AIRMAN 1ST CLASS DILLON J. AUDIT
5TH BOMB WING PUBLIC AFFAIRS

MINOT AIR FORCE BASE, N.D. -- Broken glass from the windows of abandoned houses lay on the street and bulks of trash covered whatever patches of grass were left, this was the young boy's view growing up in the inner city of Chicago, Illinois.

"I have seen people fight, get shot and people becoming drugs addicts," said Toy Airman 1st Class DuBois Toy, 5th Logistics Readiness Squadron vehicle maintainer. "If you were in the wrong place at the wrong time you could get jumped, robbed or worse."

Toy felt like an outcast. He stayed home most days and couldn't explore his interests or learn about himself due to his environment.

"I was always the outcast where I'm from, or at least the area I was in," said Toy. "I was into different things than other people in my school. I also dressed differently than everyone."

Tired of Chicago's inner city violence, Toy's parents moved the family to a better neighborhood in Dolton, Illinois. Where, Toy made friends much easier.

In this safer environment, Toy tried different sports and met friends with different interests, one in particular who just started to skateboard. Interested in the sport Toy bought his own board and joined his new friend.

"When we skated I enjoyed it because it felt like a challenge, we were in constant competition with each other," said Toy. "That's when I started developing a passion for skateboarding."

This passion served as an outlet for the stressors of everyday life and a way to interact with people from all walks of life.

"I found that skateboarding is the most fun, diverse and sociable sport out of all of them," he said.

As Toy got older, he witnessed the skater lifestyle and began to see skateboarding as a culture.

"Your mind just opens up to how diverse it is," said Toy. "You meet tons of different people, overall it was super fun. I wanted to continue to live that lifestyle."

After high school, Toy wanted to experience new things. College didn't seem like the right fit, Toy said. Open to options for his future, he remembered his grandmother was in the military. This possibility piqued an interest.

"My grandmother was in the military and told me that she met all a lot people and had all these different experiences," Toy said. "I thought, 'Would I still be able to be myself in the military and have the same lifestyle?'"

Hoping for a similar diversity and culture in the Air Force, he took a chance and joined August 16, 2016.

"Basic training was really tough for me because I wasn't used to military discipline," said Toy. "Sometimes, it was super hard to the point where I felt like quitting."

Even with the stressors of his new life, Toy didn't give up on the military, skateboarding or himself. While in technical training, he said skateboarding continued to serve as a stress reliever. That mentality carried forward to his first duty station at Minot Air Force Base, North Dakota.

"Skateboarding makes me happy and it's definitely a good workout," said Toy. "It's a different place, a different world."

Toy skateboards to work every day, practices as much as he can and always looks for new friends to share the culture with.

"It's my passion, I have an emotional attachment to it," said Toy. "Everyone has those times when they have troubles, and I went through a lot of that in my childhood. For a very long time the only family I really felt I had were the people at the skate park."

20th AF aims to increase reserve footprint across missile wings

F.E. WARREN AIR FORCE BASE, Wyo. --

Colonel Erich Novak, 20th Air Force mobilization assistant, discussed the decision and efforts being made to provide officers, in the 20th AF missile wings, the choice to continue to serve as a reserve Airman on F.E. Warren Air Force Base, Sept. 29, 2017.

According to Novak, every year the reserve command holds a staff-to-staff meeting with each major command, and in March they met with Air Force Global Strike Command. Air Force Global Strike Command leadership requested Novak aid in increasing the reserve footprint throughout the missile wings.

With Maj. Gen. Anthony Cotton's support, Novak has tackled the task wholeheartedly with his primary focus on the 13N, nuclear and missile operations career field.

"In the past, we have had a handful of positions with no clear [reserve] career path," said Novak. "The first duty the general tasked me with, was to build a 13N career development plan."

Since the plan's approval in April, Novak has focused his efforts on obtaining and building 13N reserve slots for captain through colonel across the three missile wings. This will ensure the officers hired have a career path allowing for development leading to promotion.

Novak views this manning progression as the perfect opportunity for missileers unable to continue on active duty and a benefit to the Air Force in general.

"Due to circumstances, whether it is medical, family or work oriented, there are a lot of people who cannot or do not desire to continue full time," said Novak. "For the ones who still want to serve our country, we are providing that opportunity and allowing active duty to reach back and use these highly experienced [reserve] Airmen."

First lieutenant Megan Hunter, 319th Missile Squadron missile crew commander, shared her reasons for making the decision to leave active duty.

