Eagle Eyes Promotes Community's Involvement in Security

5TH BOMB WING PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Security Forces defend the base, but everyone can help ensure Team Minot is safe and sound through the Air Force Office of Special Investigations Eagle Eyes program.

Law enforcement officers rely on the eyes and ears of the entire community. If Airmen or citizens notice anything out of the norm or suspicious, either on or off base, they should report it immediately to local law enforcement or base Security Forces, who are available 24 hours a day at 723-3096. Or, they can use the new anonymous tip line by visiting <https://www.tipsubmit.com/WebTips.aspx?AgencyID=1111> or downloading the smartphone app "Tip Line".

Additionally, Airman should visit www.redcross.org/prepare/disaster/terrorism or www.safesoundfamily.com/p/family-safety-terrorist-attacks and learn about devising a plan that can help keep themselves and their loved ones safe.

What to Watch For: Surveillance

Overt surveillance may involve a person standing outside the gate jotting down notes or taking pictures. Some surveillance is more covert, such as a "broken down" car in a place where its occupants can observe base activities while waiting for "help."

In order to plan an attack, suspicious persons must acquire information about the base and its personnel. In the early stages this can be done by reading published information; searching the internet or conducting surveillance; but at some point they will try to obtain undisclosed information; this is usually done through elicitation.

Elicitation

Elicitation may occur by phone, fax, e-mail, social media, requests for information through regular mail, or in person. A suspicious person may call and pose as an Air Force member, asking to speak to a high-ranking Air Force official to find out if he/she is deployed or away from base.

Someone may approach an Air Force member in uniform at an off base restaurant and strike up a conversation: "Oh you work at Minot. What do you do? ... How many people from your office are deployed? ... What kind of planes do you have on base?" etc. The bottom line is you have access to information suspicious persons want.

Although these questions may seem harmless, this is how suspicious persons gather insider information necessary to carry out their plan. It is important for individuals to remember to set privacy settings within social media sites and to remember OPSEC when posting information. If people suspect that someone is trying to elicit information from them, they should not reveal anything and should contact their supervisor or Security Forces at 723-3096.

Tests of security

This occurs when suspicious persons attempt to measure the base's security procedures and subsequently assess strengths or weaknesses. This may include someone driving at a high speed toward the gate to gauge the guards' reactions or it may involve a person hopping the fence and seeing how long he/she can elude the guards. At this stage, suspicious persons are interested in finding out the capability of the security they are up against, and how much they can get away with.

Acquiring supplies

Suspicious persons must also collect the necessary tools and items to carry out their mission. This may include purchasing or stealing weapons, ammunition, uniforms, military ID cards, or other necessary controlled items. Dry cleaners often call saying they have ID cards that were left in clothes; though this seems harmless, this could provide suspicious persons access to the base, so it is important for base personnel to keep track of their ID cards and other controlled items that would grant base access.

Suspicious persons/vehicles out of place

It's also important to note suspicious persons who "don't belong." After working in an office for a few weeks, people typically know who belongs in the office. They should not be afraid to ask to see an ID or orders. If they prefer not to take a direct approach, they can contact Security Forces to address the individual. Similarly, if personnel observe individuals or activities off base, near a shopping center or neighborhood for example, this information should be noted and given to the proper authorities.

When reporting suspicious individuals, it is important to provide as much information as possible. This includes, but is not limited to, gender, clothing type and color, approximate height, and distinguishing marks or tattoos. When reporting suspicious vehicles include color, make, model, and, most importantly, a license plate number (even a partial plate number).

Dry run

This is the test phase where the suspicious persons rehearse their plan, map out routes, and determine the timing and flow of their attack. After the rehearsal, the suspicious persons may deploy their assets and get into position. At this point, they are putting on their masks and readying themselves to carry out their mission. This is the last opportunity to catch them before the attack occurs, so it is crucial to alert authorities immediately.

Deploying assets

This is a person's last chance to alert authorities before the act occurs. Look for people loading up vehicles with weaponry/explosives, etc., and/or parking that vehicle somewhere, or people in military uniforms (who don't look right) approaching an installation or getting into a vehicle, or people who seem out of place standing by at a certain location as if waiting for something to happen.

