Air Force moving forward with restructure of nuclear and missile operations (13N) career field

CARLA PAMPE | AIR FORCE GLOBAL STRIKE COMMAND PUBLIC AFFAIRS

BARKSDALE AIR FORCE BASE, La. -- In early 2016, the commander of Air Force Global Strike Command directed a review of the nuclear and missile operations career field, with the goal of creating a self-sustaining career field.

The review was recently completed, and over the last week, Maj. Gen. Anthony Cotton, 20th Air Force Commander, briefed members of the 13N career field at Malmstrom AFB, Montana, Francis E. Warren AFB, Wyoming, and Minot AFB, North Dakota on some of the upcoming changes they will see starting in Fiscal Year 2017 as the Air Force begins to implement the 13N restructure.

“As we move forward with this restructure, we’re going to be making changes that will grow nuclear experience and expertise at the wing level; developing our missile operators into the nuclear ‘go-to’ experts needed across the Air Force and the nuclear enterprise when it comes to policies and procedures,” Cotton said.

The first step in the restructure will reduce the number of accessions into the 13N career field, balancing accessions with retention to eliminate virtually all crossflows. In the past, more 13Ns were accessed than needed, with the knowledge that 30 to 40 percent of the officers would crossflow into other career fields after their initial four-year commitment.

“In recent years, efforts to reinvigorate the nuclear enterprise have led to more missileers wanting to stay in the career field,” Cotton said. “The Air Force has also made an overt effort to do more recruiting at the Air Force Academy and other universities, informing cadets about the missile career field, and those efforts have been very successful.”

As the 13N restructure progresses, adjustments will be made to grade structures across the entire career field to ensure a more senior crew force at the wing level. This redistribution, combined with additional leadership opportunities following completion of the 3+3 primary operations tours, such as being a Flight Commander, provides increased nuclear expertise at the unit level. Simultaneously, nuclear-related billets across the Air Force will be reviewed to determine if they are well suited for inclusion in the 13N career field, to ensure nuclear experts are where they need are most needed.

“You are also going to see assignment opportunities at other nuclear-related MAJCOMs and bases,” Cotton said. “Missile officers will provide these units with corporate knowledge or subject matter expertise about the nuclear enterprise they may not have had in the past.”

“This is absolutely the right move for our 13Ns, to normalize their career field with the rest of the Air Force,” said Gen. Robin Rand, AFGSC commander. “However, the biggest and most important benefit will be the level of expertise we’ll grow across the nuclear enterprise.”

Maj. Gen. Anthony Cotton, 20th Air Force and Task Force 214 commander, speaks to missile combat crew members from the 341st Operations Group during a visit to Malmstrom Air Force Base, Montana, June 21, 2016. Cotton visited the base June 19-21 and met with Airmen from the nuclear and missile operations career field to discuss upcoming changes as the Air Force begins to implement a restructure for the 13N career field.

Have A Safe Independence Day!

SENIOR AIRMAN KRISTOFFER KAUBISCH | MINOT AIR FORCE BASE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

MINOT AIR FORCE BASE, N.D. -- The 4th of July is always a fun time to gather with family and friends to acknowledge the nation's birthday, and fireworks are a wonderful way to celebrate the holiday, but they must be used carefully.

The use of fireworks is prohibited on Minot Air Force Base, and those who choose to use them off-base should be familiar and in adherence with local laws and regulations. Personal fireworks are allowed in Ward County, but not within the city limits of Minot.

Fireworks can be dangerous, causing serious burns and eye injuries. You can help us and your local community fire department prevent firework-related injuries and deaths.

How? By following these simple safety tips for safe fireworks use according to the National Council on Fireworks Safety:

- Obey all local laws regarding the use of fireworks.
- Know your fireworks; read the cautionary labels and performance descriptions before igniting.
- A responsible adult SHOULD supervise all firework activities. Never give fireworks to children.
- Alcohol and fireworks do not mix. Save your alcohol for after the show.
- Wear safety glasses

when shooting fireworks.

- Light one firework at a time and then quickly move away.

- Use fireworks OUTDOORS in a clear area; away from buildings and vehicles.

- Never relight a "dud" firework. Wait 20 minutes and then soak it in a bucket of water.

- Always have a bucket of water and charged water hose nearby.

