.

The stories are informative, yet they entertain. “The goal is to have it interest a fourth-grader, that fourth-grader’s grandparents, and everyone in between,” Jensen explained.

Volunteers contribute to the site’s content but people can participate by blogging their thoughts and comments.

The only steadfast, cast-in-stone rule when it comes to blogging on the site, though, is that the sites (thankfully) are not a political forum, Jensen emphasized.

Prairie Matters is a place to learn and appreciate North Dakota’s prairie and find prairie places to visit such as N.D. Game and Fish Department Wildlife Management Areas, North Dakota Trust Lands, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service Waterfowl Production Areas or National Wildlife Refuges, and others.

The goal is to inform and engage people with the prairie – its history, plants and animals, and its importance

Someone said that those who appreciate the prairie have a soul.

Prairie Matters is a place that helps people find theirs.

Naughty & Nice

Crowe and Gosling mix action and laughs in The Nice Guys

NEIL POND | PARADE MAGAZINE

The opening shot of The Nice Guys pans across the back of the iconic HOLLYWOOD sign, grimy and tagged with graffiti, as the lights of the city below glitter in the night like a gigantic box of jewels.

After the Temptations set a '70s groove to "Papa Was a Rollin' Stone," we're off and rolling ourselves on a raucous, retro-rollicking comedy-adventure romp as a pair of mismatched investigators-for-hire (Russell Crowe and Ryan Gosling) team up to look for a missing girl (Margaret Qualley of TV's The Leftovers). But soon they find themselves in a much deeper drama involving porn stars, pinkie promises, menacing thugs, Kim Basinger in full L.A. Confidential mode, and a shocking conspiracy of catalytic converters and high-ranking collusion.

Writer-director Shane Black made his mark back in the late 1980s with the screenplay for Lethal Weapon, starring Mel Gibson and Danny Glover. He went on to refine his format—a high-octane mix of cheeky quips and pulpy, explosive action—behind the camera with Kiss Kiss Bang Bang (2005) and Iron Man 3 (2013).

The movie takes place in 1977, and it revels in the details of its smoggy, sometimes smutty setting. The background hums with tunes from Kiss, America, Rupert Holmes, the Band, Herb Alpert and Earth, Wind and Fire. Chevy Chase, Camaros, Caprice Classics and Dodge Coronets line up for 69-cent-a-gallon gas. Billboards trumpet the hottest movies: Jaws 2, Airport 77. Newspaper headlines spread the dread about killer bees from Brazil. You'll recognize versatile character actor Keith David as a villain. Matt Bomer from TV's American Horror Story plays John Boy, an assassin sharing a certain facial feature with the Waltons TV character of the same name. And young Angourie Rice, 14 at the time of filming, almost steals the show as Holly, the daughter of Gosling's character. She's the soft heart of this rough-and-tumble story, the tender conscience in the midst of its outbursts of casual violence.

But the real treat throughout is the pair-up of two actors not known for baring their funny bones. Crowe's Jackson Healey is a rumples, jaded tough guy who leads with his fists—often sporting brass knuckles. Gosling plays Holland March as a mopey, bottom-feeding P.I. with a drinking problem and a tattoo that reminds him, "You will never be happy." Their oil-and-water styles initially clash, of course, but eventually smooth into some major movie mojo. (Pay attention and you'll even catch their nod to classic Abbott and Costello.)

It all builds into a spectacular shoot-out showdown at a gleaming auto expo, where everyone is scrambling to get their hands on a canister containing a reel of film as it rolls, bounces and spins across the floor, out a window, down a street and into the flames of a burning car. That's one hot movie, as it turns out, in more ways than one.

And so is The Nice Guys, a juicy, slam-bang action-comedy cocktail punched up, pimped out and powered down with rowdy, new-fangled film-noir fun. Hot stuff—catch it.

S'mores Bites

INGREDIENTS:

7 whole graham crackers (equals 1 cup), finely crushed
 1/4 cup powdered sugar
 6 tablespoons butter, melted
 2 (1.55 oz) milk chocolate candy bars (I used hershey's), divided into rectangles
 12 large marshmallows, cut in half

INSTRUCTIONS:

Preheat the oven to 350°F. Finely crush the graham crackers into crumbs, using whatever method you want. I used my slap chop, but a food processor would work or even putting them in a plastic bag and smashing. Combine graham cracker crumbs, powdered sugar and melted butter into a small bowl. Evenly divide crumb mixture into each cup of a 24 cup mini muffin pan, grease slightly before using. Press crumbs down to form shallow cups. Bake 4-5 minutes or until edges are bubbling. While that's baking, break the candy breaks into the divided rectangle pieces. Also cut the marshmallows in half using a scissors that has been sitting in cold water. Remove the pan from the oven and place one chocolate rectangle into each cup. Place one marshmallow half, cut-side down, into each cup. Return to oven for 2-4 minutes or until marshmallows are just slightly softened. If you'd like the tops to be brown, turn the oven to broil, and broil the s'mores bites for 1-2 minutes. Cool on a cooling rack for 15 minutes before carefully removing them from the pan.

Frozen Blueberry Bites

INGREDIENTS:

1 cup fresh blueberries
 1/2 cup light vanilla or fruit flavored yogurt
 A few toothpicks

INSTRUCTIONS:

Place a berry on a toothpick and dip in yogurt. Place single-layered on a parchment or wax paper-lined cookie sheet. Freeze for about an hour (they should freeze fast). Eat immediately or store in an airtight container in the freezer.

