Ask yourself some heart-health questions

BY JULIE GARDEN-ROBINSON
FOOD AND NUTRITION SPECIALIST - NDSU

At this time of the year, you probably are seeing heart-shaped boxes and bags of candy in pink or red-themed bags beckoning you from the shelves of grocery or department stores.

You might be enticed to buy a box for yourself or your sweetie. You work hard.

You deserve a treat, right? These shiny boxes or packages are quite tempting with their wide variety of milk, white and dark chocolate and other types of candy.

Dark chocolate in moderation is high in antioxidants, but it's not a "food group" we need.

Chocolate keeps well. Savor one small piece of chocolate a day with a cup of tea or coffee, which are high in antioxidants, too.

You might want to pick up a pair of walking shoes, a pedometer or a Fitbit to promote overall good health.

Have you thought about your actual heart lately? This group of hardworking muscles pumps about 100,000 times per day, carrying oxygen and nutrients throughout your body.

February is American Heart

PRAIRIE FARE

Month, which is a good time to think about your health and the steps you can take to improve your health.

Ask yourself some questions. Visit our "Nourish and Exercise Your Body" website at <https://www.ag.ndsu.edu/nourishyourbody> for links to explore.

* What is your smoking status? If you smoke, make "no smoking" your goal. Smoking damages your heart and blood vessels.

* Do you maintain a healthful weight? A body mass index (BMI) between 18.5 and 24.9 is the goal. For an online BMI calculator, visit the website of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute at https://www.nhlbi.nih.gov/health/educational/lose\_wt/BMI/bmi-m.htm. Using a calculator, determine your BMI by dividing your weight in pounds by your height in inches squared (height times height). Then multiply the total by a conversion factor of 703.

* Are you physically active? Move toward the current recommendation from the Department of Health and Human Services of 150 minutes of moderate activity or 75 minutes of vigorous activity per week (or a combination of moderate and vigorous activity).

* Do you eat a healthful diet? Aim for 4 1/2 cups of fruit/vegetables per day, 3 ounces or more of whole grains per day, at least two servings of fish per week, less than 450 calories from beverages with added sugars per week and less than 1,500 milligrams of sodium per day.

* What is your blood pressure? The goal is for the upper number (systolic) to be less than 120 millimeters of mercury and the lower number (diastolic) to be less than 80.

* What is your blood cholesterol? A blood cholesterol level less than 200 milligrams per deciliter (mg/dL) is the current recommendation.

* What is your blood sugar value? The goal is for your blood sugar to be less than 100 mg/dL.

If you are looking for a "diet" that promotes good health, consider the Mediterranean diet. This heart-healthy diet has been ranked as the No. 1 best health-promoting diet the past couple of years. Another heart-health-promoting diet, the DASH diet (short for Dietary Approaches to Stop Hypertension) is in second place.

It is similar to what is promoted on the U.S. Department of Agriculture's MyPlate. It is not necessarily a weight-loss diet, but you might find that pounds "evaporate" when you eat more healthfully and get more exercise.

The Mediterranean diet emphasizes eating colorful vegetables, fruits, whole grains, beans and other legumes.

It includes low-fat or fat-free dairy products, nuts, nontropical vegetable oils and lean animal proteins. According to the Mediterranean diet, we should limit highly sweetened foods and beverages and foods high in saturated fat.

Eating a healthful diet and aiming for at least 30 minutes of moderate physical activity on most days of the week promotes heart health as well as brain health.

Yes, what you eat affects your ability to think and process information.

Expand your culinary explorations this month. You might think of this sauce as an accompaniment for gyros (often made with seasoned lamb) in a Middle Eastern restaurant, but it can be used in many ways.

This tasty sauce can be used as a vegetable or whole-grain cracker dip. Use it to top a baked potato, in a pita wrap, and as a sauce for almost any kind of meat, including chicken, beef, pork and lamb.

Tzatziki Sauce

- 1 c. plain, nonfat Greek yogurt
- 3/4 c. cucumber, diced
- 1 Tbsp. lemon juice
- 1 garlic clove, minced
- 1 Tbsp. fresh dill, chopped (1 tsp. dried dill)
- 1/2 tsp. black pepper

Combine all ingredients and chill. Serve with vegetables, crackers or a variety of foods.

Makes six servings. Each serving has 25 calories, 0 grams (g) fat, 3 g carbohydrate, 4 g protein, 0 g fiber and 20 milligrams sodium.

OUR OUTDOORS

Handfuls of Summer

BY NICK SIMONSON
DAKOTA EDGE OUTDOORS

Even with the rather kind spell that mother nature has afforded us over the last few weeks with no blizzards, light winds and even some melting temperatures scattered in here and there, winter can still feel a little long.

Spending afternoons huddled over an ice hole can wear on a die-hard openwater angler in the middle of the off season and any chance to stretch the legs and the casting arm is one I'll take advantage of. With the temperatures creeping above freezing and light winds out of the south, I sped up the old county blacktop to a water that knows no ice and is kept warm all year round by the discharge from a nearby powerplant's cooling system, hoping to connect with some fish before the wind shifted back to the north and things cooled off.

