Try These 7 Questions About Sun Safety

BY JULIE GARDEN-ROBINSON
FOOD AND NUTRITION
SPECIALIST - NDSU

Using a hat and sunscreen are a couple of ways to help prevent damage to our skin and, potentially, skin cancer. “Am I going to need sunglasses?” my husband asked me.

That was an unusual question. Then I noticed he had a smirk on his face.

I was doing yardwork and feeling a bit warm in the summer sun. I had announced I was going inside our house to change into shorts. After a long, cold winter, I guess the reflection of light on my pale skin might hurt his sensitive eyes.

My husband is among the people who regularly inspire my column topics, which he did again this week. Most of the time I am giving him a bad time. He gets a turn this week.

He handed me my brimmed hat. I noted three bottles of sunscreen on the step. Using a hat and sunscreen are a couple of ways to help prevent damage to our skin and, potentially, skin cancer.

On the other hand, a little exposure to sunlight does promote the creation of vitamin D in our skin. Being exposed to sun as little as 10 to 30 minutes a few times a week provides us with adequate vitamin D, which has numerous health benefits.

Skin cancer is the most common of all cancers. Try these questions to see what you know about skin cancer:

1: Name at least three characteristics of spots (such as size, color, etc.) on your skin that should be noted to a health-care professional.

2: Which of these types of cancer is the most serious?

a: Melanoma
b: Basal cell carcinoma
c: Squamous cell carcinoma
d: Merkel cell carcinoma

3: True or False: Using a tanning bed is linked with skin cancer.

4: What is the name of the measure of the amount of UV radiation required to produce a sunburn on protected skin?

5: How much sunscreen should you apply?

a: 1 ounce
b: 2 ounces
c: 3 ounces

6: During which time period should you seek shade?

a: 8 a.m. to noon
b: 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.
c: Noon to 5 p.m.

7: We should wear sunglasses that protect from UV (ultraviolet)-A and UV-B rays. Which two type of eye diseases are linked with damaging sun rays?

Answers.

1: Be sure to report to a health-care professional any spots on your skin that a) have changed in color, size or texture, b) are bigger than 1/4 inch (the diameter of a pencil eraser), c) appeared after age 21, d) appear pearly, translucent, tan, brown, black or multicolored, or e) itch, hurt, crust over or scab, erode, bleed or haven’t healed within three weeks.

2: a: Melanoma is the most dangerous type of skin cancer. It is curable if caught early.

3: True. Tanning beds are cited by the Food and Drug Administration as a known carcinogen.

4: Sun protection factor, or SPF. A higher number means that more protection is provided. Remember that exposure to sun through vehicle windows or through clothing can result in sunburns, which increase your risk for skin cancer.

Many organizations recommend an SPF of 30 or higher, especially if you enjoy being outside gardening, golfing or enjoying other outdoor activities. If you use an SPF 30 product, your skin would take 30 times longer to burn, compared with using no sunscreen. According to the Skin Cancer Foundation, an SPF of 15 is fine for occasional sun exposure such as driving to work or walking a dog.

5: a: Apply at least 1 ounce of sunscreen. If you need a visual: That’s about the amount that fits in a typical shot glass. Be sure to reapply sunscreen, especially if you swim or are perspiring on a warm day.

6: b: The sun is most damaging between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

7: Macular degeneration and cataracts are linked to unprotected exposure to sunlight.

As we enjoy our warmer weather, don’t forget your sunscreen, and check for an expiration date. Wear a broad-brimmed hat and high-quality sunglasses.

June is Dairy Month. Try a smoothie with dairy and fruit. Here’s a recipe and nutrition analysis from the National Dairy Council, which was created by Chicago-based chef Rick Tramonto. Slip on some sunglasses, put on sunscreen, find some shade and enjoy this recipe.

Apple Yogurt Smoothie

- 2 c. low-fat vanilla yogurt
- 1 Granny Smith apple
- 1/2 c. orange juice
- 1/2 c. ice
- 2 Tbsp. honey

Core, peel and dice the apple. Mix all ingredients in a blender or food processor until smooth and pour into tall glasses. Garnish with sliced almonds, fruit, julienne mint and 1/2 teaspoon of honey, if desired.

Makes two servings. Each serving has 330 calories, 3 grams (g) fat, 13 g protein, 56 g carbohydrate, 3 g fiber and 160 milligrams sodium.