Minot AFB Article 15s

MINOT AIR FORCE BASE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

A vast majority of members of Team Minot will never have to experience the nonjudicial punishment process pursuant to Article 15 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ). However, it is important for members to understand the different types of misconduct that can warrant nonjudicial punishment and how commanders can punish. Under Article 15 of the UCMJ, all commanders may initiate non-judicial punishment. The member is given the right to accept nonjudicial punishment or demand trial by court-martial. If the member accepts the Article 15 process they are provided an opportunity to respond before guilt and punishment is determined by the Commander. After the Commander reviews the member's submitted matters, the circumstances of the offense, any factors in mitigation or extenuation, and the member's history of misconduct (if any), the Commander will then determine guilt or innocence and if found guilty an appropriate punishment. The maximum punishment for an Article 15 action depends on the rank of the member being punished and the rank of the officer imposing punishment. Typical punishments include, but are not limited to, reduction in rank, forfeitures of pay, extra duties, restriction to base and a reprimand. The Commander can also choose to suspend a portion of the punishment. The suspended punishment acts as a probation period no more than six months. If the member commits further misconduct the suspended punishment can be vacated, meaning the suspended punishment will take effect. For the month of April, May, and June 2016, the Minot AFB Legal Office processed forty Article 15s. Listed below are short summaries of these cases to inform the base community of the serious nature of non-judicial punishment and the potential severity of punishment.

1. An Airman First Class from 5th Civil Engineer Squadron received a reduction to the grade of Airman, suspended forfeitures of $878.00 pay per month for two months and a reprimand for one specification in violation of Article 111, Drunken Driving.

2. An Airman First Class from 5th Civil Engineer Squadron received a reduction to the grade of Airman, suspended forfeitures of $500.00 pay per month for two months with forfeiture of one month suspended, 30 days extra duty and a reprimand for one specification in violation of Article 92, Willful; Dereliction of Duty.

3. An Airman First Class from 5th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron received a reduction to the grade of Airman, suspended forfeitures of $878.00 pay per month for two months, 45 days restriction to the base with 30 days suspended, 45 days extra duty with 30 days suspended and a reprimand for two specifications in violation of Article 86, Failure to Go.

4. An Airman First Class from 5th Logistics Readiness Squadron received a reduction to the grade of Airman, suspended forfeitures of $878.00 pay per month for two months, 15 days extra duty suspended and a reprimand for one specification in violation of Article 111, Drunken Driving.

5. An Airman from 91st Operations Group received a reduction to the grade of Airman Basic, forfeitures of $783.00 pay per month for two months with forfeiture of one month suspended, 45 days restriction with 30 days suspended, 15 days extra duty and a reprimand for two specifications in violation of Article 92, Willful; Dereliction of Duty. 15 days restriction to the base and forfeiture of $783.00 pay for one month was later vacated for violation of one specification of Article 86, Failure to Go.

6. An Airman from 5th Civil Engineer Squadron received a suspended reduction to the grade of Airman Basic, suspended forfeitures of $500.00 pay per month for two months, 30 days extra duty and a reprimand for one Big Ideas Contained in Small Art!

Small Works Exhibit & Auction

TAUBE MUSEUM OF ART

The Taube Museum of Art Main Gallery announces the opening of their ninth annual Small Works Exhibit & Auction, which is a collection of works no larger than 80 square inches. The exhibition opened July 26th and runs through September 8th. These amazingly diverse artworks are available to bid on in a variety of ways; in person by visiting the museum, online at www.taubemuseum.org, and on our Facebook page, with the ability for online visitors to place bids by email, phone, or Facebook. We encourage the public to call to check on the status of their bids and we will be happy to "up" their bid if interested. Started last year, a visitor also has the option to purchase a piece at the buy it now price, and take it home right away, rather than wait until the close of the exhibition.