- Never carry fireworks in your POCKET or shoot them into METAL or GLASS containers.

- Do not experiment with homemade fireworks.

- Dispose of spent fireworks by wetting them down and place in a metal trash can away from any building or combustible materials until the next day.

- FAA regulations PROHIBIT the possession and transportation of fireworks in your checked baggage or carry-on luggage.

- Report illegal explosives, like M-80s and quarter sticks, to the fire or police department.

By observing these reminders, people can help prevent unfortunate accidents. Remember, in case of an emergency, call 911.

Have a safe and happy Independence Day!

Blended retirement system leader training

THE SECRETARY OF THE AIR FORCE CHIEF OF STAFF | UNITED STATES AIR FORCE WASHINGTON, DC

On 1 January 2018, the department of Defense will implement the new Blended Retirement System (BRS) enacted by Congress in the Fiscal Year 2016 National Defense Authorization Act. As this implementation date gets closer, it's extremely important for Airmen at all levels to begin familiarizing themselves with the new BRS as it will impact everyone. All Airmen accessed after 1 January 2018 will automatically be enrolled in the new BRS and those Airmen with 12 or less years of service as of 31 December 2017 will have opportunity to "opt-in" to the new system if they choose. Whether you fall into one of these categories or supervise someone who does, education on the new system is paramount.

The first step will provide education for leaders at all levels on the basics of the BRS. This training is now available through the Joint Knowledge Online (JKO) BRS Leader Training Course (<http://jko.jten.mil/>). We highly encourage all supervisors to take this 30-minute training to familiarize yourself with the BRS. Although geared towards leaders, the Leader Training course is available to all Airmen and we encourage anyone looking for additional information to take the course. Specific courses targeting newly accessed Airmen eligible to opt-in to the BRS will be mandatory and will be available starting in 2017.

Airmen are our most important asset and preparing them for these impactful changes is a leadership priority. We are counting on and thank each of you for leading the way and taking care of our Airmen. For additional background information on BRS, please visit militarypay.defense.gov.

Reappearing Act

Do-gooder scamps return for more hocus-pocus hijinks

NEIL POND | PARADE MAGAZINE

The magic of the movies sometimes makes for some nifty tricks, and this "reappearing" act is a good one—a sequel to the 2013 hit about a foursome of infamous crusading magician tricksters whose large-scale, steal-from-the-rich stunts have made them worldwide rock-star Robin Hoods.

Woody Harrelson, Jesse Eisenberg and Dave Franco return as three of the so-called Four Horsemen, with Lizzy Caplan (Virginia Johnson on TV's Masters of Sex) coming aboard to replace Isla Fisher from the original. Mark Ruffalo is back as FBI agent Dylan Rhodes, whose "reveal" as the Horsemen's hidden-in-plain-sight mastermind was the first movie's final bit of hocus-pocus. Morgan Freeman again rounds out the cast as Thaddeus Bradley, a former master magician-turned-trick-debunker who was framed and sent to prison for the group's last big caper.

Joining the cast is former Harry Potter star Daniel Radcliffe as a megalomaniacal tech billionaire who hijacks the Horsemen to coerce them into heisting a new super-high-tech computer chip that, if delivered into the wrong hands, would compromise the privacy of every computer—and every computer user—in the world.

The only problem is, which hands are the wrong hands, and which are the right ones? In a movie about magic and misdirection, it's awfully hard to tell.

Director Jon M. Chu, whose resume includes two of the Step Up dance flicks, keeps things moving along briskly with a sense of fun, fizz and sizzle as the do-gooder scamps zip from New York to China to London, trying to stay one step ahead of the law. The plot gets bogged down a bit as it tries to layer on detail and backstory, but when the Horsemen get down to business, things really come alive—like in an absolutely stunning sequence in which the purloined computer chip, attached to the front of a playing card, is masterfully flipped, flung and flicked from Horseman to Horseman to avoid detection while they're each being searched. It's the movie's centerpiece trick, a sexy, super-slick bit of slight of hand, and a showpiece of computer-assisted "cardistry."

In one of the movie's best running gags, Harrelson has a ball in a new, "surprise" role—in addition to the smooth-talking hypnotist Merritt McKinney, he also plays his sibling-rival twin brother, Chase, who sports a head of curly hair and a mouth full gleaming white chompers.

