Welcome to North Dakota

Downtown Minot, ND

It has been our pleasure to print the Summer Adventure Guide and make it available at no cost to residents planning their summer and fall activities. We have worked hard to highlight as many activities, events and destinations as possible.

Minot and the surrounding areas have a vast array of sights and activities to make the perfect summer vacation. Biking – motorized or peddled, hiking/walking trails, premiere fishing, canoeing, kayaking, boating, golfing, birding, sightseeing and many events and attractions all await you on your next summer adventure. There are also many historical sites around that could turn a weekend fun trip into a historic learning experience.

As for those staying close to Minot, the Magic City also has many opportunities for summer fun. Other activities include: Nodak Speedway weekly races, Downtown events, street dances, and much more! As always, please support the businesses that help support the Northern Sentry newspaper and other publications like this guide. They show their support to our military and the base by continuing to advertise with us which helps to make free publications like this possible. Be sure to thank them!

We hope you will save this publication and use it as your guide this summer and fall. We will also be putting the entire guide up on our website, www.northernsentry.com and we will have it available all summer for you on racks located in most high traffic areas on the base. Whether you just arrived at Minot Air Force Base, or have been here a while, get out and enjoy! Happy adventuring and be sure to take a lot of photos and share them with friends and family.

Things to Love about Minot AFB

ABIGAIL KINDER

As many of us know, Minot Air Force Base tends to get a reputation as one of the less desired duty stations. However, many of the longtime residents and Minot enthusiasts would beg to differ. It's easy to get stuck on base and forget about all of the amazing things that Minot AFB and the surrounding areas have to offer, especially during the summertime. If you take a moment to get out of the house and experience what the base has to offer, Minot can turn into one of the best places to be stationed in the Air Force! Here are a few things to love about Minot AFB:

1. The Community

The close-knit, small-town feel is one of the most common reasons why people love Minot AFB. We all have to brave the cold together and we all definitely have to brave the demands of the mission in one way or another. The upside? We have a much smaller, more tightly knit community to lend support. There's something about living in Minot that brings people together.

2. The Recreation and Activities

Bases near large cities undoubtedly have a huge variety of activities, restaurants and social scenes. Despite its size, Minot AFB has tons of pastimes to get involved in, between the Spouses Club, 5th Force Support Squadron events, and many other local organizations that hold fun get-togethers for Air Force families. There are car shows for enthusiasts. There is a booming art scene in downtown Minot. There is a giant wildlife preserve just up the road, and there are many unique facilities on base to host every hobby. If there isn't a group that shares your interests yet, it's easy to reach out and find people to create a new one!

3. The Sunsets

The sunsets at Minot AFB bring extra special meaning to those unbearably windy days and long winters. Vibrant colors often explode across the sky and cast shadows beneath the towering clouds. With North Dakota's unending plains it's pretty easy to understand why the sunsets look so beautiful, especially in the summertime.

4. The Northern Lights

Just as beautiful as North Dakota's sunsets, this unique natural phenomenon is one that many people don't get to experience in their lives. While the Northern Lights are sometimes difficult to see on base due to light pollution or cloudy skies, a quick drive up the highway can offer up an incredible nighttime spectacle. If you're lucky, you'll even be able to catch a glimpse right from your back yard!

5. The Bombers

Sure, other bases may have planes and helicopters constantly flying overhead, and some may even catch a glimpse of the historic B-52 Stratofortress from time to time, but Minot AFB is one of very few installations that hosts one of America's longest standing planes full-time. There's something to be said about the feeling that many people get when they're outside doing yard work or driving down the highway when a BUFF roars overhead. It's majestic and impressive, to say the least.

There are a lot more things to love about Minot AFB if you just open your mind, get out, and look for them. As Brunella Costagliola, a former Team Minot resident, once said, "The military is not punishing us by sending us to Minot. On the contrary. The military was showing us how much they value and trust us by sending us here, where they know they will be able to count on you and your commitment to this powerful mission. We're not just military life resilient, but Minot AFB resilient. After all, only the best come north."

Whether you're new to camping or are missing a few essentials, Outdoor Recreation has everything you need to have the best campsite out there. You can rent sleeping bags, two or six person tents, backpacks, ice chests, lanterns, A-frames, and more. Don't want to buy an expensive camper? Rent one for $75 a day! They even offer camping packages, bikes and trailers to help you get outdoors and experience the best of North Dakota's scenery.

Boating, Fishing, and Hunting

Visit the on-base pools or go off-base to spend some time doing your favorite hobbies this summer with the help of Outdoor Recreation. They offer jet ski, canoe, kayak, boat, and fishing equipment rentals for a relaxing day at the lake. If hunting is more your speed, they offer a variety of decoys and hunting blinds to help you out.

Entertainment Equipment

It's easy to host the best block party when you can get your equipment so easily! For every event— family picnics, birthday parties, or work get-togethers— Outdoor Recreation offers tons of rentals to get you started. They have bouncy castles, dunk tanks, corn hole equipment, grills, horseshoes, ladder ball, and even sumo wrestling suits for some extra crazy fun. Tables and chairs are also available for rent.