Small art seems to have gained popularity over the years so the Taube Museum of Art created a venue for the excitement! Small artworks are easy for artists to ship, easy for people to purchase, and even easier to add to a collection, because they fit into a small space on a wall or a bookshelf. "We are very excited to have such a great response to our Small Works exhibition! The community looks forward to this annual exhibition!" This year the exhibition features 135 entries from 35 local and regional artists. A few of the artists participating in this exhibition include Steve Knutson, Judith Greenwood, Nancy Walter, Tonya Stuart-Melland, Ben Dagget, Andrea Donovan, and Roxi Mathis. New this year is Kathy Blessum, Isaac Haffner, Kaycee Revier, and Tammy Hoffert to name a few.

Exhibit/Silent Auction dates are July 26 – September 8, 2016. A closing reception for this Exhibition Fundraiser will be held on Thursday evening, September 8, from 5 – 7 pm. The reception is free and open to the public. Come out and meet the artists and add to your art collection. A select number of artists will be invited to extend the display of their work through September 15th to be included in a special exhibition as part of the Downtown Fall Wine Walk.

A portion of the auction proceeds will support the Taube Museum of Art, a non-profit organization, with the rest to the artist. Normal Museum and Gift Shop hours are: Tuesday – Friday: 10:30 am – 5:30 pm and Saturday: 11:00 am – 4:00 pm. There is no charge for admission, but contributions are accepted to help the Taube Museum fulfill their mission of enriching lives through the visual arts.

Please contact Nancy F. Walter, Executive Director or Doug Pfliger, Gallery Manager at 838-4445 for further information.

Chicken & Cheese Enchiladas with Green Chili & Sour Cream Sauce

INGREDIENTS:

- | | |
|---------------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| 10 soft taco shells | 3 Tbsp. flour |
| 2 cups cooked, shredded chicken | 2 cups chicken broth |
| 2 cups shredded cheese | 1 cup sour cream |
| 3 Tbsp. butter | 1 (4 oz) can diced green chillies |

INSTRUCTIONS:

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease a 9x13 pan. Mix chicken and 1 cup cheese. Roll up in tortillas and place in pan. In a sauce pan, melt butter, stir in flour and cook 1 minute. Add broth and whisk until smooth. Heat over medium heat until thick and bubbly. Stir in sour cream and chillies. Do not bring to boil, you don't want curdled sour cream. Pour over enchiladas and top with remaining cheese, and if you like diced green onions and black olives. Bake 22 min covered, remove foil and then high broil for 3 min to brown the cheese.

Minot residents support downtown business with Cash Mob

MINOT, N.D. - Another local Minot business got the 'Cash Mob' treatment—this time, it was Grow with Me. Members of the Minot community 'mobbed' the downtown Minot children's store from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. July 21. This is the fourth business that group that calls themselves the #MagicCashMob has hit. The idea is to 'mob' the selected business with customers and spend money, thus giving them a jolt of business. Those who do not have children could also buy children's supplies and donate them to local organizations like the domestic violence crisis center. "I think for local businesses, we've all struggled, especially with the construction we've had downtown the past couple years. So I think just being able to get the names out there, say hey, this is local. Keep your local business. It's more the unique shops, the different shops that most people don't see. You know, you can go to the mall anywhere, but you can't always get a unique shop," said Valerie Stadheim, owner, Grow with Me. Members with the cash mob say they've selected their next location and will announce it in the coming weeks.

High Levels of Blue-green Algae Toxins Identified in Green Lake; Public is Warned to Avoid Contact with Water

NORTH DAKOTA DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH

BISMARCK, N.D. – The North Dakota Department of Health (NDDoH) and Agriculture (NDDA), Animal Health Division, has issued a blue-green algae warning for Green Lake located near Wishek in McIntosh County due to high levels of microcystin in the water. Microcystin is a cyanotoxin caused by blue-green algae. When present in water, cyanotoxins are dangerous for both people and animals. The Green Lake is a popular recreational area that is used for boating and swimming. Swimming or consuming water from the lake should be curtailed until further notice. Boating should be done with caution so water is not accidentally ingested.

Last week the NDDoH received a report of a blue-green algae bloom from a lake resident. NDDoH staff investigated the bloom and confirmed the presence of blue-green algae in the lake, including along the swimming beach and boat ramp areas. On Friday, signs were posted around the lake by the Wishek Park Board advising the public that blue-green algae are present in the lake and that the water can be harmful to humans and pets. This week, water samples collected and analyzed by the NDDoH revealed microcystin levels over 50 times recommended safe levels. The NDDoH's health threshold for recreation is 10 µg/L (part per billion).

