A decorative swirl graphic located to the right of the text, featuring elegant, flowing lines and floral motifs.

A large graphic at the top of the page spells out "STAGE I BURN BAN". The word "STAGE" is in a large, bold, black font. The word "I" is a single letter in a box. The word "BURN" is in a large, bold, black font. The word "BAN" is in a large, bold, black font. There are several yellow boxes around the text, some containing letters and others empty.

As of April 2, 2020 for Mercer & Oliver Counties, which includes all Cities within the counties, will be under a Stage I Burn Ban ONLY WHEN the ND Fire Danger Ratings Map shows high, very high, extreme and/or a Reg Flag warning has been issued for Mercer County and/or Oliver County. You can see ND Fire Danger Rating Map if you go to the following website and scroll down to the middle: <https://www.ndresponse.gov/burn-ban-restrictions-fire-danger-maps>

A STAGE I BURN BAN MEANS:

- No controlled burns, no large pit fires and no burning garbage of any kind.
- No throwing cigarette butts or anything out in a grassy area or any area that may start to burn.
- No Special burning permission will be given for any reason.

BUT,

You can have a Campfire in a developed recreational site or improved site, while always keeping an eye on it. You can use grills and units that have an on/off switch in an area that you can safely operate without starting a fire.

Remember even though you are allowed some options to burn this doesn't absolve an individual or organization from liability or responsibility for any fire started by the allowed activity.

AND REMEMBER...

ANY INDIVIDUAL WHO WILLFULLY VIOLATES THIS BURN BAN IS GUILTY OF A CLASS B MISDEMEANOR (NDCC 37-17.1-10.1) PUNISHABLE BY A FINE OF UP TO $1500 AND 30 DAYS IN JAIL. THE MERCER & OLIVER COUNTY SHERIFF'S DEPARTMENTS ARE AUTHORIZED TO ISSUE CITATIONS TO VIOLATORS.

When the Burn Ban is lifted, we are asking that all controlled burns be reported to the Sheriff's office, 745-3333, when the fire starts and then another call when the fire has been extinguished, Thank You!

Please Visit www.mercercounty911.com for Fire Ban Updates.

Volunteers answer a local call

By DANIEL ARENS

All around the world, people are putting on masks.

Some people have been doing it for quite a long time. In fact, problems have emerged in places like New York, with shortages of masks for medical and health care providers due to COVID-19's widespread nature sapping up the N-95 respiratory masks and worried residents early stocking up on masks for their own protection.

Now, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) is recommending citizens wear non-medical cloth masks if they need to go out in public. But even before this announcement, several residents throughout the county have begun making basic masks to help out those in need.

It's a groundswell of local response to this major cause here in our own small, rural area. It ranges from individuals with a knack for sewing and a heart for service, to community organizations and church groups seeing this as a way to come together (in spirit and purpose, if not actually physically) while addressing a major need.

Several members of the Common Threads Quilters Guild, which meets in Hazen, have taken up the cause of preparing masks.

"Because of personal distance, everyone has to do it at home," Peggy Cahoon, one of the guild members, said. She was contacted by Buffalo Hill Veterinary Clinic and has made some masks for them.

Another member, Joell Neumiller, a Stanton resident, said she originally got involved in order to make masks for the hospital in case they should face a shortage. However, now that she's started making them, she finds it difficult to stop.

"I've made over 100 of them already," she said Friday. "They're simple ones, no wire, no filter, mine are just plain."

Neumiller said her masks are pleated, going over the nose and mouth and down below the chin, with elastic around the ears to hold it on. She said the top is cotton and the bottom a light flannel material.

Neumiller said she received a thank you from the hospital, where 35 of the masks had been delivered. She's started giving them to people in Stanton who need them.

"I think it's a changing world, we'll all be wearing them," she said. "I'll keep making them."

In the rural Zap area, sewing masks has become a kind of family enterprise. Dorothy Simenson, 93, has a passion for sewing, and she's now using that passion to help out.

"I've been making welding caps for the plants since 2000, now I switched to making face masks," she said. "Being I bought all the cotton for the welding cap, I have a whole lot of material."

Dorothy Simenson isn't working alone. Her son Richard and his wife Aloha, who also live in rural Zap, are also involved. The family is well aware of the need for masks, and found they had the material, the time and the will to help.

Richard found a pattern online, and the family has been able to work together with the supplies they have to make dozens of masks.

"She's accumulated years and years of cotton material," Richard said.

"I just got more elastic since I was running out of that," Dorothy said, referring to the elastic loops they use to go around the ears. That way, she can continue to produce them.