Horseback Riding Adventure in South Dakota

Outdoor Recreation Photos

The base Outdoor Recreation manages all sorts of activities including camper rentals, discounted tickets, archery ranges, garden plots and lots more. According to Manager Toni Sanders, if you come into ODR, “we will give you something to do”. She mentioned that there is so much to do, there is no reason anyone should be bored at Minot; Really! However, after speaking with Outdoor Rec Assistant Manager, Taylor Banahan, the most popular and awesome things Outdoor Rec offers are their outdoor Adventure Trips.

These ‘Adventures’ offer military personnel the opportunity to experience exciting activities at a very discounted price. Banahan said, “All of our trips get Airmen and their families out of Minot and into beautiful sceneries while doing exciting activities. My personal favorite trip is Dog Sledding. It truly is a once in a lifetime experience. Another great aspect of the trips is the ability to network. By the end of the weekend, the group really has gotten to know one another. I have had single airmen go on a trip and leave with a whole group of friends!” So far in 2022, ODR has loaded up 20+ people to go:

Dog Sledding in Ely, Minnesota,

Skiing and Snowboarding in Red Lodge, Montana and Rock Climbing in Custer State Park, South Dakota.

Upcoming trips include:

Tandem Skydiving and Camping in Baldwin Wisconsin

Whitewater Rafting & Zipline in Bozeman Montana

and Horseback Riding in the Black Hills South Dakota.

According to Banahan, because of the fantastic prices and once in a lifetime opportunities these trips present, they fill up very quickly. She said there is almost always a wait list and she has even had people line up at ODR hours before they opened on registration day to secure a spot. Although that’s not the norm, she mentioned that these Adventure Trips are the coolest things that ODR offers!

Every business tends to toot their own horn a bit, but this reporter got connected with a AIC Janette Nowack who has attended two Adventure Trips in the past year and she explained that they are just as awesome as ODR says. When asked why she decided to try one out at first, Nowack said, “I really wanted to get the full experience of the Northern cold life. You can’t say you lived in the North without doing some cold weather activities. It was cheap [so] I was like why the heck not!?” Nowack has been on the Ice Fishing Trip and the Dog Sledding Trip. While on the dog sledding adventure in Minnesota, Nowack said she had the time of her life; “At several points on our trail with the six dogs pulling us, we made too sharp of turns too fast and fell over and the dogs ran away from us leaving us in three feet of snow. We ran calling out the commands in hopes of them stopping but they just kept running from us and we had to run a half mile in snow being chased by another dog sledding pair. We finally caught up to our dogs, but man did we laugh the entire time from the fall till we got back to Minot.” Nowack is looking forward to going on more Adventure Trips including Skydiving and Whitewater Rafting and as many as she can fit in while here in Minot. She said, “Going on the trips you meet new people all over the base creating more connections. I have made some awesome friends, and we plan more trips together, and going on trips with friends makes everything so much more enjoyable and worth it.”

Ice Fishing Experience at Lake Metigoshi in 2022

ODR Dog Sledding Trip in Ely, Minnesota

So how do these Adventures work? And how can ODR offer these trips at hugely discounted prices? Well, ODR receives an allotted amount of funding to put together these trips which are meant to encourage Airmen to get out and experience the joy of the outdoors around Minot. No one wants to be stuck in the house playing video games all summer (right?). So ODR has made it its mission to help the individuals and families at Minot get the most out of their time here. Each trip is publicized on ODR's Facebook page with the costs, trip dates and registration dates. Be sure to get in there on registration day to secure a spot too. To find out what/when trips are upcoming, a brochure is available at ODR at any time so you can be prepared and plan ahead.

If these trips get you pumped, but you aren't able to afford the pieces or the time off right now, never fear. ODR offers plenty of other family-friendly activities this summer. One of their most popular- and free- activities include the outdoor swimming pool! While outside temperatures have been a little chilly this year so far, the outdoor temperature only has to be at 65 degrees for the pool to be open. There are a few other reasons that may cause the pool to close on any given day, including weather, so make sure and check out their Facebook page or give ODR a call if situations are questionable before heading over.

While North Dakota brings some challenges, the lack of outdoor adventure is not one of them! With all the fantastic trips, facilities and rentals available right here in base at ODR, there really is no way to say there's nothing to do here. Take advantage of the summer (and winter) months with the ODR Adventure Trips!

If you dream it, we can help you achieve it.

Thousands of tourists flock to this unique tribute to peace and friendship between the United States of America and Canada. The park plants over 150,000 flowers each year. Main features of the garden include an 18-foot floral clock display, fountains, a chime, and twin 120-foot concrete towers straddling the border with a peace chapel at their base. The Arma Sifton bells were a gift from Central United Church of Brandon, Manitoba, in 1972. The tower was supplied by North Dakota Veterans and dedicated in 1976. The seven gardens are The English Garden, The White Garden, The Cottage Garden, The Rock Garden, The Children's Garden, The Herb Garden, and The Labyrinth. Since they have become fairly competent at the craft of gardening, they have graduated to the art of design by concentrating on color, texture, shape and arrangement. They are building a collection of commissioned sculptures from artists around the nation. Currently there are 15 sculptures and poems in the Sculpture Walk.