The production of blue-green algae, also known as cyanobacteria, often happens in hot weather in bodies of water that are used by people, pets and livestock. Exposure from ingesting affected water can cause illness in people and animals, and can result in death. There are no known antidotes for the toxins. State health official urge the public to avoid contact with or swallowing water affected by blue-green algae, and to protect their pets and livestock from waters that are affected.

Blue-green algae discolor the water they live in, and can cause foam, scum or mats to appear on the surface. People and animals that swallow water containing cyanotoxins can become sick with severe diarrhea and vomiting; numb lips, tingling fingers and toes; dizziness; or rashes, hives or skin blisters. Children are at higher risk than adults for illness because their smaller size can allow them to get a relatively larger dose of toxin.

Please take the following steps to avoid exposure to cyanotoxins:

Respect any advisories announced by public health authorities. If you see posted signs or hear messages to stay out of a certain body of water, respect the warning.

Do not swim, water ski or boat in areas where the water is discolored or where you see foam, scum or mats of green or blue-green algae on the water.

If you accidentally swim in water that might have a cyanobacteria bloom, rinse off with fresh water as soon as possible.

Do not let pets or livestock swim in or drink from areas where the water is discolored or where you see foam, scum or mats of algae on the water.

If pets (especially dogs) swim in scummy water, rinse them off immediately – do not let them lick the algae (and toxins) off their fur.

Don't irrigate lawns or golf courses with pond water that looks scummy or smells bad.

For more information on public health issues, contact Mike Ell, North Dakota Department of Health, at 701.220.5025, or Cheryl Reis-Schilling, McIntosh District Health Unit, at 701.288.3957. For specific questions concerning Green Lake, contact Robin Opsahl with the Wishek Park Board at 701.329.0375.

PRAIRIE ADVENTURES

BY PATRICIA STOCKDILL

"North Dakota's 2016 small game and furbearer regulations are set and most season structures are similar to last year."

– N.D. Game and Fish Department press release announcing the official gubernatorial proclamations have been set for the upcoming small game and furbearer seasons.

Mid-August is rapidly approaching.

School, football, and cooler weather are inching closer. Harvest is getting into full gear.

That means summer is fleeting away.

Where, oh, where, have those lingering summer sunsets gone?

But take heart, it also means hunting season is inching closer, as well.

Have you started conditioning your favorite hunting dog yet?

Have you designated an "I promise I won't forget where I put my hunting licenses" special spot in the house?

And do you remember where that special "I promise I won't forget where I put my hunting licenses" is located?

Have you stocked up on shotgun shells? Don't forget dove shells, because that's an early season providing great opportunities to steal away one's rusty shooting skills.

Are those bootlaces frazzled?

How about new boots? Forget shoes, one can never have enough hunting boots.

Have you highlighted upcoming opening season dates on the calendar – or multiple calendars – with bright yellow markers? Are they entered in your phone, computer, and tablet's calendars just to make sure you don't accidentally schedule something dreadful like a business meeting on a Friday or Monday anytime from Sept. 1 through Jan. 8, 2017?

Thankfully, the N.D. Game and Fish Department announces seasons like the early Canada goose and upland seasons early enough so a person can plan ahead.

Have you remembered to apply for a tundra swan license? If not, you still have some time because the deadline isn't until Aug. 17.

Have you visited with your favorite landowner and thanked them for the hunting opportunities they provided last year?

Have you studied up on blue-green algae so you know what it looks like, even though the rule of thumb should be to carry water for your hunting dog with you at all times and keep them out of water?

How about checking that shotgun to make sure it's clean?

And for those archery hunters out there – if you haven't started practicing for the upcoming deer bow season, what on earth could possibly be your excuse?

That applies to bird hunters, as well, because the old adage "practice makes perfect" applies to everyone's hunting skills.

Have you picked up a hard copy of the upcoming small game and furbearer regulations or printed a downloadable copy from the N.D. Game and Fish Department's website, (gf.nd.gov)?