One of the coolest things about Now You See Me 2, like its predecessor, is how it shows the audience how its trickery is done—after the razzle-dazzle, it pulls back the curtain to reveal the nuts-and-bolts explanation behind each jaw-dropping effect, the trap doors, the trickery, the switcheroo, the behind-the-scene hustle-bustle that made the illusion possible.

Magic, it lets us know, requires practice, hard work, concentration, planning, patience and super skills. That doesn't make it any less amazing, or any less wondrous. "The best tricks," says Morgan Freeman's character, "work on many levels." Now You See Me 2 is a multi-leveled magic show, heist caper, comedy, drama and globetrotting action-adventure romp with characters whose company you'll find most enjoyable.

Now you see them, now you don't. And you'll all but certainly see them again—in Now You See Me 3.

Salted Caramel Pot de Crème

INGREDIENTS:

6 large egg yolks
3/4 cup granulated white sugar
2 cups heavy cream

1/2 tsp vanilla extract
sea salt for garnish

INSTRUCTIONS:

Set oven to 325F. Whisk the egg yolks in a small bowl until well blended. Set aside. In a heavy bottomed sauce pan combine the sugar and 1/2 cup water and stir to combine. Begin heating it and stir just to dissolve the sugar. Turn up the heat and boil the mixture WITHOUT STIRRING. Continue boiling on medium high heat for anywhere from 5-10 minutes, until the sugar syrup starts to brown. The browner the syrup gets, the more flavor you will have in your finished custard, but be extra careful not to let it burn. When the syrup is nice and brown, whisk in the cream (be careful, it will spurt) and continue to stir while you lower the heat to medium. The caramel will be hardened at first and will dissolve as the cream heats. Stir just until all the bits of caramel are dissolved. Slowly drizzle the cream mixture into the egg yolk, whisking as you drizzle. Continue until all the cream has been incorporated into the eggs and is smooth. Stir in the vanilla extract. Pour the mixture into 6 small oven safe glasses. Set the glasses in a baking dish and pour hot water into the dish to come up about an inch or two. Bake for about 30-40 minutes, until the custards are set on the edges, but still a little wobbly in the center. Let cool and then refrigerate until chilled. Serve with a sprinkle of sea salt.

Oven Baked Spicy Chicken Tacos

INGREDIENTS:

1 tablespoon olive oil
1/2 pound cooked chicken, shredded
1 packet Hot & Spicy Taco Seasoning
1/2 cup onion, diced
1 can diced tomato, drained
1 can Chopped Green Chiles
10 Taco Shells

1/2 can Refried Beans
2 cups shredded cheese
Toppings such as sliced Jalapenos, sour cream, salsa, chopped cilantro, shredded lettuce, or any of your favorite taco toppings!

INSTRUCTIONS:

Preheat oven to 400F. Spray a 9x13 baking dish with nonstick spray and set aside. Heat olive oil over medium heat in a medium skillet. Add onion to skillet and cook for 2-3 minutes, or until the onion is translucent and fragrant. Stir in the chicken, taco seasoning, tomatoes, and green chiles. Stir to combine fully. Reduce to simmer and allow to cook for 5-8 minutes. Place the taco shells in the baking dish, standing up. I was able to fit 10 taco shells in the dish by adding 2 on each side. Spoon 1 tablespoon of beans into the bottom of each taco shell. Top with the chicken mixture, almost to the top of each shell. Sprinkle each shell generously with shredded cheese, the more the better! Bake for 12-14 minutes or until cheese is fully melted and the edges of the shells are browned. Remove from the oven and top with your favorite items such as jalapenos, sour cream, cilantro, and salsa. Enjoy! Be sure to drain the tomatoes completely, this will help the taco shells to not get soggy while baking!

Noises off and Oklahoma! Hit Summer Theatre Stage Again

MINOT STATE UNIVERSITY

Summer Theatre continues with its celebration of Season 51 with two perennial favorites, "Noises Off," June 28-July 2 and "Oklahoma!" July 13-17.

Touted as one of the funniest farces ever written, "Noises Off" returns to the MSU Summer Theatre stage under the direction of Minot State University alumnus Joe Koppinger. What can go wrong goes hilariously awry in Michael Frayne's production as an eclectic, dysfunctional menagerie of actors (and more than a few sardines) stumble their way through the rehearsal and performance of "Nothing On," a riotously challenged British farce. This farce contains mature humor and innuendo, which may not be suitable for all audiences.