Sunken Garden

International Peace Garden | 10939 Highway 281

Interestingly, a series of five uniform terraces extend down to the Sunken Garden area. Located in the center of each terrace are small pools that have connecting water channels that spill into each pool on the next level. So ultimately, water flows from one ornamental pool on each terrace to the next, and finally down to the reflecting octagon shaped pond in the center of the Sunken Garden, where the water is pumped back to the first terrace to begin its round again! Along the mazed walkways of The Sunken Garden are two stone garden houses financed by the North Dakota and U.S. National Homemakers' Clubs. The placement of these original houses marks the Avenues of America and Canada and both leads to their respective countries. Thousands of perennials, flowering shrubs and annuals fill the mosaic-like beds surrounding the focal pond in the Sunken Garden. Within walking distance is the Interpretive Center housing the cafe, retail store, moderate horticultural library and conservatory.

Let's Fish

PATRICIA STOCKDILL

Fishing off docks and piers for bluegill on Lake Metigoshe is popular in the summer.

N.D. Game and Fish Department Photo

It's almost like stepping into a kaleidoscope of colors and shapes – the wide array of fishing tackle and presentation options lining fishing sections in stores across North Dakota.

It doesn't matter if it's a local convenience store or a diverse business like Home of Economy, summer fishing and its tackle are popular. While many residents hone in on walleye for their great taste, several other species offer options.

The N.D. Game and Fish Department manages more than 400 lakes across the state and here are some tips for area fishing adventures this summer:

BASS, LARGEMOUTH:

When it comes to largemouth bass and their pension for warm water, in North Dakota that means Oliver County's Nelson Lake. "All of Nelson Lake has warm water in it compared to our other lakes," described Game and Fish Department North-central District Fisheries Supervisor Jason Lee.

Five miles east and three miles south of Center, the man-made lake has warm water year-around with abundant forage so warm water loving largemouth bass grow faster there than other lakes. Its natural reproduction is supplemented periodically with stocking, Lee added. Try traditional bass techniques for good numbers of largemouth in a variety of sizes.

Kota-Ray Dam southeast of Ray in Williams County might be a pleasant surprise for anglers in search of nice largemouth bass, as well.

BASS, SMALLMOUTH:

Feisty smallmouth bass are most often found in Lake Audubon, Lake Sakakawea, Hecker's Lake, any of the chain of lakes associated with the McClusky Canal, and the canal itself.

The McClusky Canal and its lakes - Hecker's, New Johns, East Park, and West Park lakes - feeds from the east side of Lake Audubon. Accessing the canal itself can be difficult, Lee advised, because of its steep, rocky edges. Best shore-fishing access points are off road bridges with a fishing pier on the canal northwest of Hecker's Lake, which is southeast of Mercer in Sheridan County.

Lake Audubon is on the east side of U.S. Highway 83 crossing the Lake Sakakawea embankment. The lake has multiple access points and fishing piers, making it excellent for shore-fishing.

Lake Darling northwest of Minot on the Upper Souris National Wildlife Refuge might offer up a smallmouth bass surprise for some anglers but remember that as a wildlife refuge, anglers should follow its special regulations such as no camping.

Smallies prefer gravelly substrate and rocky points with crayfish a popular food source. Lee suggests anglers target rocks and riprap from shore, casting small jigs or crankbaits away from shore or pitching small crankbaits towards shore when boat fishing. He also uses crankbaits as large as No. 9 or 11.

Lake Sakakawea also has smallmouth bass. Try areas with gravel and rocky points on the east end of the "Big Lake", such as areas around Sakakawea State Park.

BASS, WHITE:

Devils Lake is the state's "go to" white bass location. The 2015 age class is currently the most abundant population in the lake and fish could range between 14 and 16 inches. However, the upper end of Lake Sakakawea has its share of white bass at times and they love minnows in the spring.

BLUEGILL:

When it comes to this colorful panfish, head north, anglers, head north...to Lake Metigoshe, that is. Tucked in the Turtle Mountains of Bottineau County about 14 miles northeast of Bottineau, Metigoshe's mix of sub-emergent and emergent aquatic vegetation allows bluegill to escape predation. Its good water quality coupled with ample food means the lake has a nice mix of sizes and age classes.

While Lake Metigoshe is the region's premier bluegill lake, it's not the only one. They're also stocked in a few other lakes and while populations aren't strong, "they're slowly expanding," Lee explained. Try Long Lake (also in Bottineau County), Rice Lake northeast of Ryder (Ward County), South Carlson Lake southwest of Minot, Brush Lake three miles north of Mercer, Hiddenwood Lake south of Makoti, or even Nelson Lake.

Don't look for the numbers of fish from those lakes one might find in Lake Metigoshe but they could provide an occasional nice-sized bluegill, in part because lakes such as Rice, South Carlson, and Brush were stocked with adults a few years ago.

Oliver County's Nelson Lake – and its year-around warm water – provide what could be considered North Dakota's most consistent largemouth bass fishery.

N.D. Game and Fish Department Photo

While not nearly as abundant as bluegill in Metigoshe, anglers going to Blacktail Dam northwest of highways U.S. 2 and U.S. 85 junction or Northgate Dam northwest of Bowbells in Burke County could also encounter some success. Smishek Lake northwest of Powers Lake has abundant small bluegill numbers – maybe even a keeper hiding somewhere.

Try a bobber with small hook and nightcrawler pieces from shore, casting along the edge of vegetation and letting the bobber float, Lee offered, or casting light jigs and worm pieces and reeling towards shore from boats.

The fishing pier at Lake Audubon's East Totten Recreation Area provides easy access to shore-fishing opportunities.

about 2 to 5 pounds, sometimes 7 pounds. "A 10-pounder is pretty big, especially for Lake Sakakawea," Fryda described.

