MWDs take a 'bite' out of training

MINOT AIR FORCE BASE, N.D. -- Military working dog handlers use specially trained dogs to maintain the security for military bases and personnel. Handlers work with the MWDs on a daily basis, training and instructing the dogs to find various items. Training is important to build a strong cohesive bond between the handler and dog in order to be ready for real world situations.

LIGHTING THE PATHWAY OF FREEDOM

Teamwork makes the dream work

SENIOR AIRMAN CHRISTIAN SULLIVAN | MINOT AIR FORCE BASE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

MINOT AIR FORCE BASE, N.D. -- When it comes to safety, there can never be too many helping hands, such is the case when the Minot Air Force Base fire department invited several other local fire departments to receive missile field response training Feb. 24-25, 2017.

"We hosted a North Dakota Fire Association training class for our mutual aid partners, which educates them on how to handle missile alert facility and launch facility mishaps, as well as any other hazards they come across," said Matt Whitehead, 5th Civil Engineer Squadron fire department operator.

The 5th CES fire department coordinated the training to help their local brothers in red preparedness to work hand-in-hand with them if needed.

"We took them to a launch facility trainer on base, and provided them education on different equipment like helicopters and Bearcats," Whitehead said.

Jamie Reese, West Dunn Fire Department firefighter from Killdeer, North Dakota, was one of the many local firemen who participated in the training.

"We went through emergency responses for missile silos and helicopters," Reese said, "We trained on responding to emergencies if an Air Force apparatus comes near our area."

This is not the first time the 5th CES has trained with their partners, but a first time training on base.

"This is the second year we've held the training, last year we hosted it at the North Dakota State Fairgrounds," Whitehead said. "This year we decided to have it here for better access to our equipment to enhance training."

Reese understands the importance for his fire department, as well as the surrounding departments, to train and be ready for an emergency.

"We have missile silos and the Air Force in our backyard, so it's nice to meet these guys and see how they do things and show them how we do things," Reese said. "I know I learned a lot of things, it was a really good training."

Although they don't necessarily represent the same team, White understands the importance of working together to keep the surrounding towns, base and all of its assets safe.

"It's very important to we meet with other fire departments because it gives them an idea of what to look for in an emergency and helps everyone stay safe," Whitehead said.

How to be a good sponsor

SENIOR AIRMAN KRISTOFFER KAUBISCH | MINOT AIR FORCE BASE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

MINOT AIR FORCE BASE, N.D. -- You've been assigned as a sponsor, but aren't sure what to expect or the proper steps to take.

Sponsor responsibilities are official duties; it's also an opportunity to shape someone's perception of their new base and the Air Force.

Here are tips to help make your sponsorship go smoothly during an Airman's transition.

Goals when helping a newcomer

- Ensure they feel like members of Team Minot before their arrival

- Ensure them and their families have a positive first impression

- Ensure they are mission ready

Once appointed as a sponsor, you should make contact with the newcomer within three duty days.

Communication is the most critical step in the sponsorship process.

Tips when making Initial Contact "The Telephone Call"

- Ensure you call within the first 3 days of being notified of your sponsorship. Continue to call until you reach the individual

- Be honest;

constructive and positive

- Introduce yourself by making the newcomer feel welcomed

- It isn't enough to say, "Let me know what you need." Be PROACTIVE!

- Find out their needs and tailor your assistance to them

- Ask the newcomer to keep you informed of any changes in plans

- Provide them with your contact information along with their supervisor, first sergeant, commander and support staff information

What you should ask when making initial contact

- Departure date

- Anticipated

arrival date

- Mode of transportation to incoming base

- If doing

recruiter's assistance program,

what is the address

- Marital status

- Whether they are living on or off

base

- Is assistance

with transportation

required?

Don't despair if this is your first time as a sponsor;

there's plenty of help available. Just remember, be an active, responsive

sponsor. If you don't know how to respond to a particular issue,

get help from your supervisor,

first sergeant,

commander or the

Airman and Family

Readiness Center.

Keep in mind that a sponsor can be like being a friend.

To understand your basic responsibility

as a sponsor, simply think of the kind of help you would want if you were making a move.

Put Your Best Fork Forward During March, National Nutrition Month

JULIE GARDEN-ROBINSON FOOD AND NUTRITION SPECIALIST | NDSU EXTENSION SERVICE

Do you make every bite count? Try these tips to add more nutrition to your day.

Do you include a variety of vegetables on your plate? Plan meals to include different vegetable groups throughout the week: Dark green, red and orange, beans and peas, and starchy vegetables. Stir chopped spinach into scrambled eggs or soup. Roast carrots for an easy side dish. Add black beans to a bagged salad for a quick meal.