I lost my race with the sun as it slid behind the hazy cloud layer creeping in from the west while I pulled into the parking area just off the edge of the inflowing water which kept the lake at a balmy fifty-five degrees or so all winter long. In the ripples of the outflow a Nitro bass boat held its position as the two anglers in it flipped paddletail worms after the lake's famed largemouth bass which grew to epic proportions due to the extended growing season the warm waters provided. When I inquired as to how the bite was, I received the should-have-been-expected response that things had just slowed down in the last 20 minutes after the sun had become shrouded. The angler on the small fishing pier suggested the same for the crappies he had been catching. As I readied my two fly rods with favorite streamers and carefully stepped my way down the snow covered embankment and onto the rip-rap, I watched the steam plume from the stack on the powerplant at the far side of the water shift from the south to the east and felt the slightest chill blow across my hands and a ripple work its way across the reservoir. My time would be limited, especially with how quickly my fingers go numb when they get cold.

Despite the shift in the breezes, I whipped the green floating line out over the spillway and let it tighten in the current as the fly tumbled along with the ripples and boils in the water. A few casts later, I set the hook on a feisty bluegill after having missed its first take and it ran against the current, flashing golden scales and swirled and broke the surface with a splash. The deep olive-green top, the orange sides and purple trim of the stout panfish stood out against the snow-covered rocks and made it feel like for a moment I was holding summer in my hands. With a flip the fish was gone and the rising wind blew the warm water droplets on my hand into chilly pinpricks as I exhaled through my clenched fist and wiped my reddening fingers on my sweatshirt.

Behind the spot where the bluegill had been lurking, I felt a pop on a drift about a dozen casts later and set the hook with what my chilled hands could muster and the rod bent with a deeper dig of something a little bigger. As it too made its way into the outflow, I saw the dark sides of a black crappie that turned with the flow and then up to its side, coming to hand along the rocky shore. With the shimmer of the emerald-and-ebony scales, I was taken back to those humid days in August on my favorite panfish lake (which likely won't open for business for at least 2 months) and the schools of specks that sat under the boat taking jigs and making bobbers disappear.

With a splash the crappie swam off and I knew my time was growing short as the wind rose some more. I tucked my hands in the pocket of my sweatshirt and clasped the handwarmer packages until I could sense my fingertips as the end of the fluorescent green line waved in the water and the reel remained tucked under my right armpit. Gaining some feeling, I lifted the line, cast out again and watched a wind gust carry it to the left and I stripped it in to reset, only to pick up another bluegill on the hurried retrieve. Before my hands locked up one final time, I'd land two more sunnies and let them go with the final fish doing my knuckles in as they clasped tight around the handle of my flyrod.

It took about five minutes with my hands held up to the air vents in the truck before the white tips of my fingers would turn crimson and then a near normal peach color. Able to grip the steering wheel, I broke the rods down and stashed them under the back seat before heading home happy to have had the chance to cast the long rod in the warm water environs and shake hands with some old summer friends...in our outdoors.

Country Kitchen Recipes

CHOCOLATE CHIP DIP

Ingredients

- 8 oz cream cheese, softened
- 1/2 c butter, softened
- 3/4 c confectioners' sugar
- 2 tbsp brown sugar
- 1 tsp vanilla extract
- 1 c mini semisweet chocolate chips
- Graham cracker sticks

Directions

In a small bowl, beat cream cheese and butter until light and fluffy. Add the sugars and vanilla; beat until smooth. Stir in chocolate chips. Serve with Graham cracker sticks.

SOFT & CHEWY CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIE BARS

Ingredients

- 2 and 1/4 cups (280g) all-purpose flour (spoon & leveled)
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 and 1/2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 3/4 cup (170g) unsalted butter, melted and slightly cooled
- 1 cup (200g) packed light brown sugar
- 1/4 cup (50g) granulated sugar
- 1 large egg plus 1 large egg yolk, at room temperature
- 2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract
- 1 cup (180g) semi-sweet chocolate chips
- optional: sprinkle of sea salt

Directions

Preheat the oven to 350°F (177°C). Line the bottom and sides of a 9-inch square baking pan with aluminum foil or parchment, leaving an overhang on all sides to easily lift the bars out of the pan when cool. Set aside.

Whisk the flour, baking soda, cornstarch, and salt together in a large bowl. Set aside.

In a medium bowl, whisk the melted butter, brown sugar, and granulated sugar together until no brown sugar lumps remain. Whisk in the egg, then the egg yolk. Finally, whisk in the vanilla extract. The mixture will be thick. Pour the wet ingredients into the dry ingredients and mix together until combined. The dough will be very soft, yet thick. Fold in the chocolate chips. The chips may not stick to the dough because of the melted butter, but do your best to combine them.

Transfer dough to the prepared baking pan and press/smooth into an even layer. Sprinkle the top with sea salt if desired. Also, I like to press a few more chocolate chips on top of the dough before baking (I do this just for looks!). Bake for 32-35 minutes or until lightly browned on the sides. Use a toothpick to test for doneness; if it comes out clean from the center of the pan, the bars are done.

Allow the bars to cool in the pan set on a wire rack for at least an hour. Once relatively cool, lift the foil out of the pan using the overhang on the sides and cut into squares. Store in an airtight container at room temperature for up to a week.