Rainbow smelt are the forage of choice for virtually all of Lake Sakakawea's predator fish and channel catfish are no exception. Fryda suggests anglers try any type of bottom rig with dead smelt.

The best tailrace fishing typically begins in June extending into the fall. The cold water of the tailrace produces excellent eater-sized 2- to 3-pound catfish. Try shore-fishing along the boat ramp or take the road east of Garrison Dam National Fish Hatchery to the large pool of water below Garrison Dam spillway where larger catfish may lurk.

Use dead smelt or drift with three-way swivels if boat fishing in the tailrace.

CRAPPIE:

While some areas of the upper end of Lake Sakakawea offer crappie activity, two locations in the region could be considered "go to" spots – Trenton Lake on the south side of the community of Trenton near Williston and Nelson Lake. Williston's John Shunk suggests casting slip bobbers with small jig and minnow or casting traditional crappie rigs. Early season is the best time for Trenton Lake crappie.

Try shallow water of bays for Lake Sakakawea crappie but don't neglect Northgate Dam for crappie.

NORTHERN PIKE:

Summer fishing adventures often begin with northern pike in North Dakota, one of the most common and popular native fish species until walleye overtook the popularity reigns among anglers. "The good thing is they're easy to catch from shore," Lee suggested.

In addition, pike flourish in high water years when shoreline vegetation becomes flooded. While North Dakota is in the midst of a dry spell, ample northern pike opportunities still exist across the region and there is still time to catch them before they head for deeper water in the summer heat.

Pike success is best right after the spawn, but anglers might still want to try places such as Buffalo Lodge Lake northeast of Granville, Rice Lake, Hiddenwood Lake, Makoti Lake (south of Makoti and close to nearby Hiddenwood Lake), the chain of natural lakes in McLean County - Long, Crooked, and Strawberry lakes - and Lake Audubon - again because of its abundant shore-fishing opportunities. And don't neglect Lake Darling for pike.

Northwestern pike lakes include Smishek Lake and Blacktail Dam.

Now is the time to cast red-and-white Dardevles or large crankbaits from shore, moving out to deeper water in July or August. "The nice thing about pike is they grow fast," Lee added.

Just a note when pike fishing on Lake Audubon – the lake is stocked with muskie, which are similar in size and coloration to northern pike. Be certain of species identification when keeping pike because all muskie less than 48 inches in length must be released.

Lake Metigoshe is the place to go in north-central North Dakota for bluegill. The lake's abundant aquatic vegetation, good water quality, and ample food provide some nice-sized bluegill and activity for anglers of all ages.

CATFISH:

When it comes to catfish in North Dakota, the Red River dividing North Dakota and Minnesota is considered the "go to" destination.

But it doesn't have to be.

Simply head to the Missouri River System, namely the Missouri River tailrace or Lake Sakakawea's back bays – especially those on the upper end around Williston or ones with feeder creeks and tributaries where water warms faster and is more turbid, described Game and Fish Department Missouri River Fisheries Supervisor Dave Fryda.

Native to the Missouri River, channel catfish provide good shore-fishing opportunities on both the river and lake. Given the state's short summers catfish have a short "growing" season. Most average

TROUT:

Trout aren't native to North Dakota lakes or rivers. They don't spawn naturally in the state, either, so any trout fishery is a result of the cooperative fish spawning, rearing, and stocking program between the Game and Fish Department and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service Garrison Dam National Fish Hatchery below Lake Sakakawea.

The Game and Fish Department stocks several community ponds, including Minot's North Dakota State Fair Pond. Rainbow and brown trout are also in the Missouri River below Garrison Dam.

Spring Lake Park near Williston, Kettle Lake northeast of Zahl, and Stanley and Watford City community ponds are stocked annually.

WALLEYE:

Given their popularity, walleye are the most common fish species across North Dakota lakes and draw the most attention from fisheries managers.

The Missouri River System - Lake Sakakawea, Lake Oahe, and the river itself - plus Lake Audubon and Devils Lake are the state's premier walleye fisheries as well as regional destinations for many anglers.

However, other smaller nearby lakes can provide walleye opportunities and may not garner as much attention. Lee suggests places like Buffalo Lodge Lake, Lake Metigoshe, Lake Audubon, Hiddenwood Lake, Antelope Lake northeast of Anamoose in Pierce County, or Clear Lake southeast of Anamoose. A word of caution, though, Lee offered - Clear Lake doesn't have a boat ramp and shore access is limited.

The south side of Lake Audubon is closed to open water fishing because it's part of the Fish and Wildlife Service's Audubon National Wildlife Refuge. Buoys mark the boundary across the water. Even so, Audubon has ample shore-fishing opportunities with a Game and Fish Department Wildlife Management Area embracing the north side of the lake to provide multiple boat access points.

Look for the possibility of keeper-sized walleye from White Earth Dam with an occasional larger walleye from Northgate and Blacktail dams.

Early season is the time to try jigs and minnows for walleye, moving into jigs and nightcrawlers as summer advances. Spinners or slow death hooks with nightcrawlers are typically good summer presentations.

The N.D. Game and Fish Department website, (gf.nd.gov) has just about everything an angler needs to know to help them head to the water for a summer fishing adventure. Simply click "Fishing" on the home page, and then "Where to Fish" for details.