GARDENING TIPS

Taking care of your ephemerals

BY BEV JOHNSON M.G.
University of Minnesota Extension

So what is an ephemeral anyway? Its' tulips, hyacinths, daffodils and all the other spring blooming minor bulb plants. When they begin to die down, they look pretty messy. The leaves sprawl and they drive the Martha types up the wall. Martha recommends BRAIDING daff leaves!! Go ahead if you don't want a healthy daffodil next spring. Those apparently dying leaves are making food for next year's blossoms. Eventually they will disappear but in the meantime the best you can do is to plant annuals in front of them. Or, for next spring, plant perennials in front of the ones that bug you the most. It is very tempting to cover the mess with mulch but that cuts down the amount of sun the leaves get too so don't do it. Iris are just starting to bloom. Now is the time to mark the clumps that only have flowers on the outside of the clump. Those will need to be dug up in August and thinned. Chuck any rhysome that doesn't have a fan of leaves on it. Occasionally, as you replant iris you get them mixed up. Bunkey made the mistake 2 years ago of digging up 3 different clumps of iris at the same time. He had a yellow, blue and a dark purple that needed transplanting. This spring he had one clump of yellow and blue mixed together, another of all three colors and a third of purple next to a brown and white iris. Petunia had a lot to say about that. It is best to mark the color of the clump you are renewing and only digging one color at a time. That way, you won't have an eye hurting color clash. Bunkey's iris bed started out with all the blue and purple iris on one side and all the brown and yellow on the other. Then he bought a pink one and a peach and white one. They didn't fit either side so they went in the middle. He's seriously thinking about starting a new bed for the outliers. Watering is especially important now as you are planting annuals and adding perennials to the flowerbed. The rule of thumb is an inch a week of water either from rain or the sprinkler. Keep the water close to the ground. Those fancy sprinklers that throw water up in the air, lose quite a bit of moisture before it gets to the soil. Your vegetable gardens need at least that much moisture to do well. Of course, if you have sandy soil, you will need even more as the soil doesn't hold the moisture. Get a soil sample. It will tell you what the texture of your soil is, and how much, if any fertilizer you need. Usually the recommendation is for nitrogen. Don't get carried away. Nitrogen is for the green parts of plants. It's great for grass, corn and any leafy vegetables. Too much and your pumpkins will get worn out as the vines grow and drag them along. (Well, maybe not but you get the idea). Tomatoes in particular don't need a lot of nitrogen. It all goes to leaves and stem, not the fruit. Now that you have everything mulched, most of the hard gardening is done. You will only need to pull weeds in the rows in the veggie garden. Most likely the flower garden will still grow quack grass. You can try grass killer but the only almost final solution is to dig it up. Almost final as you can never get all of the darn stuff. Oh well, you needed the exercise.

Project moves ahead

BY ALYSSA MEIER
BHG NEWS

After hitting an initial snag, a project that could mean promise for Coal Creek Station has been given the OK by the Lignite Research Council.

The Lignite Research Council, made up by 22 members, approved $3.4 million dollars of funding for a carbon capture storage project at the Blue Flint Ethanol Plant in Underwood. This was the second pass the council took at the project, after approving it last month with a payback contingency.

The council had initially approved the project with the stipulation that if the $7 million project was unsuccessful, the $3.4 million of lignite research funding would need to be returned.

The North Dakota Industrial Commission, which gives final approval for the program, asked the council to reevaluate the decision.

The proposal is expected to be voted on by the Industrial Commission during its June 19 meeting.

Council members were optimistic that the project would aid in finding a solution for neighboring Coal Creek Station, which is slated to close in 2022. Coal Creek supplies steam to Blue Flint Ethanol.

Carbon storage includes separating carbon dioxide from produced emissions and storing it deep underground.

Thank You!

I wish to thank the voters of District 8 for their support in the primary election and in past elections. It has been my honor and privilege to be your State Representative in the North Dakota Legislature.

I have always tried to do what was in the best interests of my constituents based on the input I have received from each of you. Together we have crafted legislation that works best for not only our district but the entire state.

I will always be proud of the work we have done. I know the district and the state will do well in the future. District 8 and North Dakota are great.

Thank you very much!

Custom school supplies site launching

BHG working with schools to curate packages based on supply lists

BY ALYSSA MEIER
BHG NEWS

A new website will let parents purchase curated school supply packages customized to each classroom of BHG community schools.

NDschoolsSupplies.com, launching June 17, will take the guesswork out of school supply shopping this year. The new website, coordinated by BHG Inc., offers parents packages of school supplies based on the individual supply lists of over a dozen area schools.

Parents will be able to select a package based on their child's specific school and grade level, knowing the contents are exactly what the student needs to start the 2020-21 school year. Each package includes all required writing materials, organizational supplies, and more, and will be shipped to the parent before school starts in the fall.

