Homeschoolers Win National Award

MARIT HEIDBREDER | DIRECTOR OF MINOT CLASSICAL CONVERSATIONS HOMESCHOOL PROGRAM

omeschool students Grace Alvarez (pictured left); daughter of Eric (MSgt) and Sommer Alvarez, and Grace Guest (pictured right); daughter of Todd (Lt. Col.) and Charlotte Guest, both earned the prestigious title of "Memory Master" on Monday April 23rd at Minot First Church of the Nazarene. These talented young ladies participate in the Minot Classical Conversations homeschool program and worked arduously in order to achieve this award.

"Memory Master" is an honor bestowed to students who have mastered all the memory work learned through the national Classical Conversations (CC) homeschooling curriculum. CC combines classical learning with a biblical worldview and believes the ultimate purpose of education is to know God and to make Him known. The memory work for Classical Conversation's Cycle 3 covers seven subject areas: geography, Latin, math, English grammar, science, history and timeline.

Classical Conversations defines mastery as the storing of information to long-term memory, which means the students do not cram for a single test and then move on. Instead they "pound" each fact into their brain like a "peg" through memorization, which later they will be able to "hang" information on as they expand their knowledge and understanding of each topic. At the end of the year, students who wish to obtain the Memory Master award must accurately recite all 24 weeks of information (for all 7 subjects) on four different occasions to four different people to assure complete mastery. The facts they committed to memory include -*161 events and people in a chronological timeline

*24 history sentences with dates to add depth to our timeline (including the Preamble to the U.S. Constitution and the Bill of Rights)

*45 U.S. Presidents, in order

*120 locations and geographic features in North America (emphasis - the United States)

*24 science facts (including the first 12 elements of the periodic table by number, element and mass and the parts of 8 body systems)

*Latin rules and vocabulary (including the text of John 1:1-7 in Latin and English)

*English grammar facts (including the principal parts of 11 irregular verbs)

*Multiplication tables/ skip counting up to 15x15, common squares and cubes as well as basic geometry formulas, algebraic math laws and unit conversions

Parents who are interested in the Minot chapter of Classical Conversations may find out more at: www. classical conversations. com or by emailing Director Marit Heidbreder at theheidbreders@ yahoo.com. Classical Conversations is also bringing their free Parent Practicum training to Minot this summer at Our Redeemer's Church July 24-26th, 2018 for those interested in learning more about homeschooling classically, register at www.parentpracticum.com

Little guy, big fixed heart: part II

AIRMAN 1ST CLASS KATHRYN R.C. REAVES | 20TH FIGHTER WING PUBLIC AFFAIRS

HAW AIR FORCE BASE, S.C. (AFNS) -- When Ashley and Tech. Sgt. Ben Mockovciak, 372nd Training Squadron Detachment 202 F-16 tactical aircraft maintenance instructor, learned their son Noah, barely one month old, had experienced a heart attack, their world was turned upside down.

Sitting in a room at the Palmetto Health Children's Hospital after the early morning rush in an ambulance, the family was faced with an uncertain future.

The hospital's doctors made a plan to monitor the infant overnight before he was transferred to Medical University of South Carolina for more tests and, before long, surgery. While Ashley went home to prepare for the trip to MUSC, Ben stayed with their son.

The plan quickly fell apart. Reliving the previous horror without the support of his spouse, Ben watched his son stop breathing again as he went into cardiac arrest. The father called for the nurse who immediately began CPR, working to revive Noah for nearly 15 minutes.

"It sucked just being completely helpless," said Ben. "You just don't know what to do in a situation like that. One minute my son's in my arms breathing and happy and smiling, the next he's not breathing and there's a bunch of people around him doing CPR."

Noah began to breathe again with a tube in his throat, which was later learned to have damaged his throat and swallowing ability.

Within hours, a new plan formed as a helicopter was prepared to transport him to MUSC days ahead of schedule.

Terrified for his son, Ben struggled with the idea of returning to the academy when the weekend was over.

"I called my boss and let him know what was going on," said Ben. "He said, 'Don't go back to the academy. Just go be with your family.""

The husband and wife followed their son to a second hospital, only seeing him for an hour before he was put into a medically-induced coma.

Noah Mockovciak, Team Shaw child, lies in his bed at a hospital at Charleston, S.C., after open heart surgery, circa February 2017. During the procedure, surgeons stopped Noah's heart to mend a hole, a detached coronary artery and Truncus Arteriosus, a defect in which one blood vessel exits the heart instead of two.