The N.D. Game and Fish Department stocks catchable sized rainbow and brown trout in several community ponds in the state, providing shore-fishing in small and larger towns alike. For example, the North Dakota State Fair Pond has trout, as do ponds in communities such as Stanley and Watford City. In addition, the Missouri River tailrace below Garrison Dam is another good location to test one's fly-casting ability.

Although walleye are the most-desired fish species among anglers heading to North Dakota lakes and rivers, many lakes across the state offer a variety of other species.

Little Missouri State Park

Some of the most picturesque Badlands scenery can be found at Little Missouri State Park. Most of this primitive park is accessible only on foot or horseback. Electrical hookups are available to campers, however, all other facilities are primitive.

Lunds Landing

Beautiful, quaint country setting, genuine hospitality, delicious homemade food, Juneberry pie, pan-fried walleye. Full-service restaurant, cabins, kayaks, canoes, boat rentals, fishing, hunting, birding activities, golfing, camping, tipi camping and Lewis and Clark Interpretive Trail. Sully Creek State Park

Located in the heart of the North Dakota badlands, Sully Creek is just minutes away from the historic town of Medora and Theodore Roosevelt National Park. Corrals are available for those bringing in their own horses.

Turtle River State Park

Situated on the meandering Turtle River, Turtle River State Park is located in a beautiful wooded valley. Constructed in the 1930s by the Civilian Conservation Corps, the park offers year-round recreational activities, including camping, picnicking, fishing and trails for hiking, mountain biking and cross country skiing.

Theodore Roosevelt National Park

Whether you're an avid camper, a hiking expert or just love beautiful scenery, there is something for everyone to enjoy at Theodore Roosevelt National Park. The park spans a total of 70,447 acres and is open year-round, although some trails and facilities are only open seasonally. The North Unit Visitor Center is open daily April to mid-October and Friday, Saturday and Sunday through the rest of the year. Be sure to drive the 14-mile Scenic Drive that leads in from the entrance of the park to Oxbow Overlook. The South Unit Visitor Center is located at the park entrance in Medora, North Dakota. It has an info desk, museum, movie and offers plenty of opportunities to learn about Theodore Roosevelt and his experience in the badlands. A major feature of the South Unit is the paved, 26-mile Scenic Loop Drive with interpretive stops that illustrate the park's history and natural features. Over 100 miles of trail make it a first-class hiking park, although because prairie and grasslands mostly surround the park, water and shade are limited along trails. Some are short self-guided trails while other trails span the length of the park.

ERIN BEENE

Badlands National Park awes with varied landscapes and lots of hiking possibilities

Erin Beene Photos

I'm a traveler now. I wasn't always. After we were stationed at RAF Mildenhall, England, about 10 years ago, I uncovered a European attitude that I wasn't aware existed. The Europeans (much before Covid) all seemed to adopt a traveling spirit that I hadn't found in the 25 years I lived in the US. Traveling to new countries and places, taking a "holiday," was something the Brits and Europeans seemed to do all the time. Yet I knew many people growing up that had never even left the state of Texas, some never even traveling beyond a 200-mile radius. But as anyone who has lived overseas will tell you, travel is much more commonplace. So, after a first year of a colicky baby, my small family and I gave in and joined the travel epidemic around us. I was awed by the new worlds that greeted me. Thus, like so many before me, I fell in love with travel.

Since that time I have made it my mission to use our home base (wherever that may be) and find the coolest places we can visit in the surrounding areas. Knowing we will only be in each place a short time, it gets my travel engines pumping. After surviving my first Minot winter this past year, I needed to get out of town, and fast. But where could we go? What was affordable, driveable and kid-friendly? Looking slightly south in an attempt to warm a tiny bit, my family and I settled on none other than South Dakota!

The state of South Dakota is massive and, unlike its upstairs neighbor North Dakota, there were a lot of places that popped up when I Googled "Places to Visit in South Dakota." We only had six days, and we knew we wanted to visit our good friends stationed at Ellsworth AFB near Rapid City, so I started our trip in that area. Day one started a little after sunrise and ended at our first destination of Deadwood in the Black Hills. The drive was only about seven hours from Minot, but I do need to add that when driving anywhere for long distances in the Dakotas, get gas wherever you can! I know it is crazy expensive nowadays and probably even more so in these backroads towns, but trust me. We learned the hard way that gas stations are not readily available in the North Dakota state highways and backroads. If you see a gas station on a long journey, top off, just to be safe. Back to Deadwood. Deadwood is known for its late 1800s gold rush and the legendary lawmen and outlaws that roamed the area. The town itself is tiny, but there are lots of hotel options in town to choose from. We stayed near the main street as we wanted to be within walking distance to the attractions. We visited the "Days of '76 Museum" which had a lot of kid friendly activities and information about the original settlers in Deadwood. It's worth a visit if you like museums. Since we visited in May, we were a little bummed to find out that many of the Deadwood classic activities were not yet open as the tourist season had not yet begun. If you like to do things in the off-season to avoid crowds, like us, you may be disappointed with Deadwood. I would suggest going during the crazy summer months with the rest of the tourists to get the full shows, and experiences.

