Local healthcare providers prepare for spread of new coronavirus, or COVID – 19

Your local healthcare organizations have been closely following recent reports and information about the latest developments with "COVID-19," otherwise known as the "coronavirus." We are working closely together to be prepared and we have processes in place per CDC and ND Department of Health requirements. This update provides information on what you can do to help prevent contracting the virus, and what you can expect from your local healthcare professionals should COVID-19 directly affect you.

If you think you may have been exposed to COVID-19, contact your healthcare provider at Coal Country Community Health Center (CCCHC) by phone first. If you are calling after-hours, please contact Sakakawea Medical Center (SMC) at 701.748.2225.

FOR YOUR INFORMATION:

- We have set up a clinic for patients with respiratory illnesses to be seen at the CCCHC Hazen Clinic. Patients that need to see a provider for other healthcare concerns, will be scheduled at the CCCHC Beulah, Killdeer, and Center Clinics.

- When scheduling an appointment at one of the CCCHC clinics, all patients will be asked the following questions and will be scheduled at the appropriate clinic site.

Have you been in contact with someone who is sick or do you currently have any of these respiratory symptoms: Fever, cough, sore throat or difficulty breathing?

Have you traveled internationally in the past 30 days?

Did you travel recently in the United States to Washington State, New York, or California?

Have you had close contact with a confirmed or probable case of COVID-19?

- CCCHC Center & Killdeer Clinics are deferring patients with respiratory illnesses until further notice in order to provide safe quality care to our patients and maintain a safe environment for our rural outlying clinics.

- Behavioral Health services at Coal Country Community Health Center will continue to be offered. When confirming your appointment, patients will be asked the COVID-19 screening questions and must meet the criteria to be seen at one of our CCCHC Clinics. In addition, telehealth options are also available for behavioral health visits beginning the week of March 23, 2020.

- Front desk staff at SMC will also be screening patients coming into the hospital and will be asking patients to wear a mask and gloves if necessary.

- Visitor restrictions have been put in place at both SMC and Senior Suites.

- Telehealth visits are currently being scheduled with a provider at the Beulah clinic. Please call 701-873-4445 for additional screening and triage questions to assess if a telehealth visit is appropriate.

Prevention: The best way to prevent illness is to avoid being exposed to this virus. We recommend everyday preventive actions to help prevent the spread of virus, including:

- Wash your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds especially after you have been in a public place, or after using the restroom, blowing your nose, coughing or sneezing.

- If soap and water are not readily available, use a hand sanitizer that contains at least 60% alcohol. Cover all surfaces of your hands and rub them together until they feel dry.

- Avoid touching your eyes, nose, and mouth with unwashed hands.

- Avoid close contact with people who are sick.

- Stay home from work and public areas if you are sick.

- Cover your mouth and nose with a tissue when you cough or sneeze. Throw used tissues in the trash and immediately wash your hands.

- Clean and disinfect frequently touched objects and surfaces daily using a regular household cleaning spray or wipe.

- Facemasks should be used if you are experiencing flu-like symptoms, such as coughing. This will help reduce spread of any virus you have.

WRT pledges to keep members connected

WRT realizes the importance of reliable communication during this unsettling time. The local internet and telephone cooperative recently joined the commitment to keep members connected by signing the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) Keep Americans Connected Pledge.

As the novel coronavirus, COVID-19, continues to spread across the country, businesses and schools are making the decision to move to remote work and online instruction. To ensure that Americans do not lose their broadband or telephone connectivity as a result of these exceptional circumstances, FCC Chairman Ajit Pai has urged telecommunications companies across the country to take the Keep Americans Connected Pledge.

WRT has joined the FCC in this pledge, which will promote connectivity for residents impacted by disruptions during this coronavirus pandemic.