MSU Summer Theatre Opens with Godspell

MINOT STATE UNIVERSITY

Minot State University Summer Theatre opens its 51st season with "Godspell" at the MSU Amphitheater June 8-12. All performances begin at 8:30 p.m., and the box office opens at 7:30 p.m.

Mark McQuade, music associate professor, directs this vibrant musical written by John-Michael Tebelak with music and lyrics by Stephen Schwartz. "Godspell" is a vibrant portrayal of the life and parables of Jesus Christ and his messages of kindness, peace and love.

"I based my vision for this production on the composer's premise of the formation of a community in a setting of urban blight and poverty," McQuade said. "One of the most impoverished and blight-ridden places on the planet is Calcutta, India, which I had the incredible opportunity to visit 10 years ago. The city is hugely overcrowded and polluted. Despite the fact that 15 million people live in the Calcutta metropolitan area, people are lost and constantly searching for refuge within a community and deliverance out of the states in which they find themselves. I felt like the story and values of 'Godspell' really fit perfectly into this setting."

"Godspell" began as a student project, which was performed by Carnegie Mellon University students. Because of its popularity, the musical moved to La MaMa Experimental Theatre Club in Greenwich Village before making its way off-Broadway where it enjoyed long-running success. It made its official debut on Broadway in 1971. With a bohemian and eclectic blend of music, dance, games, storytelling and comedy and featuring popular such songs as "Day by Day," "Prepare Ye the Way of the Lord," "Learn Your Lessons Well" and "By My Side,"

"Godspell" continues to touch audiences of all ages.

Ticket prices are $6 for adults, $10 for seniors (over 55), students and military with ID, $8 for children (12 and under), $5 for MSU faculty, staff and students. For more information, contact Chad Gifford, Summer Theatre production director, at 833-5702 or visit the MSU Summer Theatre webpage, <http://www.minotstateu.edu/theatre/summer.shtml>.

Summer Reading Program Kicks Off On June 11th At Base Library

It's almost time for Summer Reading. The Base Library's Summer Reading Program will run from Saturday, June 11th to Saturday, August 20th and is open to all ages from infants to adults. This year's theme is "Read for the Win," so prepare for sports and games.

The Summer Reading Program starts with a Kick-off Party at 1:00 PM on Saturday, June 11th featuring games, crafts, and a puppet show as well as an opportunity to register for the Summer Reading Program.

Participants can register for the Summer Reading Program between June 11th and August 10th at the Library or register themselves online at tinyurl.com/MinotLibrary. While supplies last, everyone who registers will receive a t-shirt.

It doesn't matter what you read or how quickly you can read it; what matters is the amount of time you spend reading. Any reading improves literacy and studies show that children who read for pleasure consistently out-perform those who don't at school.

There are a lot of prizes available for readers to earn including prizes for reading a particular number of hours and opportunities to win grand prizes. Participants can earn grand prize drawing slips by reading or by earning badges by participating in particular activities like attending library programs, working out at the Fitness Center, participating in sports at the Youth Center, attending sports events, and more. Each age group has its own badge-book that specifies which and how many badges can be earned for each activity. Prizes have been provided by the DoD and through sponsorship

Anderson AFB receives Minot B-52

ANDERSEN AIR FORCE BASE, Guam -- A B-52 Stratofortress from Minot Air Force Base, North Dakota, arrived June 2, at Andersen AFB, Guam. The aircraft is deployed in support of U.S. Pacific Command's Continuous Bomber Presence operations. This forward deployed presence demonstrates continuing U.S. commitment to stability and security in the Indo-Asia-Pacific region. The U.S. military has maintained a deployed strategic bomber presence in the Pacific since March 2004, which has contributed significantly to regional security and stability.

you."

As I continued to ramble nonsense, she stopped me with her calming voice, "Weissman, breathe."

I breathed in through my nose and let out a pulsating sigh as tears were still streaming down my face.

"Did you call the police to make a report?" she asked.

"Yes, they were here already because we're at Sports."

"Okay, well there isn't much more you can do tonight," she reminded me. "Talk with Kris about his experience and we can get you started on Monday with paperwork to get things figured out."

As we ended our conversation and I started to settle down, we headed home after a long, eventful evening.

As I think back to this night, each day I realize the importance of safeguarding my equipment and vow to never let such an event happen again, as long as I can control it. There are many precautions I can take to ensure this doesn't happen again, such as don't leave my equipment unsecured in my vehicle or ask a wingman if they can watch my gear if I don't have enough time to go home.

As a new Airman, leadership continues to push the importance of safeguarding my equipment, and sadly I learned this lesson the hard way.

For the rest of my career, I will never forget to keep my equipment locked up and secure.

FALLEN HEROES TO BE HONORED BY MINOT STATE VETERANS CENTER

The Veterans Center will honor veterans Friday (May 27) with a search-and-discover-fallen-heroes mission on the Minot State University campus and in First Lutheran Church Cemetery. Interested participants should meet near the flagpoles in front of the Student Center shortly before 10 a.m. Those unable to attend the event may conduct their own search-and-discover mission at three Minot cemeteries, First Lutheran Church Cemetery, Rosehill Cemetery and Sunset Memorial Garden, by going to the Veterans Center webpage, <http://www.minot-stateu.edu/veterans>. Click the "Search and Discover Mission" link for instructions on how to conduct a search-and-discover mission along with answers to questions about veterans buried in the cemeteries. "If people want to pay tribute to area veterans this Memorial Day weekend, here is an opportunity for families and individuals to learn more about those who served in the U.S. Armed Forces to help preserve the freedoms everyone enjoys today," said Andy Heitkamp, Veterans Center director. For questions, contact Heitkamp at andy.heitkamp@minotstateu.edu.