Also, have you marked your calendar with a reminder to pick up the latest PLOTS, Private Lands Open To Sportsmen – guide when it becomes available in mid-August?

Yes, fall and hunting season will be here before one realizes it so plan ahead and be ready.

But don't forget to take advantage of what remains of summer, though. Fishing has been about as good as it can get on Lake Sakakawea lately so don't give up on fishing just because school, harvest, and football are bearing down on folks.

And take a minute to appreciate some of those bird species who call North Dakota home for the summer. Some species have already left and all too soon the purple martin's morning wake-up calls will be silent; their evening "good night" well wishes will be vacant.

That's truly a sign that fall is approaching.

Be sure to enjoy what's left of summer and relish in the knowledge that fall is in the air.

THE TOP 12 PLACES FOR GREAT SOUL FOOD IN THE SOUTHERN STATES

#8 HUSK - CHARLESTON, SC

At Husk there's a contemporary approach to Southern soul food. Award-winning chef Sean Brock takes a rigorous, research-based approach, with anything that isn't from the South jettisoned, even olive oil, while flavors and ingredients that were used way back are brought together again. Located in Charleston, South Carolina, Husk was one of Southern Living's Best Restaurants in the South in 2015. There's a daily menu that shows off the best Southern produce, with dishes like roasted oysters and smoky bacon cream, fried chicken skins and pepper mash mayo, and glazed pig's ear lettuce wrap with sweet vinegar marinated cucumber.

Air Force baller

AIRMAN 1ST CLASS CHRISTIAN SULLIVAN | MINOT AIR FORCE BASE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

MINOT AIR FORCE BASE, N.D. --
Waiting with the rest of the group, she calmly plays some one-on-one basketball listening for her name to be called. Finally, with only a few people left waiting, she hears her name called. She steps into the coaches office with all of the staff staring as she walked in. She looked at the emotionless faces as they delivered her fate.

Senior Airman Avery Hale, 5th Maintenance Squadron aerospace ground equipment journeyman, took a tough ride to get to this point.

"The first part was a training camp, and we had about 20 girls come try out," Hale said. "We had two and three-a-days so it got pretty rough. It was the first time I was excited to be back in Minot when it finally ended."

Being from Cleveland, Hale grew up playing basketball at an early age.

"My earliest memories are from family reunions playing basketball with my cousins," Hale said. "I was probably about 5-years-old when I was able to actually dribble a ball."

Hale had a few local heroes when it came to basketball.

"Early in life I had a cousin who was a really good basketball player, he was one of the main people I would look forward to seeing at family reunions to play against," Hale said. "Before LeBron played for Cleveland, when he played for St. Vincent-St. Mary, I started following him his senior year. I was already a Cavs fan, so when he got drafted there I became an even bigger fan. He's my guy when you talk about basketball or famous players, he's my favorite hands down."

Hale didn't take the most conventional route when she joined her school's boys' basketball team, but that didn't stop her from playing her hardest.

"From third grade to eighth grade I went to a charter school and they didn't have a women's basketball team, so I had to play with the boys," Hale said. "I felt included, there was no gap."

When Hale originally joined the Air Force it wasn't directly tied to playing basketball, but some of the aspects of the game is what made her want to join.

"I joined August 26, 2014," Hale said. "My main reason was I played basketball my whole life through high school and college and when I graduated college, I missed the team atmosphere and the discipline."

After enlisting, Hale slowly thought more and more about joining the Air Force team.

"It was in the back of my mind while I was in basic training," Hale said. "I didn't know how to do it but I knew I wanted to do it, when I got to tech school I learned a little bit more about the process of joining."

Hale didn't train as much as she wanted to before going to the training camp, and she said she regrets not practicing enough beforehand.

"I tried to play as much pick-up ball as possible," Hale said. "I wasn't hardcore in the gym like I should have been and I learned that when I got there."

Hale said she did not give her best effort during the first part of the tryout sessions, but a strong finish would prove beneficial. "Do I have to go home or not?" Hale asked her coaches after they were asking what shift she worked back at Minot, as if she had to go back to work.