Given the scope of this pandemic and its impact on American society, WRT pledges for the next 60 days to:

(1) not terminate service to any residential or small business customers because of their inability to pay their bills due to the disruptions caused by the coronavirus pandemic;

(2) waive any late fees that any residential or small business customers incur because of their economic circumstances related to the coronavirus pandemic; and

(3) open its current Wi-Fi hotspots to any American who needs them.

Even in these times of great uncertainty, WRT is here for you. As we continue to do our part to help our members stay connected and safe, we encourage the use of technology – such as website, email, phone, online billing, social media, etc. – to connect with WRT.

WRT lobbies are closed. Call

748-2211, email wrt@westriv.com or visit the cooperative's website or Facebook page. Techs will be limited to essential services and calling beforehand. WRT is helping connect schools and students. Students without internet should contact the school. WRT is waiving late fees and not disconnecting members.

For the safety of WRT employees, as well as members, WRT will also ask if anyone in your home and/or business is impacted by the COVID-19 outbreak and is considered at risk of exposure. If there is any question or hesitancy, WRT will reschedule any onsite visits / installations for a later period. WRT will continue to monitor the situation on an ongoing basis.

For more information on the Keep Americans Connected Pledge, visit the FCC website: www.fcc.gov/document/charman-pai-launches-keep-americans-connected-pledge.

Timing Turkey Success

BY NICK SIMONSON

In that gap between the last snow melting and the sure signs of spring like budding trees and greening grass, the tom turkey is king of the corridor throughout the rills and rivers of the region. For those starting in turkey hunting or looking to increase their success in harvesting a gobbler this season, keying in on the basics, such as knowing the times and patterning places and portions of the season where turkeys are most active will make for a memorable spring.

With early spring conditions sweeping over much of the upper Midwest, where there is little snow cover, turkeys are already showing signs of activity and the toms are getting restless. While the prime breeding season – complete with the flamboyant strutting displays and competitive action between toms vying for the attention of hens – won't hit until late April, NDG&F Upland Biologist R. J. Gross has tips for hunters for locating birds no matter the time of the season they're able to get into the field, and it all starts with location.

"You need those riparian corridors and places like the pine forest," Gross relates on the best places for hunters to target "and the turkeys are responding there, they've had a few years of good conditions and have responded with good production," he continues in relation to birds in the western stretches of North Dakota, where that habitat is plentiful and recent winters have been mild.

Some scouting ahead of the season is important in punching a spring turkey tag and patterning birds once a flock is located is key in finding a place to set up a decoy and take a position to intercept them during their daily routines. Utilizing camouflage and staying as still as possible, or better yet, getting concealed in a brushed-in ground blind, will help hunters keep from spooking turkeys moving through their area.

"Find where they're roosting, watch where they go when they come down; the hens will usually come down first and the gobblers and jakes will follow them wherever they go," Gross relates, "they usually go to food right away, so try and get in between their roost site and where they're going right away in the morning," he concludes.

Typically, more success for gobblers can be found later in the season as they become more responsive to hen calls and more aggressive toward decoys displayed in a field. This is due in largest part to the fact that the prime breeding season takes place in mid-to-late April, so when a tom hears the soft cluck of a hen call, he is looking for the more limited opportunity to court an unbred bird. With a hen decoy deployed and a few well-timed calls, the latter stretch of the season can produce fast action and responsive toms.

"The breeding season is all depending on photoperiod or the length of daylight during the day," Gross explains, "usually later in the year is better, a lot of the hens have already been bred; they don't want anything to do with the toms anymore so the toms are getting more lonely so they hear a hen cluck from your call they get a little more excited and a little bit more ambitious to come check out what it is," he relates.

A few tags for select units remain in North Dakota heading into the season and can be purchased by clicking the "Buy and Apply" tab at gf.nd.gov. The North Dakota spring turkey season starts on Apr. 11 and closes on May 17. South Dakota's archery turkey season starts Apr. 4, with the general season beginning April. 11; both run until May 31 with more information at: gfp.sd.gov/turkey/