After exploring everything we could in Deadwood we took off for Spearfish. We happened upon Spearfish City Park and my kids (ages 9 & 6) had a blast! If you've got kids, this playground will wow the entire family and is worth a stop. Outside the playground area was a little creek bed where we spent some time skipping rocks. While it was too chilly for wading, I imagine it is a popular splashing spot in the summer. We had to pull our kids away from the playground to explore the newly-named D.C. Booth Historic National Fish Hatchery. We were skeptical about this place, but it actually ended up being really informative and interesting! Make sure you bring some quarters to get fish food and check out the re-made train car that used to transport fish all over the US. The fish hatchery is a really educational and free place to stop!

A small hike led to the Dinosaur Park near Rapid City .

Our first evening in Rapid City we ventured out to the Dinosaur Park. It's a little bit of a steep climb to see the dinosaurs and toddlers may need some strict attention, but once at the top, the panoramic views of the city were amazing! This was a cool place to see but won't take up much of your time, so it's an easy 15-20 minute time filler.

Since we are a homeschool family, most trips end up being a bit educational. We have been studying the US Presidents and South Dakota has so much President information that we decided to make it the theme for our trip. Early on a cloudless, sunny morning, we headed to downtown Rapid City, intent on locating every single statue of American Presidents which are scattered within a few blocks downtown. A walking tour map can be located online at visitrapidcity.com. We printed this and started our adventure. Yep, we found every single President (except Trump and Biden who haven't been made yet) and it took us a little less than two hours. This was honestly one of the most fun parts of our trip! My kids love a good checklist, so the hunt for all the presidents was a cool historic activity for us. Even if you don't think your family is up for the entire hunt, stopping and seeing at least a few is worth it for all ages. I'm not much of a foodie, so the places we ate were generally quick. But while in downtown Rapid City we did stop at Firehouse Brewing Company for some amazing food (they also have their own brewery and winery), and you definitely need to stop at Mary's Mountain Cookies for some absolutely delicious and unique flavor cookies! After our day downtown I dropped off my husband and kids at our friends' house who live at Ellsworth AFB, and my friend and I spent Mother's Day afternoon at the Prairie Ridge Golf Course outside Ellsworth AFB. This 9-hole course offers club rentals, great prices for military personnel and beautiful scenery. I'm a pretty poor golfer. For me it's all about the fun and company, but this course works well both for serious golfers and beginners. We had a blast!

Our 4th day in South Dakota was our busiest. We headed out to the Presidential National Wax Museum in Keystone. Since our trip revolved around the Presidents this was a must see! The whole family enjoyed seeing the realistic scenes as well as recording a mock- state of the union address video. We had a full day planned, but just looking around, there were so many cool things to do in Keystone including the Big Thunder Gold Mine and Rushmore Tramway Adventures and lots more. If we went again, I would plan for an entire day in Keystone for sure! After the museum we visited the much-anticipated Mt. Rushmore!

Retired, glass covered missile silo on the road will be a highlight for any military enthusiast.

While both my husband and I had been there before, our kids hadn't, and for some reason my six year old was amazed! As any parent will tell you, sometimes kids get excited about weird things and aren't into things you'd think they love. Well my daughter loved Mt. Rushmore and that in itself made it a highlight of our trip. The top gets a bit windy and maybe chilly so make sure and bring a jacket if the weather is iffy. Also be sure not to skip the walking trails. After Mt. Rushmore, we drove down to Crazy Horse Memorial and learned a lot about how and why it was and still is being built. After that we planned to drive through Custer State Park, but we decided at the last minute to take a detour to Evan's Plunge Mineral Springs in Hot Springs instead. It was out of the way, but we wanted to give it a whirl. The indoor pool features water slides and naturally warm mineral water from a thermal spring. The place itself was a bit dated, but the kids loved it. The water was chilly, but the unusual atmosphere made it a different type of activity for us and a much needed break in sight-seeing.

On our 5th and last day we headed out to Badlands National Park. Having younger kids, we're not all-day hikers, but the landscape there offered so many different types of visuals and mini hikes... it was a sight to see! We spent several hours there. On the way back to Rapid City we stopped off on the side of the road to see an old, retired missile silo. My husband and probably many other military members found this refurbished and glass ceiling silo to be a cool part of the trip. The silo even has a tour guide out there waiting to answer questions. It is worth stopping for those military enthusiasts and only takes a few minutes. The billboard advertising around the route also led us to stop at Wall Drug on the way back. I think we had the wrong impression of what it was going to be, but we were a bit miffed when what we found was a maze of trinket shops instead of a large and welcoming convenience store. But we got some ice cream and enjoyed the sun anyway.

At the end of the epic South Dakota vacation we were tired and happy. There was so much more to see that we didn't get a chance to, and western SD has so many options for visitors. Even with our full four days we couldn't see near enough. I think this area requires two full-sized trips, but it's definitely a place for families, hiking enthusiasts, motorcycle people (we drove through Sturgis) and really everyone. All I know is that a trip to the western part of South Dakota needs to be on everyone's list. The history, varying landscapes and tourist destinations make it a must see road trip for any Minot AFB resident.

If you're anything like me, you probably love to take your dog along on every adventure possible. North Dakota's open grasslands, natural wonders and friendly atmospheres make it a perfect place to spend your summer alongside the WHOLE family, including your pets.

Be sure to keep pets leashed and minding their manners in public. Also, don't forget to take the proper precautions and bring plenty of water for hot, active days to prevent overheating.