With a sigh of relief, she was told her last day of practicing hard pushed her through and put her on the Air Force women's basketball team.

Hale was able to celebrate her personal victory with a couple of close family members over the phone.

"I told my mom after I left the gym," Hale said. "She told me my grandfather never doubted me and knew that I would make it."

That celebration was short-lived. Before the tournament started, Hale's world was shaken as she heard terrible news only a few days after her favorite team had just won the NBA championship.

"The day of the Cavs championship parade my grandfather passed away," Hale said. "During stretching before practice one of my teammates told me my phone was ringing and that it was my mom. When I answered my mom told me my grandfather had passed."

Although she was devastated by this news, she was able to go home and see her grandfather's funeral and be surrounded by loved ones. There was a silver lining though, as her spot on the team was secured. She was able to represent not only the Air Force in an Armed Forces tournament, but her family's name as well, something she knows made her grandfather proud.

Hockey roots lead to Air Force team success

SENIOR AIRMAN APRYL HALL | MINOT AIR FORCE BASE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

MINOT AIR FORCE BASE, N.D. -- He was just seven years old when he picked up a twig for the first time. Growing up in Rhode Island, hockey was all around him, but was never something he thought about getting involved with. It wasn't until a family friend suggested he give it a try when his passion for the game was discovered.

"My mom's best friend wanted me to join a roller hockey league with her nephew," said Senior Airman Jamal Holland, 5th Operations Support Squadron targets analyst. "After I played my first game, I fell in love with the sport."

For three years Holland continued playing roller hockey in Rhode Island. At 10-years-old, his family moved and he decided to step up his game.

"The moment for me that made me want to pursue the sport long-term was when I made the switch over to ice hockey when I moved to Texas," Holland said. "I had a natural skating ability when I first started playing, but just like anyone else, I had to work and practice to become proficient at it."

And work at it he did. Holland immersed himself in the sport. Over the years he became a force to be reckoned with on the ice. His 6-foot-4-inch frame stood just over 6 feet 6 inches on skates. Flying down the left wing of the rink, not many got in his way.

His senior year of high school, his talents led his team to a state championship. Upon graduating, he joined a junior league based out of British Columbia, where he played for six months. During his time in Canada, he began thinking about his future outside of hockey. He gravitated toward being part of a team, so naturally, he looked into the military.

"I joined the Air Force mainly to work on my education and travelling would be a good addition to that as well," Holland said.

After two years of being active duty and a little over a year stationed at Minot Air Force Base, North Dakota, Holland learned hockey could still be a big part of his life in the Air Force.

"Joining the Air Force team kind of came out of nowhere," Holland said. "I knew I would want to continue playing once I got to my first duty station, but I didn't think too much into playing in an Air Force jersey."

While playing on an adult league in Minot with some Airmen who already played on the Air Force team, Holland got his foot in the door. Halfway through the Air Force team's season, Holland was asked to play in a tournament with the team.

"That's when it all started," Holland said. "I've played in plenty of games, but the first time I had the Air Force jersey on, it felt like I was a part of something bigger. It was a total honor."

The team won that first tournament in Texas, which Holland admits is still one of his most memorable moments on the team he's been a part of for nearly two years now. When the team repeated the tournament victory the following year, he knew he was a part of something special.

With the success of tournament victories and big wins, Holland's time with the Air Force hockey team has been a whirlwind. He dons the Air Force jersey for big tournaments against other bases and Armed Forces tournaments. While the rush of being part of such a big honor is fun for Holland, he still loves the game he fell in love with at its simplest form.

"My favorite part of the sport is just being around my friends who have the same love for the sport that I do," Holland said.

For Holland, hockey is more than a sport. It's his way to be a part of the team he knew he wanted to be on when he first picked up a stick at 7-years-old.

Making the switch

SENIOR AIRMAN KRISTOFFER KAUBISCH
MINOT AIR FORCE BASE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

MINOT AIR FORCE BASE, N.D. -- The transition from active duty to civilian can be challenging, but also rewarding. Whether a person is retiring, separating early, palace chasing or at the end of their enlistment, the transition into becoming a civilian can be difficult if you're not prepared.