Submitted by Richard Simenson

Richard Simenson prepares face masks at his house near Zap.

For his part, Richard has used his machine for repairing clothes for many years. Now, he's found a new use for his hobby.

"Last year I was making caps for Zip to Zap, and this year, I'm making masks," he laughed. "Who knew?"

Richard said the family is currently working on two different patterns, due to the materials they have on hand. Dorothy is doing a two-ply material, with two layers, while Richard is making his with three materials.

"We know that these things are not going to be bullet-proof for stopping the virus," he said. However, the more layers, the better chance of protection, something Richard stressed and which the CDC recommends for the non-medical cloth masks used by the public.

Richard said he's also moved from the elastic band around the ears to a modified mask with Velcro around the neck.

"As long as we have material, we'll make them," he said. "I enjoy doing it cause I think it's for a real important cause."

Richard emphasized that, while the masks can be reused, they must be properly laundered between uses.

"They should be treated as a hazardous material when you take them off, until you clean them," he said. "Put in a container of mild bleach and water, or at least a 50/50 mix of alcohol and water, then dry them." He added people should not forget to sanitize the masks either.

Three ladies from Prince of Peace Lutheran Church in Beulah are also answering the call. Larue Schwarz, Karen Knell and Lynda Doe have worked together to sew for the church in the past. Now they decided they could work together, even from their own respective homes, to help out.

"So far we've made some for the hospital and for the [Knife River Care Center]," Schwarz said. Like Neumiller, Schwarz said her masks are 100 percent cotton on one side and 100 percent flannel on the other.

Having run out of elastic, Schwarz got creative, cutting inch-and-a-quarter strips of material diagonally to make ties for the actual masks.

"We don't meet together, but we call each other just to break the monotony," Schwarz said, with the total number of masks made by the three ladies having exceeded 100.

Sakakawea Medical Center and Coal Country Community Health Center CEO Darrold Bertsch said the willingness of these individuals and groups to reach out to the local health care providers is encouraging.

"You hear all across the country that there is a shortage," he said. "When they offered to make some, we said, 'Certainly.'"

Currently, the hospital is still able to get some of the N-95 and surgical masks that provide their direct caregivers with the most protection. However, they are using the donated cloth masks for other employees not involved in direct care, such as office personnel.

In addition, Bertsch said while health care workers will always prioritize the official FDA-approved masks, in the event of the national shortage impacting local hospitals and clinics, there would still be an option for some level of protection.

"We really appreciate people thinking outside the box," Bertsch said.

Mayors of Hazen and Beulah STATEMENT ON COVID-19

First and foremost, the Health and Safety of our communities is our top priority. We want to be thoughtful and safety minded in this time of uncertainty. Based on the Federal Government and the state of North Dakota's declaration of Emergency, our cities are covered by their declaration and do not need to formally declare one ourselves.

We want our communities to band together like never before. We encourage community members to be local minded. Practice social distancing the smart, coal country way. Many of the businesses in our towns have taken steps to maintain social distancing while still providing services. Closing lobby areas, for instance, but keeping drive up windows open. As the Governor stated yesterday, "This is a time for innovation."

We want the grocery stores, restaurants, gas stations and all businesses to find ways to continue business with minimal differences, or disruptions. Promote takeout, promote in and out, and promote staying local. Use drive-up windows, use technology to pay bills and use minimal contact methods for normal commerce. We don't want to mandate, or regulate, your activities through the City Government. We want businesses to take charge and self-regulate. Discourage congregating at your locations as much as possible. The Cities are committed to providing services like water, sewer, garbage pickup and police and fire protection.

Thank you for your cooperation!

Travis Frey
Mayor of Beulah

Jerry Obenauer
Mayor of Hazen

COVID - 19, JUST THE FACTS

There is still a lot of confusion about what happens in the process when a person is declared positive, and then who really is contagious.

Once a person is confirmed positive, Local public health gets a call with only the information of County of residence (Listed on the test form), age and gender. We do not get any other information, but even if we did we could not share that...due to HIPAA. Local Public Health Units, as well as others trained to do case investigation, will then start to get close contacts.

A close contact is someone that has been within 6 ft of a person for more than 15 minutes. So a person that is a casual contact or perhaps in a building would not be considered a contact.

Only people that are considered close contacts will be notified, and asked to self-isolate for 14 days. They are followed by their case investigator every day for 14 days to follow symptoms. They are not considered contagious until they get symptoms, at which time they would be tested. At that time, the process would start over, meaning they would be asked their close contacts, and followed for that 14 days.

A facility would not have to close, if someone was "in their facility, or a person was related to someone that worked there" etc...