Love conquers the Western Indian Territory at the turn of the 20th century in Rogers and Hammerstein classic, "Oklahoma!" under the direction of Chad Gifford, MSU Summer Theatre associate director of production. Laury (Grace Chermak), must decide between two suitors, Curley (J'Kobe Wallace), a boisterous cowboy, and his rival, Jud (Christopher Burch), an obsessive farmhand. To save Curley from certain harm, Laury accepts Jud's invitation to a social.

Nestled into the grassy hillside just north of the campus, the amphitheater has been home to Summer Theatre since 1971. Boasting exceptional views of the stage and Minot for 45 years, it is a perfect spot for a night of theater under the stars.

All performances begin at 8:30 p.m. The box office opens the evening of each performance at 7:30 p.m. Ticket prices are $12 adults, $10 seniors, students and military with ID, $8 for children (12 and under), $5 for MSU faculty and staff and summer students with current MSU ID. Northern Tier sponsors a special military discount night July 1 and 15. Reservations are encouraged. To make reservations, call 858-3228.

Summer fun abounds this July in North Dakota

NORTH DAKOTA LEGENDARY

Summer in North Dakota is in full swing and the long, warm days bring abundant opportunities for summertime fun. The beloved North Dakota State Fair gets under way for its 51st year and promises two weeks of midsummer entertainment that includes an impressive lineup of musical guests. Don your red, white and blue and revel in our nation's independence at one of numerous Fourth of July celebrations across the state. Soak up the summer vibe with music and good food at a local festival. There are many ways to find fun this summer in North Dakota. To find more information about these activities, and for a complete list of events, go to NDtourism.com or call 800-435-5663 or 701-328-2525.

First on First Event, Dickinson: July 7, 14, 21, and 28

Dickinson residents celebrate the long days of summer with summer nights at First on First, held every Thursday summer night where First Avenue and First Street meet downtown. Starting at 5:00 PM, gift and food vendors, live performers and children's activities will be available to attendees. To learn more, visit <https://www.facebook.com/firstonfirstdickinson/>.

Ryan Keplin Summer Fest, Rolette: July 8-10

This three-day festival promises to keep your feet tapping and your heart pumping with jigging, fiddling, square dancing, evening entertainment and other family-centered activities. The Ryan Keplin Summer Fest invites all comers to share in a commemoration of Metis culture in the scenic Turtle Mountains. <http://www.ryankeplin.com>; 701-477-9479.

White Cloud's Birthday/Tatanka Festival, Jamestown: July 8-10

Jamestown was the home to White Cloud, an albino bison that recently returned to her birth ranch in Michigan. The city will continue to honor her and her off-spring at this celebration, which includes a kids' carnival, Wild West Shoot-Out, car show, parade, street dance and pancake breakfast. Details can be found at www.jamestowncalendar.com, 701-252-8648.

Red River Valley Fair, West Fargo: July 12-17

This perennial festival favorite is back for another year of exhibits, livestock, live music, midway shows, food and entertainment. Don't miss this Fargo summer staple, especially with performers that include Chris Janson, Tigerlily, Hairball, Big & Rich and Three Days Grace. <http://redrivervalleyfair.com>; 701-282-2200.

Downtowners German Days, Bismarck: July 14-16

Bismarck's Downtowners German Days is back for its second year and revelers are ready to rejoice in all things German! Join locals in the heart of this historically German and Germans from Russia-settled area as they celebrate with food, music and (of course) beer. Visit www.bismarckgermandays.com for more information.

Downtown Fargo Street Fair, Fargo: July 14-16

Gather with friends and stroll Fargo's charming downtown city blocks lined with vendors' booths during the city's 41st Annual Downtown Street Fair. Check out handmade arts and crafts by local and regional artisans, sample the delicious food and enjoy a variety of great entertainment. Visit <http://downtownfargo.com>; 701-242-1570.

Real American Jam Music Festival, Medora: July 15-17

Spend the weekend camping and enjoying music and fun at the Real American Jam Music Festival at Buffalo Gap Ranch. Artists Ned Ledoux, Joe Diffie and Corb Lund will be in attendance, and all proceeds from the festival will go towards supporting local, injured veterans. To purchase tickets and learn more check out www.realamericanjam.com.