Jeremy Smith, 5th Security Forces Squadron Combat Arms instructor, joined the United States Air Force in 2009. He made his way up the ranks, working different positions within security forces before submitting his package for Combat Arms.

"I started in CATM in December of 2012 at Hickam Air Force Base, Hawaii, my first base. I have always wanted to be a teacher, so I thought that CATM would be the best way to do it," said Smith. "I would be able to do two of the things that I enjoy doing--shooting guns and teaching people how to shoot."

Smith came to Minot in 2013, still in the Combat Arms section. Although he moved to a new base, he was glad to still be doing the job that he loved.

"My favorite part about the job would be someone telling me they aren't good at firing, but then I teach them the right way to fire and they are willing to learn," said Smith. "Seeing the excitement in their face after they fire, that's what I love most."

In 2014, Smith decided to palace chase from active service and go to the Reserve so he could be closer to his father.

He did a year in the reserves at Niagara Falls Air Reserve Station, New York. After the Reserve, Smith transitioned into the civilian life in 2015, but it wasn't easy.

"The transition was hard; it didn't go as smooth as I wanted it to. If I could give anyone advice for when they get out or palace chase, it would be to make sure that you have a job lined up for when you get out," said Smith. "I was jobless for about two or three months, so I fell on hard times. As soon as the civilian spot at Minot opened up for CATM, I just went right back into my old routine."

Smith explained that the biggest difference between active duty and civilian CATM is that he doesn't have any troops to supervise. However, they go to him as if he were still a staff sergeant in the Air Force and ask him questions because they know he is knowledgeable about the job.

"The main difference is that they wear a uniform and I don't," said Smith.

Now as a civilian in Combat Arms, Smith continues to do what he loves.

"This is my passion, it is the best job I've ever had. Coming back to Minot was easy decision for me, it is better than any other place that I have worked," said Smith. "I've been to Germany, Guam, Hawaii, Texas, Alaska, all those places. This has to be the best place that I have been to, the people make it."

Ready, reliable and energy efficient.

Just like a home or business, the Minot Air Force Base is looking for ways to save energy. Verendrye Electric Cooperative is proud to help. We are installing LED lights on base that use about half the power of the old ones. Whether it's for the Air Force, a home or business, we can help you decide how to invest in energy conservation. That's the power of human connections.

Kenmare Military Appreciation Event

AIRMAN 1ST CLASS
J.T. ARMSTRONG
PUBLIC AFFAIRS

MINOT AIR FORCE BASE, N.D.

-- The Kenmare High School football team will be hosting a military appreciation day football game on Aug. 26, 2016 to honor veterans and their families.

"This game is a small token of our appreciation to recognize the sacrifice and service of our veterans," said Matt Hove, Kenmare High School football coach. "I would like the players in this football program to understand the sacrifice that people before them have given so that they can be free to simply play the game of football."

The event will include kid's laser tag, tailgating and fireworks. Minot Air Force Base's Honor Guard will be presenting the colors before the game.

The purpose of the event is to thank local veterans and show the local community's support.

"Minot is right down the road from Kenmare," said Hove. "I wanted to give active duty members an opportunity to come out to our small community in Kenmare and experience something most people can relate to--high school football."

Hove, having a wife that is stationed at Minot, a mother and step-father in the Air Force and a grandfather that served in the Navy during World War II, understands how difficult it can be for young military members adjusting to a new community.

The sense of community between the base and local area benefits the veterans and the team in more ways than one.

"Last season, we had multiple flight and squadron commanders speak to our team at our team dinners before the games," said Hove. "They helped play a role in turning this program around with their stories of inspiration and motivation."

Members from Minot AFB will be attending the team dinners to motivate the team members again this year.

The Kenmare Honkers will be facing the Tioga Pirates, who they beat last year 44-21.

If military members wish to be mentioned during the event or reserve their game seating and a commemorative program, they should contact Hove at hove.kenmare@gmail.com

It's a process

AIRMAN 1ST CLASS JESSICA WEISSMAN | MINOT AIR FORCE BASE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

MINOT AIR FORCE BASE, N.D. --

Returning from deployment, Airmen meet at the Airman and Family Readiness center for one of the final steps on their post-deployment checklist.