All parks in Minot Parks District are open to pets but not the designated facilities. Here are a few of Minot's favorite trails and parks that are great for a walk with your furry friend!

Bison Plant Trail – 7801 54th Ave SE, Minot

Oak Park – 1300 4th Ave NW, Minot

Riverwalk Trail – 134-140 6th St SE, Minot

Roosevelt Park – 1215 E Burdick Expy, Minot

Woodland Trail – Off of 83 Bypass, Minot

For a quick bite or a refreshing drink, drop by these local businesses with dog-friendly patio space!

Atypical Brewery – 510 Central Ave E, Minot

Spicy Pie Minot – 1100 N Broadway, Minot

North Dakota has a plethora of government protected parks. In all North Dakota state parks, pets are not allowed in lodging or on designated swimming beaches. However, pets are allowed in campgrounds, on trails, and even on boats, provided that no trace is left behind and remain leashed in non-designated areas. Here are some ND parks where pets are allowed on trails and in campgrounds:

Cross Ranch State Park

Little Missouri State Park – also horse-friendly

Pembina Gorge State Recreation Area – also horse-friendly

Sully Creek State Park – also horse-friendly

Turtle River State Park

Fort Abraham Lincoln State Park – also horse-friendly

Fort Ransom State Park – also horse-friendly

Icelandic State Park

Beaver Lake State Park

Fort Stevenson State Park – also allowed on rental boats, provided that no trace is left behind

Grahams Island State Park – Dog park, no dogs on designated swimming beach but allowed on other shores

Lake Metigoshe State Park – Dog park, no dogs on designated swimming beach but allowed on other shores

Lake Sakakawea

Lewis and Clark State Park – Dog park

Theodore Roosevelt National Park – Leashed pets allowed in the park at campgrounds, on sidewalks, roads, etc. but not allowed on trails. Maah Daah Hey Trail located just outside the park is pet friendly. Horse-friendly on backcountry trails and cross country

Outside of government parks, there are plenty of campgrounds, trails, and areas that allow leashed, well-behaved pets:

Black Butte Adventures

Woodland Resort – pets not allowed on boats, but are allowed in rooms and cabins for a fee

Summer Pet Practices

SOURIS VALLEY ANIMAL SHELTER

What diseases to watch out for?

Preventatives? Ticks? Fleas? Heartworm?

- Flea, Tick, Heartworm disease (regionally dependent) can be prevented by utilizing most commercially available preventatives (many of these may require a veterinary prescription).
- Bravecto is an oral chew that lasts 3 months and works against fleas and ticks.
- Heartguard, simperica, interceptor plus, advantage multi are all great once a month products. Be careful with some of these topical treatments as they can be toxic to certain breeds and/or cats.
- If you do find a tick on your dog, use tweezers or commercially available tick removal tools (I personally like the tick twisters) to remove the tick in its entirety (make sure the head is removed).
- Using tweezers: Grasp the tick as close to your pet's skin as possible (without pinching your pet) and then pull it out slowly in a straight, steady motion. Don't jerk. Examine the tick for the head/mouth piece; anything left behind could lead to an infection.
- Using a tick remover: Gently press the remover against your pet's skin near the tick. Slide the notch of the remover under the tick, twist and pull it free in a steady motion. Don't jerk. Examine the tick for the head/mouth piece; anything left behind could lead to an infection.
- If you take your dog camping or hiking around bodies of water. I would recommend talking to your local veterinarian about the leptospirosis vaccine.
- Depending on your location, rattlesnake vaccines for your dog may also be a good idea. This series of 3 vaccines does not replace veterinary intervention if your dog is bitten by a rattlesnake but gives you more time to seek professional help. This vaccine does NOT protect against all types of rattlesnake bites. Talk to your local veterinarian if this is the right choice for you.
- Heartworm treatment is treated on a case by case basis. I would recommend yearly screening tests with your local veterinarian which should be done prior to a refill on your yearly preventative. Many times there are no major signs of illness when it comes to heartworm disease. If your animal does test positive for heartworm, discuss treatment options with your local veterinarian to see which option is best for you and your animal.

Best outdoor toys? Things to avoid?

- The best toy for a dog is the toy they will play with. While this is true some toys that should be avoided are bones, sticks and rocks. These natural toys, as enriching as they may be for your pet, can cause serious injury to your dogs oral cavity. Bones and sticks may splinter, lacerating your pets mouth or become lodged in the roof of your dog's mouth. Pets that chew on hard objects are also at a higher risk of fractured teeth.

- Rawhides are also a big no no. Rawhides are poorly digested and can cause GI upset and even foreign bodies, which may require hospitalization, surgery, or other expensive medical bills.
- Looking for great alternatives to those hard dental chews? look for the VOHC (veterinary oral health council) stamp of approval on the packaging.
- Pets and Fireworks do not mix. Our pets hear much better than we do. Fireworks may scare a pet or damage its hearing. If a pet is scared it may run off or injure itself.
- Be aware of your pet (especially little dogs) when you have a summer BBQ. Too many table scraps may lead to GI problems in your pet which may require hospitalization, surgery, or other expensive medical bills.

Puppy first aid kit?

