ENOUGH IS ENOUGH

Jeff Delzer has tried to run a positive campaign in the face of one of the most misleading, negative and expensive legislative campaigns in the history of our State!

No More! Let's look at the FACTS!

Who is funding his opponent's race? Their campaign is being funded almost exclusively by a Fargo based Political Action Committee. The governor has personally donated $280,000 to that PAC. Of the $209,000 in other funds reported recently, $164,000, came from out of state. Many observers feel the governor is trying to pack the legislature with legislators who will vote the way he wants. This could be one of the greatest threats in our history to separation of powers enshrined in the Constitution of the State of North Dakota.

Who is helping fund Jeff's campaign? His campaign reports shows donations from over 60 individuals from throughout District 8 and across the state. His biggest donation came from the PAC for one of the largest family farm groups in the state. There is support from people connected to the oil and coal industries. You will see donations from individual legislators from across the state, who have watched him work tirelessly for a brighter future for every person and business in not only District 8, but our entire state.

The voters of District 8 deserve an honest campaign with the truth about the issues and all of the facts!

Term Limits: In all likelihood, term limits in the legislature would hurt rural North Dakota. Rural legislators could lose the chairmanships and committee assignments they have earned under the seniority system. Those positions are vital to a District like ours. Bureaucrats love term limits, as there will be nobody present with the historical knowledge to combat their efforts to spend more and more of your tax dollars. Fringe candidates also support term limits hoping to have more open seats where they might sneak into a spot. Jeff opposes legislative term limits, because he believes the change would dramatically hurt rural districts.

Increased State Spending: Certainly state spending, like spending for your family, your business, family farm or ranch has gone up in the last twenty years. But there is no question state spending would have been much higher, if Jeff Delzer hadn't been there to make the bureaucrats and others justify every increase in the spending of your tax dollars.

Support of our Veterans, Senior Citizens and Family Farms: Jeff Delzer supported hundreds of efforts to help each of those groups during his years of public service. Every session there are nearly a thousand bills or more. You may vote against one because there is another bill coming that is better or the funding is included elsewhere in the budget. You have to look at the entire package and not cherry pick one or two votes to use in a misleading campaign flyer.

Tax Relief: Jeff has supported broad tax relief for all our citizens and has the votes to prove it!

Pledges: Jeff does not sign pledges from special interest groups because I want to see the final bill before I vote. That way I can do what's right for District 8. As for the brighter future special interest group I already have a long record of doing things which are in their proposed pledge.

Jeff Delzer

When the Appropriations Committee makes recommendations for funding your:
School Districts - Long-term Care Facilities - Veteran's Programs - Hospitals -
Senior Citizen Programs - Roads and Bridges and hundreds of other things vital to District 8 and the state of North Dakota, wouldn't you want someone on the committee?

No Freshman House members serve on the Appropriations Committee.

Jeff Delzer is the Chairman.

Don't let a Fargo based Political Action Committee and others, with unlimited funds, convince you that you can be better served by someone with no seniority, no experience and no committee positions that matter to our District!

VOTE TO RE-ELECT JEFF DELZER

He is the RIGHT CHOICE in these difficult times!

Are You Exploring Your Freezer for Menu Options?

BY JULIE GARDEN-ROBINSON
 FOOD AND NUTRITION SPECIALIST - NDSU

Most of the time, frozen food is safe, although it might be a little freezer-burned from dehydration.

I took a bite of homemade buttermilk pancakes.

Having breakfast for dinner is one of my favorite meals.

Then I took a bite of sausage. The more I chewed, the worse it tasted. I also noticed it had a bad aroma.

"How old is this sausage?" I asked my husband, who was head chef that evening.

I heard a heavy sigh coming from the kitchen.

"It's pretty old," he responded. "I found it in the freezer and I didn't think you'd notice."

Fortunately, I still have a pretty good sense of taste and smell. Did you know that loss of smell and taste can be a symptom of COVID-19?

Our older daughter sat down at the table.

"Don't eat the sausage," I advised as I looked at her plate.

"Dad, I think this is going to be a column," our daughter remarked with a grin.

Then she began "writing" my column as we sat at the dinner table. Her version was funnier than my version, I think.

"The pancakes are excellent," I said as my husband joined us at the dinner table.

Like many other people, lately we have been "mining" our freezer to develop dinner menus and use up food during the pandemic.

Most of the time, frozen food is safe, although it might be a little freezer-burned from dehydration. Sometimes, however, frozen food becomes inedible.

Upon further investigation, I found the packaging in the trash. One of us must have put the plastic-wrapped package of sausage in the freezer without popping it into a freezer bag or rewrapping it in butcher paper.

Sometimes, we get in a rush to store food upon returning from the grocery store. I might have been the culprit.

We definitely do not like to waste food in our home. No one does. This sneaky package of sausage links was a stowaway under some other food packages.