Trying to stay awake from a drastic time change, Airmen blink repeatedly and shake their heads to wake themselves up for the upcoming briefing.

Master Sgt. Eric Alvarez, NCO in charge of Airman and Family Readiness, briefs countless Airmen every month to ensure they know the resources available for them at Minot Air Force Base, North Dakota.

After welcoming Airmen back home, Alvarez presents a relaxed environment asking Airmen about their time overseas before beginning the post-deployment brief.

"Returning home from deployment is not a change of command, where you are in your front yard being presented a flag by your wife or children, it's a process," said Alvarez.

In a room of 22 Airmen, almost half had just recently returned from their first deployment.

"For those of you returning from your first deployment and are unaware, we are here to inform you of the resources available to you and your family," said Alvarez.

Many organizations on base attended this routine briefing to relay information about their services.

Airman 1st Class Sidney Shaw, a mental health technician assigned to the 5th Medical Operations Squadron, explained to Airmen that it is important for Airmen to seek positive alternatives for stress relief, like improving fitness, instead of turning to alcohol or drugs.

"It is very important that we take care of ourselves and other Airmen in our squadrons," she said. Shaw suggested Airmen focus on adapting their sleep schedule.

"Adapting proper sleep hygiene is important," she said. "A great routine is to ensure you do the same things every night before you lay down in bed. It prepares your body for sleep quicker than as if you were to just do random things before bed."

Chaplains, Public Health, Mental Health and the Sexual Assault Response Coordinator all proposed their resources to the Airmen.

"You name it, we got it," said Alvarez. "And if we do not have the proper resources, we will point you in the right direction."

Whether it's your first deployment, or your sixth deployment, the Airman and Family Readiness center is here to ensure your homecoming is an easy and enjoyable progression.

Some IDs may be invalid starting Aug. 15

TONI SMITH | SECRETARY OF THE AIR FORCE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

WASHINGTON (AFNS) -- Individuals will no longer be able to access Air Force installations with a state-issued identification card or driver's license from Minnesota, Missouri, Washington or American Samoa beginning Aug. 15.

This new change aligns the Air Force's installation access policy with requirements of the Real ID Act, which focuses on improving the reliability of state-issued identification documents and helps prevent a person's ability to evade detection by using a fraudulent form of ID.

While ID's that do not meet security and data-collection guidelines will not be accepted, alternate forms of identification will be allowed. Some of the more common alternatives include a valid U.S. or foreign government issued passport, an employment authorization document that contains a photograph, or ID cards issued by federal state or local government agencies that include a photo and biographic information.

According to Air Force officials, all individuals attempting to gain access to an Air Force installation without a Defense Department ID card will be subject to a routine background check.

Those who do not have the accepted documentation for installation access will not be permitted to enter the base without an approved escort.

"If an individual is escorted, the sponsor is required to be physically present with the individual for the duration of the visit to the base," said Lt. Col. Tony Castillo, the branch chief of police services. "Installation commanders may still deny access and issuance of access credentials if their background check determines the individual represents a threat or negatively impacts the safety or security of an installation's personnel or resources."

Most life changing experience

Joining the Air Force, and going from being with family to being with people I didn't know, but became my second family.

Where do you see yourself in 10 years

Working on the railroad as a train engineer.

If you could have one special talent, what would it be Better multitasking ability.

My name is SSgt Keith Hess, I am the new Air Force Recruiter here in Minot. Before being selected for this Special Duty, I was a part of Vehicle Maintenance for the last 8 years. I have been stationed here at Minot AFB from 2009 to 2013, and Little Rock AFB, AR from 2013 to 2016. If any of your dependents need any help becoming a part of the World's Greatest Air Force, I am here to help. I also encourage all of you while you are out in the local community to be positively promoting the Air Force and inspiring young folks to want to Fly, Fight and Win. My office is located in the Dakota Square Mall. My contact information is below, please feel free to contact me with any questions. 2400 10th St SW Minot, ND 58701 701-240-4179 Cell 701-839-4179 Office 701-839-3313 Fax Keith.hess.1@us.af.mil www.airforce.com