Ukrainian Festival, Dickinson: July 22-23

This 31st annual ethnic celebration highlights the heritage and culture of Ukrainians in North Dakota. The festivities include concerts, dancing, Ukrainian meals, educational seminars and more. <http://www.ucitoday.org>; 701-483-1486.

North Dakota State Fair, Minot: July 22-30

The North Dakota State Fair is in its 51st year with nine evenings of exciting entertainment, including performances by Kenny Chesney, KISS, Jake Owen, Billy Currington, Fall Out Boy, Old Dominion and more. Enjoy a vast array of unique food vendors, an exciting midway and displays and side shows throughout the grounds. <http://ndstatefair.com>; 701-857-7620.

Taylor Horse Fest, Taylor: July 30-31

Saddle up for this fun annual event that is all about horse culture. Activities include a parade of horses and horse-drawn equipment, craft vendors, draft horse pulls, driving competitions, demonstrations, cowboy shooting, live music and more. <http://taylorhorsefest.com>; 701-974-4210.

PRAIRIE ADVENTURES

BY PATRICIA STOCKDILL

"In 1970, 12 percent of anglers preferred trout."

— N.D. Game and Fish Department fisheries division chief Greg Power, describing how, when surveyed, anglers listed trout as one of their favorite three fish species to fish for and catch Trout in North Dakota might be considered the Rodney Dangerfield of fish species...they don't seem to get much respect.

It's not that people don't fish for them. It's just that since the N.D. Game and Fish Department and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service entered into the amazing partnership that resulted in the ability to stock species like walleye, pike, and perch in lakes across much of the state, trout found themselves falling into a nice niche for anglers and not necessarily the First Fish of North Dakota.

After their heyday of the 1960s and 1970s trout trickled down the "favorite" list among anglers.

However, they still have their place, offered Game and Fish Department fisheries division chief Greg Power, especially in North Dakota's two unique trout "hot spots" — the Missouri River tailrace and Turtle River in Turtle River State Park, Arvilla.

If you want big trout, head to the tailrace where rainbow and brown trout gorge themselves on smelt, thriving in the cold, cold water.

If you want a more traditional trout stream fishing experience, head to Turtle River State Park. "It's as close as you can get (in North Dakota) to a mountain stream," Power described.

Located downstream of Larimore Dam, the dam's bottom intake provides colder water longer into the spring at the park. "They have nice (streambed) rock in the park and they have all of that shady canopy (of trees)," Power added.

The Turtle River has been stocked in the park annually since 1994. Game and Fish Department crews deliver rainbows twice each spring — about 2,000 fish altogether — and another 750 in the fall, typically late September.

Another partnership brings trout into North Dakota: Game and Fish Department crews deliver walleye eggs to Wyoming and Montana. In exchange, North Dakota gets Shasta strain of rainbow trout eggs from Ennis, Mont. The Garrison Dam National Fish Hatchery then rears the eggs until they're large enough for Game and Fish Department to stock. Larger brood rainbow trout come from Wyoming. The four entities and their great partnership are the reason trout are in North Dakota today.

However, trout aren't necessary new to state waters, where in 2016 about 55 lakes, Missouri River, and Turtle River are stocked. North Dakota has a long history of trout fishing and stocking. "We actually stocked trout in the early 1900s," Power explained.

Rainbow trout weren't stocked consistently until 1954 when they were brought into Gordon Lake. Eight lakes, including what would later become Lake Oahe, were stocked in 1955.

The reason North Dakota has any trout at all is because of the rearing, stocking, and excellent working partnerships. Trout, a cold-water species, need cold water, unlike walleye that can handle warmer water temperatures.

Trout also need higher dissolved oxygen (DO) water levels. "They're the first fish to die with low dissolved oxygen water levels," Power described. Trout need 4 or 5 parts per million (PPM) of DO. Walleye can survive with 2 PPM dissolved oxygen levels; bullheads less.

They don't spawn in North Dakota because our water warms up too early in the spring. Also, they need aerated water trickling and tumbling over rocky, gravel streambeds for spawning habitat.

That's unlikely to happen in North Dakota.