At this time, unless we call you, you are not considered a close contact, and thus not exposed. The reality is that COVID is out there, and everyone needs to continue to take precautions. We will persevere!

Dear Chamber of Commerce Members and Communities,

We are going to continue working on your behalf in both of our communities, while working with governmental officials during the COVID-19 pandemic.

The goal of the Chamber is to ensure that the information we share is accurate, informative and researched. The goal for our business and nonprofit members is to ensure the safety and well being of your employees, volunteers and customers.

The goal for our communities is to continue to support local in ways that are safe and appropriate. We are going through this together and need to count on each other to be calm, rational and considerate.

Check on your neighbors and at-risk community members by calling on the phone or sending private messages via social media. Both Chamber of Commerce offices are closed to the public, however; questions and concerns can be sent to hazenchamber@westriv.com or call 748-6848 and Beulah Chamber at Olheiser@visitbeulah.com or 873-4585. ## Social tips for businesses during COVID-19

1. Communicate as much as you can!
  - a. Post! Post! Post!
  - b. If you have the funds for paid advertising, target your area to inform people of deals or how you are still making business happen.
  - c. Experiment with Lives! Facebook often notifies people directly when a page they like goes live. If you have Instagram, remember stories as well. The more you post in stories, the more Instagram will serve your content up to your audience.
2. Compassionate, but direct language.
  - a. Brands are addressing COVID-19 directly are seeing almost 30-40% higher engagements than brands who aren't. Here is what this looks like:
  - b. Speak as a community leader. Offer positivity and insights into what your business is doing to adjust to the new normal.
  - c. Tell me HOW you're doing. A direct and open dialogue with your community is essential when we have no other ways to communicate right now.
  - d. Show gratitude back to the community in return for their support.
3. North Dakotans support one another, connect with other businesses or large social presences to see how you can do that.
  - a. Set up a group call or reach out socially to other businesses in your city/county. Learn about what they're doing that is working or what is not working and see if there is a way to collaborate and uplift each other.
  - b. Reach out to tourism entities.
  - c. Reach out to larger social presences that represent who you are. See if there is any way to collaborate or share content to uplift each other on a larger stage.

$21,000 given to state students to help start and support agricultural projects

The North Dakota FFA Foundation has awarded 21 North Dakota students a $1,000 grant to aid in their agricultural business and/or projects.

Among the recipients is Beulah's Karlee Sailer.

The Bakk Farm Supervised Agricultural Experience (SAE) Grant is a program that has given hundreds of thousands to N.D. FFA members and students through the course of its existence. To be eligible for the grant, a student must be an active ND FFA member and have a business or project in the field of agriculture to apply the earnings towards. The applications are received and judged based on whether a member is beginning or expanding their agricultural project or business. This year, nine recipients were awarded a beginning grant and 12 were awarded an expansion grant.

"These grants are very meaningful to a high school student in North Dakota," says Edgeley-Kulm High School's Agricultural Educator, Cameron Young. "The $1,000 that is awarded to a student allows them to turn what might be a hobby or passion for agriculture into a business or tangible experience."

The 21 members who received these funds represent 14 different chapters and towns in N.D. The grants are made possible from rental income produced by land gifted to the ND FFA Foundation by Fridjov Bakk in 1980.

"After reading the applications from this year's applicants, it's rewarding to know our $1,000 grants are going to students who are working hard to turn their passion into a possible lifelong career," says Thomas Winders, sponsor and program coordinator of the ND FFA Foundation. "The incredible things our youth in North Dakota are doing in the field of agriculture is absolutely impressive."

The applications received show a wide range of diversity, from aquaculture to equine science, and crop to beef production, illustrating the continued importance of agriculture here in North Dakota.

For more information about these grants and the North Dakota FFA Foundation visit NDDFFAFoundation.com.

UPDATE FOR CITY EQUALIZATION MEETING:

Due to the recent order signed by the governor regarding open meetings and forgoing the requirement to have a physical location as long as there is other means of communication available to the public; we are postponing the City Equalization Meeting to APRIL 15, 2020, AT 5:00 P.M. We will be conducting the meeting as a teleconference for the public. Anyone interested in attending this meeting will need to contact Patty Koapke, Director of Tax Equalization, by phone at 701-794-3129 or e-mail at pakoapke@nd.gov by April 15, 2020, to get on the list to call in. Unfortunately, we do not have the call in details at this time. These details will be posted on the door of the Civic Center and Oliver County Courthouse for the public. Any individual who received a Notice of Increase will receive a letter with these details as well. We apologize for any inconvenience this may have caused.