Do you choose naturally sweet fruit for snacks and salads or include them in main dishes? Top your morning toast or cereal with sliced or chopped fruit. Make your own flavored yogurt by mixing fresh or frozen fruit into plain yogurt.

Do you make half of your grains whole grains? Check food labels on bread or cereal boxes to see if the first ingredient is whole grain, such as whole wheat or whole-grain oats. Cut your favorite snack mix with a whole grain, such as popcorn. If new to whole-grain pasta, try it with flavorful sauces to help you get used to the change.

Do you mix up your choices in the protein group? Families spend the largest percentage of their food budget on meat, poultry and seafood, per a recent report. Replace half (or all) of the meat in a recipe with beans or legumes for a healthful way to save money. Try lentils in burgers, white beans in lasagna or spaghetti, or black beans in burritos.

Do you choose low- and fat-free dairy items to get the most nutrition for your calories? Make a dip for raw veggies or whole-grain crackers from low-fat plain yogurt and taco or ranch seasoning.

Put your best fork forward by choosing a variety of healthful foods this month and beyond. Visit www.ag.ndsu.edu/foodwise for recipes and more tips.

March is Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month – Know Your Options, Get Screened

NORTH DAKOTA DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH

March is Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month, and the North Dakota Colorectal Cancer Roundtable, co-led by the North Dakota Department of Health and American Cancer Society, encourages all North Dakota residents age 50 and older be screened for colorectal cancer.

Colorectal cancer is the nation's second leading cause of cancer related deaths. However, it is one of only a few cancers that can be prevented. Through proper colorectal cancer screening, doctors can find and remove polyps, hidden growths, in the colon before they become cancerous. Removing polyps can prevent cancer altogether.

"Colorectal cancer is a major public health problem, and adults age 50 and older should be screened regularly. We have found that many people aren't getting tested because they don't believe they are at risk; they don't understand there are testing options; or they don't think they can afford it," said Dr. Fadel Nammour, MD, Gastroenterologist and Chair of the N.D. Colorectal Cancer Roundtable. "The truth is, the vast majority of cases of colorectal cancer occur in people age 50 and older. Colorectal cancer in its' early stages usually has no symptoms, so everyone 50 and older should get tested. There are several screening options – even take home options – available. Plus, many public and private insurance plans cover colorectal cancer screening, and there may be local resources available to help those who are uninsured."

While colorectal cancer incidence rates have dropped 30 percent in the U.S. over the last 10 years among adults 50 and older, it is still the second leading cause of cancer death in the U.S., despite being highly preventable, detectable and treatable. In fact, in 2015 in the U.S., 132,700 cases of colorectal cancer were diagnosed.

It is estimated that 380 people in North Dakota will be diagnosed with colorectal cancer in 2017, and 140 will die from the disease.

"These statistics could look much better if more people were screened for colorectal cancer," stated Joyce Sayler, Community Partnership Coordinator, Division of Cancer Prevention and Control at the North Dakota

Department of Health. Approximately 4 in 10 North Dakota residents are not up to date with colorectal cancer screening, and the state has historically fallen in the lowest quartile for screening rates nationwide.

Nationally, the American Cancer Society and Centers for Disease Control and Prevention are leading an effort to raise the nation's colorectal cancer screening rates to 80 percent by the year 2018. More than 1,000 partners have signed onto the goal nationwide, including many healthcare organizations across North Dakota.

"We are asking all members of our community to come together, and help us by getting screened and talking to your friends and family who are over 50 years of age about getting screened," said Shannon Bacon, Health Systems Manager, American Cancer Society North Dakota. "Together, we can help to eliminate colorectal cancer as a major public health problem."

PRAIRIE ADVENTURES

BY PATRICIA STOCKDILL

"They couldn't take direct law enforcement action but they could be 'eyes in the field.'"

– N.D. Game and Fish Department Enforcement Division Chief Bob Timian describing the role non-wardens played during Dakota Access Pipeline (DAPL) protests across the state during hunting season when wardens were supporting DAPL law enforcement efforts.

Unless the alleged perpetrators of two wildlife crimes venture back to North Dakota, it's unlikely they will have their day in court for their misdemeanor charges.

Caught on graphic video and still photos, the two cases "generated a lot of buzz," N.D. Game and Fish Department Enforcement Division Chief Bob Timian described. The agency released the still photos and videos to the public in late 2016 in an effort to get assistance in identifying those involved.

It worked.

But the public's role started even before the video went viral. Concerned citizens sent still photos to the enforcement division of two men skinning an untagged deer, Timian said. After the still photos were made public someone sent wardens a video showing a deer brutally knifed and suffocated in the Missouri River mud and muck.

All four men are charged with illegal possession of a big game animal, a misdemeanor under North Dakota law. They won't be extradited back to the state because the charges are misdemeanors, Timian explained.