"There comes a time when you just can't think about moving again," said Hunter. "I want to continue to serve my country and I want to stay in the local area, so I felt like now is a good time to transition to the Guard or Reserves. I think the Reserves is a great option for those that are not completely ready to say goodbye to the military life."

The effort to obtain missileer reserve slots is gaining traction and continues to move forward. All three missile wing commanders have given full support and have referred officers to Novak for hire.

Novak's next focus is to simultaneously pursue other positions in various career fields such as intelligence, security forces, civil engineer and munitions and missile maintenance.

"My job is to retain those highly skilled, experienced and dedicated sharp individuals to augment the active duty to further the mission," said Novak. "In the reserves, we want to be highly selective to ensure that we are always value added."

For interested Airmen, the first step to pursuing this career path is to contact the base in-service recruiter. Novak is the senior reservist in 20th AF and welcomes those who are interested in contacting him with questions.

Blended Retirement System Opt-In training now available to all Airmen

KAT BAILEY | AIR FORCE PERSONNEL CENTER PUBLIC AFFAIRS

JOINT BASE SAN ANTONIO-RANDOLPH, Texas (AFNS) -- The Defense

Department will implement the new Blended Retirement System next year. While no one needs to make a decision until Jan. 1, 2018, all Airmen should take advantage of training and informational resources to research their options during the remainder of 2017.

Airmen eligible for the new Blended Retirement System began receiving email notifications in February from myPers to ensure they receive correct information regarding their benefits to make the decision best suited for their individual needs.

The Opt-In course is designed to provide sufficient information for eligible Airmen to make an educated decision about their retirement system. However, Airmen are highly encouraged to discuss their personal situations with a personal financial counselor at the Airman and Family Readiness Center. The Blended Retirement System Opt-in training is available on Advanced Distributed Learning Service under the "Selected Force Training" drop down menu.

Only those active Airmen who, as of Dec. 31, 2017, have served fewer than 12 years, or reserve Airmen who have accrued fewer than 4,320 retirement points, will have the option of electing BRS or remaining in the legacy retirement system. These Airmen will be required to take the Opt-In training and should provide a copy of the training certificate to their Unit Training Manager upon completion.

The Air Force recommends BRS training for all Airmen and encourages them to take the Opt-In course. Many leaders may not be eligible to opt-in to BRS themselves, but still need to be knowledgeable about the new system to understand what their junior Airmen should know as they prepare to make their decisions in 2018. The leader training course is also available to those without a Common Access Card - to include family members - via an alternate website.

BRS information is continuously updated on myPers. Click "Retirement" from any military landing page. In addition, a live chat feature on BRS is available for Airmen. To chat live with a Total Force Service Center representative, go to the page and allow about 30 to 60 seconds to enable a representative to come online.

B-52S ASSURE ALLIES IN EUROPE

A B-52 Stratofortress taxis for a takeoff at Fairford Royal Air Force Base, Sept. 22, 2017. U.S. Strategic Command bomber forces regularly conduct combined theater security cooperation engagements with allies and partners, demonstrating the U.S. capability to command, control and conduct bomber missions across the globe. Bomber missions demonstrate the credibility and flexibility of the military's forces to address today's complex, dynamic and volatile global security environment.

Why Credit Unions Are Worth Celebrating

ARTICLE PROVIDED BY WWW.CUNA.ORG | CREDIT UNION NATIONAL ASSOCIATION

In 1924, Roy Bergengren, one of the architects of the credit union movement, reflected on what a credit union can do for people.

“The credit union is, in fact, a bridge,” Bergengren wrote in the inaugural issue of “The Bridge,” the official newsletter of the American credit union movement, which was then in its infancy. “It may be the bridge over which the tenant farmer travels the wide gap that separates him from ownership. It may be the way that opens the great land of opportunity to the wage worker, who finds his savings the ‘open sesame’ to broader possibilities for himself and his family.”

Twenty-four years later, in 1948, credit unions in America, and later around the world, began celebrating the philosophy and achievements of credit unions every year on the third Thursday in October. The theme for International Credit Union Day 2017 is “Dreams Thrive Here,” harkens back to Bergengren’s sentiment, and it’s meant to serve as a reminder of how effective credit unions like North Star Community Credit Union and Town & Country Credit Union are at helping all people chase and achieve their biggest dreams in life.

This is because, unlike other financial institutions, credit unions are not-for-profit, so their primary purpose isn’t to score record profits in order to cut distant shareholders bigger dividends checks. Rather, the primary purpose of credit unions is—and always has been—to be of service to their members. That means you.