Usually, a plastic-wrapped meat package directly from the store is fine for a month or two in the freezer. A year had passed and rancidity development had occurred.

When oxygen interacts with fat in almost any type of food without preservatives, objectionable odors and flavors can result. "Oxidation" occurs when oxygen triggers chemical changes in the fat. This natural process can result in undesirable flavors and odors in high-fat foods such as nuts, high-fat meats or snack foods.

If you look at ingredient labels on some products, you might see natural or artificial preservatives added to the food to prevent these chemical changes.

As you consider packaging materials for foods to prolong frozen storage time, look for materials that are moisture resistant. It should be made of "food grade" material; in other words, the materials should be designed for use in direct contact with food products.

The material should be durable and leak-proof. It should not become brittle and crack at freezer temperatures of zero F. It should protect foods from off flavors and odors, and be easy to fill, seal and store. It also should be easy to mark with the contents/date.

If you buy meat for long-term quality in frozen storage, use good-quality freezer paper and/or freezer bags. Freezer paper has a plastic or wax lining that helps reduce exposure of the meat to oxygen. Aluminum foil also works well as an outer wrapper because it conforms well to the food.

If you use plastic freezer bags, be sure they say "freezer bags" instead of "storage bags" because the thickness of the plastic differs. Be sure to press the air out of the packaging.

Some people invest in a vacuum sealer to package food while removing oxygen. Be sure to follow the manufacturer's directions.

Try some pancakes for dinner. They're delicious with fresh fruits such as strawberries, which are in season in the spring. Fresh breakfast sausage also is a nice accompaniment.

Buttermilk Pancakes

- 2 c. buttermilk (or substitute reconstituted dry buttermilk)
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. baking soda
- 2 tsp. baking powder
- 2 Tbsp. sugar
- 1 3/4 c. all-purpose flour
- 2 Tbsp. butter or margarine, melted

Preheat griddle to 375 degrees. Mix buttermilk and eggs together. In separate bowl, stir dry ingredients together (or use a sifter). Stir in buttermilk and egg mixture. Add melted butter and mix. Drop from ladle onto hot griddle, cooking each side about two minutes or until light brown. Flip when you see bubbles.

Makes six servings. Each serving has 240 calories, 6 grams (g) fat, 9 g protein, 36 g carbohydrate and 720 milligrams sodium.

County court resumes in June

Limited attendance, building access for court dates

BY ALYSSA MEIER
EDITOR

The McLean County Courthouse will cautiously open its doors for scheduled court dates next month, though there will be heavy restrictions in place.

As there are court hearings scheduled for June 3 and June 8-12, county clerk Cathy Bailey asked commissioners for clarification Tuesday on if the building will still be closed to the public.

The courthouse will remain closed to the general public, auditor Beth Knutson said, but up to ten people will be allowed inside for scheduled court dates. A total of ten individuals, including court staff, are allowed in the courtroom at one time, with another three able to wait in the lobby.

Those entering the building will be restricted to paths between the front doors, elevators and seating area, with no access to other areas of the building.

There will be security at the front door to direct visitors and points of contact will be sanitized regularly.

County testing signs for dust control

BY ALYSSA MEIER
BHG NEWS

After concern was raised earlier this month about a high level of dust on an Underwood-area road, McLean County Commissioners decided to see if additional signage will curb the problem.

Commissioners continued a discussion from the May 5 commission meeting on Tuesday morning, debating how to address concerns from a rural Underwood resident. Craig Argabright, who owns property on Wolf Creek West Road, attended the May 5 meeting via phone call in hopes of finding a solution for the amount of dust coming off of the road.

Argabright said the road was treated for dust control until 2019, but treatment stopped after complaints were made regarding erosion to vehicles traversing the road.

Commissioner Barry Suydam said he wasn't sure what the solution was, as travelers want lower chloride levels on the road but the dust level is significant.

The commissioners debated several options, including a reduced speed limit, increased enforcement and speed bumps, but settled on trying to increase signage.

Jim Grey of the Highway Department was instructed to add a slow sign with a 15 mile per hour advisory on the road. "Give that a shot,"

Commissioner Steve Lee said, adding that the commission can reevaluate in the future.

For Sale: The City of Underwood is selling a 40'x110' commercial building on Lots 5-6-7, Block 5, Original Townsite. Property and building will be sold together in one bid. Property is zoned Downtown Commercial with the first 40 feet to remain retail. Bids must include a description of the intended use and a statement of understanding of how the property is zoned. For more information call 701-442-5481. Deadline June 8, 2020 by 5pm. Bids may be delivered to the Underwood city office or mailed to PO Box 168, Underwood, ND 58576

DAKOTA GARDENER Unexplored Vegetable Garden Spaces

BY CARRIE KNUTSON
NDSU Extension Agent,
Grand Forks County,

You always seem to have projects when you own a home. As a gardener, I tend to add more to the outside to-do list than the inside list. I have been working on re-doing the rock and fabric landscaping around my house.