- There are lots of pet first aid kits available out there on the market. Depending on the nature of your activity with your pet will depend on what you may need to have on hand.
- ASPCA has a nice DIY pet first aid kit list on their website.
- Having a well stocked first aid kit is good for immediate stabilization of a pet or wound management but any injured pet should be seen by a veterinarian asap as simple injuries can lead to major health problems and costly veterinary bills later down the road.

What are good outdoor temps? (For pet paws) What is bad?

- If it's too hot for you it's too hot for your dog.
- Make sure dogs have access to shade and water at all times. Remember that a dog house or igloo does not necessarily count as shade as the temperatures within these structures can be even higher than outside temps at times.
- Goes without saying, but never leave your pet in a car on a warm/hot day! Even if the windows are cracked, the inside temperatures in a vehicle increase exponentially, turning your vehicle into an oven. When in doubt leave your pet at home.
- When it comes to taking your pet for a walk, early morning and sunset are best.
- Before you take your pet out on a walk, place your hand on the cement or asphalt, if it's too hot for you it's too hot for your dog. This is the best way to avoid thermal burns on your pet's paw pads.

Tips for boarding a pet in case a family wants to go out of town.

- Reach out to the boarding facility to see what vaccines they require then follow up with your local veterinarian.
- Do this months before you plan on going on vacation, NOT WEEK OF!
- Plan ahead with emergency/veterinary contacts, food, favorite toys, items that may smell like the owner etc. Even better yet visit the facility and see if it's a good fit for your pet (maybe bring them along).

MHA Nation Interpretive Center Honoring Native Culture

NORTHERN SENTRY

If you're looking to experience and learn about North Dakota's extensive indigenous culture, be sure to take a visit to the new MHA Nation Interpretive Center in New Town, North Dakota! The MHA Nation, which is comprised of Mandan, Hidatsa and Arikara Nation tribes, also known as the Three Affiliated Tribes, is located on the Fort Berthold Indian Reservation in central North Dakota and includes over 16,800 members. The Interpretive Center is a newly developed tribute to the history and heritage of the Three Affiliated Tribes.

"We wanted to have a place where people could physically come and experience our culture, whether it's our own members from our reservation or people from off the reservation... We are a very rich culture and there is so much history and so much more to us than people know. It's an opportunity for people to see the entirety of what we've been through as Mandan, Arikara or Hidatsa people and where our history first began and where it is today, because we're still thriving," said Mykal Drosdal, Marketing Manager.

The center includes a variety of amenities and informative displays, including interactive exhibits and a recording studio for tribal members and elders to record their own stories to pass down for generations to come. They offer traditional catered meals and a coffee shop. It also includes two meeting rooms and a scenic rooftop that overlook Lake Sakakawea to be rented out for conferences, meetings, or weddings. The outdoor amphitheater holds up to 500 people for concerts and events. The MHA Interpretive Center also hosts permanent and rotating galleries that display artifacts and history from the three tribes as well as cultural seminars on beading, traditional agriculture and storytelling. There are also archival rooms for research and preservation of artifacts.

The Interpretive Center held its grand opening on May 19, 2021, and the staff looks forward to planning future events and exposing travelers from all over to the amazing heritage of the MHA Nation. Check out their Facebook page at MHA Nation Interpretive Center. The MHA Nation Interpretive Center is located at 9386 Lake Sakakawea Road, New Town, ND.

Prairie Village Museum

The community of Rugby is perhaps known best for being the Geographical center of North America as well as the location for the annual Pierce County Fair. Rugby is located 64 miles east of Minot. Rugby has several places of interest for tourists such as a Museum, Library, Golf course, Movie Theater, swimming pool, parks, playgrounds, hockey arena, baseball diamonds, and excellent hunting grounds for waterfowl, upland game, and big game. Each summer, the small town hosts the Pierce County Fair which invites locals and communities nearby to attend attractions such as the demolition derby, carnival rides and Party in the Dirt entertainment; Snake Oil and Diamonds and Whiskey.

From recreational facilities and shopping, to museums and historical landmarks, Rugby has something for everyone. Whether you're here for the day, a weekend getaway or an extended stay, we have the services and attractions to make your visit both pleasurable and memorable. The Geographical Center of North America was established at (or near) Rugby by a U.S. Geological Survey in 1931. A year later, W. B. and E.B. Paterson - assisted by the local Lions Club, Boy Scouts and other volunteers - erected a fieldstone monument at the intersection of U.S. Highway 2 and N.D. Highway 3 to denote Rugby's geographical distinction. Thousands of visitors stop at the monument each year to snap photos at North America's geographical center.

Deepen your child's faith. Expand their horizons.

Thousands of hours of work and research and visits to some of the best schools around the nation are leading us to a renaissance of Catholic education at Bishop Ryan Catholic School.

Some of what we're doing is new.
Some is traditional, tried and true.
While our students are hard at work exploring math, science, social studies, languages and the arts, their moments of learning are framed by the virtues of faith, hope and charity, prudence, responsibility, trustworthiness, temperance, patience, kindness and humility. An integrated virtue-based Catholic education is what we're working on for students and the future to come.

At its heart, Bishop Ryan is a community of faith and family.
It's an exciting time to be a Bishop Ryan Lion; for more information about joining our lion pride, visit us online, give us a call, or stop in!

We're proud to be recognized as a national Cardinal Newman Society
Catholic Education Honor Roll School and one of the top North Dakota schools in the most recent Cognia Accreditation Review.