This people-first philosophy doesn’t just mean better service, it translates into a better financial deal for consumers. Credit unions, on average, offer higher rates of return on savings accounts, lower rates on loans, and fewer and lower fees than other financial institutions.

Through the first half of 2016, according to data collected by the Credit Union National Association, credit union members saved $9.3 billion over what they would have paid at banks: $1.9 billion through higher yields on savings, $1.2 billion on lower fees, and $6.2 billion on lower loan rates.

So join us at any of our branches on Oct. 19 to celebrate ICU Day. North Star Community Credit Union located at 210 Summit Drive on Minot Air Force Base will be holding open house from 10am to 3pm. And Town and Country Credit Union located at 615 S Broadway St, Minot will have coffee and cookies throughout the day.

Pumpkin French Toast

INGREDIENTS:

- 3/4 cup milk
- 1/2 cup pumpkin puree
- 4 eggs
- 2 Tbsp packed light-brown sugar
- 1 tsp vanilla extract
- 1 tsp ground cinnamon
- 1/4 tsp ground nutmeg
- 1/4 tsp ground ginger
- 9 slices Texas toast (or other white bread such as Challah or French bread)
- Butter, for griddle

INSTRUCTIONS:

Preheat an electric griddle to 350 degrees (a non-stick skillet set over medium heat also works fine). In a mixing bowl whisk together milk, pumpkin puree, eggs, brown sugar, vanilla, cinnamon, nutmeg and ginger until well combined. Pour into a shallow dish. Butter griddle and dip bread into egg mixture (allowing a few seconds for it to absorb mixture. I also squeeze gently to soak the mixture to center), then rotate and coat opposite side. Transfer to griddle and cook until golden brown on bottom, then lift, butter griddle once more and flip french toast to opposite side and cook until golden brown. Serve warm with butter and maple syrup.

A canvas of possibilities

AIRMAN 1ST CLASS ALYSSA M. AKERS | MINOT AIR FORCE BASE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

MINOT AIR FORCE BASE, N.D. --

A vast, infinite blue covered the landscape with nothing but a small white line breaking the ever-changing shades. With a few simple, delicate brushstrokes, the sea began to flow off the canvas, detailing soft rushes of water.

Millions of these images exist, but each their own as only the artist knows how their mind will transfer to canvas.

"It isn't the same as what others see, it is my own impression," said Senior Airman Elihar David Toledo, 5th Medical Operations Squadron bioenvironmental engineering technician. "My art evolved from watching many different people's style and creating my own."

At the age of three, Toledo could sit and watch artists for hours.

"Instead of watching TV, I could watch somebody make something out of nothing," said Toledo. "The more I watched, the more I wanted to paint myself."

He first started drawing his toys. Through watching others and sometimes mimicking their work, Toledo grew to love art.

From then on, Toledo tried different mediums and styles, favoring acrylic and pastel for their vibrant nature and ability to convey moods.

"I can pretty much bring out how I feel on a canvas," he said. "If I'm feeling stressed, I do a lot of sharp edges or explosions with the paint to release everything on the canvas. I want people to feel the mood I was in."

With his artistic ability, Toledo planned to attend art school and even received a scholarship for his choice school. Before the school year started though, he had a change of heart.

"I figured why not join the Air Force, travel the world, experience some things and gain as much knowledge as I could," said Toledo. "The Air Force has helped me achieve a higher education, and I feel like a better artist with my experiences than I would if stuck in one place at school."

Through painting, Toledo has developed sharper skills, including better attention-to-detail.

"Toledo has always been able to find the things other technicians might have missed," said Staff Sgt. Guillermo Gonzalez, 5th MDOS NCO in charge of occupational health and industrial hygiene. "He is very dedicated when he identifies problems to fix."

Patience and dedication are also required to complete his work.

"Some of those paintings can take anywhere from a couple of hours to days," said Toledo. "I have to be really patient to get the best final project."

"When he works, I notice a switch flip in his brain," added Gonzalez. "He realizes in order to get a good product out – whether in his art or Air Force job – you have to put in good enough effort."

Not too long ago, Toledo started drawing chief master sergeants upon request of the Minot Chief's Group. On Oct. 3, he gifted the group his 17th chief portrait, featuring Chief Master Sgt. Kaleth Wright, the 18th Chief Master Sgt. of the Air Force.

"I didn't think I was going to be doing 17 portraits," said Toledo. "Knowing that these paintings will be part of Minot Air Force Base's history is amazing."

These portraits line the walls of a room in the Dakota Inn Dining Facility.

The majestic sea continues to flow, waves bringing in a large, wooden ship. Only Toledo knows what else the canvas will hold.