The work is slow, one shovelful at a time, but this spring I am reaching my goal of finishing the backyard. I plan on removing the rock entirely from the last section for a flower bed.

The original plan was to create a pollinator garden that would complement the other pollinator-friendly plants in my yard. I still have that goal, but now I want to include some sun- and heat-loving vegetables such as tomatoes, peppers and herbs in that space.

In other beds, I want to explore and try growing new vegetables such as kohlrabi and Swiss chard this year. It's exciting!

If you are looking to increase your vegetable garden space this year and are short on time, consider combining ornamentals and edibles in your landscape plantings. The space you want to plant in should receive enough sunlight for the vegetables you want to grow.

Most vegetables need eight or more hours of sunlight a day for good production.

Leafy greens such as lettuce, spinach and kale will grow well with six to eight hours of sunlight.

Also make sure you are able to get water to the vegetables easily when needed.

Don't crowd the plants together, and make sure each vegetable or flower has the space it needs to grow.

Vegetables can serve as a design element in a landscape

if you look at them in the right light. The large, thick leaves of zucchini can contrast nicely with the dark blue, fountainlike foliage of broccoli. Throw in some cosmos, zinnias or marigolds in your favorite color and you have an eye-catching vegetable garden.

Vegetables can be grown easily in containers to provide more growing space.

However, you have a few things to keep in mind.

The container size should match the root depth and plant size. For example, lettuce and onions can be grown in small, shallow containers, while tomatoes will need large, deep (5 to 10 gallons) containers. When in doubt, use a bigger container than you think the plant needs.

You can find containers of different types (fabric, plastic, clay or metal) and items you can repurpose as containers. I've seen creative gardeners use old wheelbarrows, teapots and even boots as containers. Use your imagination.

Regardless of the type, all containers should have drainage holes in the bottom.

Containers will need daily watering, especially when the weather is hot, and weekly applications of a water-soluble fertilizer.

If you are not ready to devote all your container space to vegetables, incorporate a few of your favorite vegetables into your containers. The plants you are going to use together should have the same growing requirements for light and moisture and have complementary space needs. For example, plant a container with a tall pepper, a trailing flower and a shorter leafy green.

One final note: Making sure members of your family know what is safe to eat and what is not when combining plantings is a good idea. Happy planting!

Perfect 20/20 Vision under conservative spending values, grassroots campaigning, and honesty with Jeff Delzer and Bob Wheeler.

Perfect 20/20 vision for North Dakota's future not blurry math and dirty smear campaigns.

You don't need 20/20 vision to see that 'outsiders' generally don't receive thousands of dollars for their campaigns from inside sources.

For a clear and bright picture, vote Delzer and Wheeler on your mail in ballot by June 8th.

Are the District 8 House Seats Up for Sale?

As a District 8 legislator, I am ashamed and embarrassed with all the false information that has been put out by the Dakota Leadership PAC and am very sad to see how low our governor and 2 candidates in Bismarck are willing to go.

Campaign finance reporting on the Secretary of State's website show that the newly created Dakota Leadership PAC (Feb 2020) has a personal donation of $195,000 from Governor Burgum and with several large out-of-state contributions, the PAC now has $414,000 to support political campaigns. The PAC is heavily targeting House Appropriations Chairman Rep. Jeff Delzer of District 8 as well as conservative candidates in selected races.

In the in the Minuteman Blog "District 8 House Race - Is Burgum Using Former Staffers to Defeat an Enemy?" (5/1/2020) and the ND Watchdog Network "Putting Politics over Policy will Backfire" (5/13/2020), some pertinent points are made about the governor's heavy involvement in choosing his legislators. Taking down one legislator will be a message to other legislators: You serve at the pleasure of the governor. So who can afford to run a campaign in ND unless you come up with hundreds of thousands of dollars?

What Gov. Burgum is doing is not illegal and it's not unusual for executive branch people to help raise money for candidates, but this is setting a precedent that is not healthy. Governor Burgum is making this next legislative session extremely difficult as he is creating a great divide between the executive and legislative branches.

As of this date, WTI price of oil is $25.80/barrel. Farm prices are low, and there's continual destruction of the coal industry as well as many challenges with the virus. Our state is going to have to tighten our belts. There are very few in the legislature that have the budgetary and agency knowledge as Rep. Delzer. Jeff is highly respected by his colleagues in the House. He has received awards from the Lignite Council, the American Conservative Union Foundation and is one of the most conservative legislators in the State. The two Bismarck candidates can dig in the gutter, but Jeff can proudly run on his record.

It's hard to imagine $414,000 being spent in the primary, but the flurry of TV and radio ads along with an avalanche of over-sized postcards and malicious mailings makes it look plausible. The voters of District 8 will have an opportunity to reject this sort of big money takeover. As for me, Republican or not, Governor Burgum has lost my vote.

A vote for DELZER-WHEELER will send a message.
Rep. Vernon and Rose Laning