"We didn't realize at the time, but that was the last time we would see him with his eyes open for the entire week and the last time we got to hold him for about a month," said Ben.

The next day, Noah experienced his third heart attack.

"That's when they started to explain the odds to us, about survival and brain damage just because the (more) CPR you do, the more likelihood of brain cell loss and all this stuff, so it was really overwhelming to just take all that in," said Ben.

Noah's doctors asked the new parents to consider signing a "do not resuscitate" form.

"That's when you think hope would die," said Ashley. "I think that was the moment that my heart really broke. From that moment, we were kind of wondering what to do, but honestly we didn't want to give up on him because we knew our son and we just knew he was going to fight through it."

The Mockovciaks reached out to family and friends for support as Noah approached his surgery. Friends and fellow Airmen checked on the family throughout the hospital stay, bring along changes of clothes and food.

When surgery day arrived, the parents cried and prayed as they held on to their son's blanket for hours sitting in the waiting room while their child was operated on. In the operating room, surgeons stopped Noah's heart to mend a hole, a detached coronary artery and Truncus Arteriosus, a defect in which one blood vessel exits the heart instead of two. After his successful surgery, Noah's health began to improve quickly over the coming month. Following weeks of therapies, medicine and parent training, baby Noah returned home. "He came home again and we were even more nervous," said Ashley. "We had a baby with a (gastrostomy tube) who just had open heart surgery and we were even more delicate than we were with him the first time. (Even after all the training) you're not really prepared for it. You're not really prepared as a fist-time mom or a first-time dad to be openheart surgery and G-tube (baby) parents. It's a little extra work and that becomes your norm. You don't know any different. You don't know what normal is anymore."

With a fixed heart, Noah attends regular therapies and medical appointments to grow stronger and healthier.

"Ashley's been doing a great job with all of that," said Ben. "I had to go back to work so she's been amazing with the baby and all his therapies. He's got his cardiology appointments, his gastrointestinal appointments, nutritionist, and his pediatrician, so she's always on the move. She's probably the best mom in the world."

More than a year later, the Mockovciak family continues to make strides with the support of those around them.

"We have such gratitude in our hearts for the support," said Ashley. "It's hard if you don't have support. We did and we were lucky. We had our church family, our (blood) family, our friends, and then we had the military family."

Surrounded by love, Noah is growing as a happy and healthy toddler.

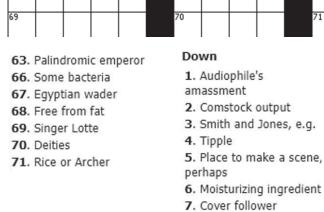

"If anybody meets Noah, they'll know how sassy and how much of a fighter he is," said Ashley with a smile on her face. "I think I admire that about him, because he's so full of life, so full of fight. There's no doubt in my mind that's why he survived. He fought and lived. That's why God gave us him, to give us a fighter."

Cabbage Noodle Tuna Casserole

INGREDIENTS:

2 tbsp olive oil 2 tbsp grass-fed butter medium head green cabbage (about 1 1/2 lbs), cut into large shreds 1 cup onion, chopped 3 ribs celery, chopped 2 cloves garlic, minced sea salt and black pepper, to taste 2 tsp dried dill or 2 tbsp fresh

dill 2 tsp dry mustard powder (get it here) 2 tbsp lemon zest juice of 1 lemon 1 1/2 cup heavy cream 1 1/4 cup Parmesan cheese, grated, divided 3 – 50z cans albacore tuna, drained (I use this brand) 1/2 cup frozen peas

INSTRUCTIONS:

Heat the olive oil and butter in an extra large ovenproof skillet over medium heat. Once heated, add the cabbage, onion, celery, garlic, sea salt and black pepper to the pan. Sauté until the vegetables are crisp tender – about 10 minutes. Mix in the dill, mustard powder, lemon zest, and lemon juice. Pour the heavy cream and 1 cup Parmesan cheese into the pan. Mix in and keep stirring until the cheese has melted and combined with the heavy cream. Reduce heat to medium low and let simmer to allow the sauce to thicken. Once the sauce has started to thicken, stir in the tuna and the peas. Sprinkle the remaining Parmesan over the top of the dish and transfer to the oven. Broil on high for 3-5 minutes or until the Parmesan on top has made a golden brown crust.