While they may not pay for their alleged crimes unless they return to North Dakota and are convicted, Timian stressed the key point in bringing charges is that people cared enough about wildlife and the situation to take action – first by notifying Game and Fish officials of the photos and video and by providing information once it became public. "You can't investigate something you don't know about," he added.

The two cases aren't the first time wardens received tips from photos but these two cases drew their share of public attention.

Game and Fish Department wardens had an enforcement presence at Dakota Access Pipeline (DAPL) protest sites since September, Timian continued. The number of officers at any given time varied depending on the situation but the agency committed to assisting with a minimum of three wardens daily assigned to at least 12-hour shifts from September into mid-March.

The agency also provided boats, snowmobiles, and all-terrain vehicles, as well as pilot and airplane.

Compared to other state agencies, such as the N. D. Highway Patrol, several county sheriff's departments, and the North Dakota National Guard, the Game and Fish Department's role – and expenses – weren't nearly as extensive.

A vast majority of the Game and Fish Department's Enforcement Division is funded by hunter and angler license sales. Only boating law enforcement receives a small portion of outside funding, Timian explained, from the U.S. Coast Guard and the N.D. State Water Commission. The Commission's funding is used specifically for Missouri River boating law enforcement.

The N.D. Department of Emergency Services has reimbursed the Game and Fish Department's Enforcement Division monthly for its expenses, Timian added, so hunters and anglers won't bear the cost of the agency's DAPL enforcement involvement.

Game and Fish Department enforcement involvement during the protests occurred during the peak of hunting season, which meant at least three wardens daily couldn't be in the field in their districts. Other Game and Fish staff went afield in department vehicles as "eyes in the field," Timian said.

3/4 cup heavy cream
1 cup granulated sugar
3/4 tablespoon vanilla extract
1 (12 ounce) can evaporated milk
2 eggs, lightly beaten
3/4 cup Irish Whiskey Caramel Sauce (see below), divided use
Approximately 10 cups cubed French bread, (cut into 1/2 inch cubes)
1/2 cup raisins (or chocolate chips if you don't like raisins) cinnamon and sugar for topping (about 1 tablespoon cinnamon and 2 tablespoons sugar mixed to combine)

FOR THE WHISKEY-CARAMEL SAUCE:

1 1/2 cups granulated sugar
2/3 cup water
1/4 cup salted butter, cubed
2 ounces cream cheese, cubed
1/4 cup Irish Whiskey
1/4 cup milk

INSTRUCTIONS:

Combine sugar and water in a small saucepan over medium-high heat. Stir until the sugar completely dissolves. Stop stirring and allow to simmer until mixture is golden (about 17 minutes). DO NOT STIR! Remove from heat. Carefully add butter and cream cheese, whisking constantly until all clumps are dissolved. CAUTION! Mixture will be very hot and can bubble up during this time. Stir in whiskey and milk. Mixture will bubble a bit at this step as well. Set aside.

FOR THE BREAD PUDDING: In a large bowl, combine heavy cream, sugar, vanilla extract, evaporated milk, eggs, and 2/3 cup caramel whiskey sauce in a large bowl. Stir well with a whisk. Add bread cubes, using a spatula to push down and make sure each piece of bread is coated. Cover and allow to sit in the fridge for at least 30 minutes to soak up all the goodness. Preheat oven to 350°F. If using a casserole dish, spray a 13 x 9-inch baking dish with nonstick spray, or spray each ramekin with nonstick spray (approximately 6 ramekins). Pour bread mixture into prepared casserole dish, or divide between the prepared ramekins. Sprinkle top with cinnamon and sugar mixture and raisins or chocolate chips. Bake in preheated oven for 35 minutes or until set. Serve warm with more caramel-whiskey sauce.

SEATTLE GLASS ARTIST COMES TO MINOT

Since the late 1980's Michael Dupille has worked extensively with glass, having developed and refined a technique for "painting with glass" that uses crushed glass (frit) in combination kiln fired methods. Teaching around the world, Michael is now coming to Minot to teach two classes at Margie's Studio in downtown Minot.

"Michael was one of the first instructors I was able to take classes with in 2003" says Margie Bolton, owner of Margie's Studio. "He is an excellent teacher, and his techniques are taught in a way that anyone can leave with a new ability in fused glass."

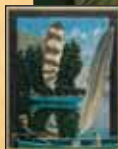

Classes with Michael are driven in a way that any level glass enthusiasts can attend. He will be teaching two classes, Fritography with a Twist, on April 21 & 22; and Watercolor Effect, on April 23 & 24. People should call Margie's Art Glass Studio at 701-837-8555 to reserve a spot.

The fees to attend these classes are $375 each with all materials supplied.