Some common household items, like headphones, backpacks and paint T-shirts, are not included in packages but are available as individual purchase options on the site. Any item that is required but not included is listed in the description of each package.

"It was important for us to offer a convenient option for parents to get the supplies they needed, offer an easy way to give back to our schools and encourage local spending," BHG management said of the project.

Area schools contributed their supply lists for collaboration on the website in order to ensure packages would be accurate for the fall start to school. Schools also included "wish list" items that can be donated to the school in a separate category of the site labeled "Donate".

Shirts for each school are also available for purchase on the website.

The site will go live on June 17. Any orders placed by July 17 will be 20 percent off, with orders placed by July 24 being 10 percent off.

All orders placed on the website have a guaranteed delivery date of Aug. 12.

To date, school supply packages will cover Berthold Public School, Beulah Public School, Center-Stanton Public School, Garrison Public School, Hazen School District, Lewis & Clark North Shore-Plaza, Mandaree Public School, Max Public School, New Town Public School, Turtle Lake-Mercer Public School, Underwood Public School, Washburn Public

Grade-specific packages for the following schools:

The two extremes of what garbage pick-up typically looks like for the Turtle Lake sanitation crew.

TL commission still talking trash

BY SUZANNE WERRE,
Editor

No motions were made, and no official action was taken Monday night at Turtle Lake’s regular monthly meeting. The majority of the meeting was spent going over recent commission items and getting updates from City Auditor Darwin Saari.

No disruption in water service is expected when the city switches over from its old water source to the new water tower. Just when that will be, however, is the question. “Forty days after May 18” is the date the contractors gave the city for the anticipated finish date, but Saari and the commissioners are doubtful that will come to fruition.

Late summer, maybe even summer are a couple guesses commissioners put on the table for when locals will be getting water from the new tower. The only difference they should notice is an improvement in water pressure.

The commissioners revisited the issue of the city-run garbage collection service. It’s anticipated that the city will be able to collect its own garbage as long as the current truck is in working order, but this last month the city spent a good chunk of money on repairs.

Aside from the truck starting to show some wear and tear, the weekly pick-up is more difficult and time-consuming for the workers than it should be, particularly when garbage hasn’t been bagged.

Some residents put garbage out on the boulevard that hasn’t been bagged, so it’s harder to handle when throwing into the truck; and sometimes there’s just an extraordinary amount of garbage set out by some property owners.

It can go from a massive amount of garbage thrown by one family, then “you have a little lady with a little bag of garbage,” said one of the commissioners.

“We may want to add an extra charge (for large garbage pick-ups),” said Saari. “Everyone can have some extra garbage once in awhile, but if it’s constantly . . . and if we want to continue service beyond the life of our truck, we have to start thinking about rate adjustments and maybe a little volume control.”

“We have to decide whether we’re going to stay in the business and maybe go to using totes,” said Saari.

“We maybe need to start giving some thought to at least passing on our landfill increases,” added commissioner Dianne Zenker.

Saari earlier mentioned the landfill rates will be going up 20 percent in January.

The commissioners went on to discuss options for video cameras on Main St., with commissioner Jeramie Love mentioning there may be an option the city can check into that would have unlimited data and cameras that work on batteries up to 30 degrees below zero. He estimated the cost of each motion-sensor camera would be about $300.

The Main Street Initiative spruce-ups should be starting in the near future, noted Saari. The streets should also be seeing some spruce-ups, getting some needed repairs done as the final water lines/tower project wraps up later this summer.

The commissioners will be getting volunteers to be on the comprehensive plan committee, which will pick one or two projects for the city to focus on each year. To help with the completion of some of those projects, the city will need funding, some of which could come from the state. To get the most money possible, noted Saari, locals need to complete the census, which has been pretty slow so far.

“It’s so simple – it really takes just a couple minutes,” said Saari. “The personal question is whether you have a mortgage or not.”

Census takers will be going door-to-door shortly, he noted, but it is probably quicker for people to just get online to take it themselves.

“Encourage your neighbors to take it,” said Saari.

HELPING WORDS

BY CORY PHILIPS

Jesus loves the little children, all the children of the world.
Every color, shape and size,
they are precious in His eyes.

Jesus loves the little children of the world.

People are not born racist. They are born able to see different. But where difference isn’t valued, it is feared. What is feared is rejected. [Jeremy Foster] I didn’t grow up singing this song but its one that I have taught my daughter over the years. No matter how you look at it, George Floyd’s death was wrong. Most people that don’t want to hear or talk about his death don’t disagree that it was wrong. Admitting his death was wrong doesn’t mean you agree with everything else that has taken place is right. Jesus did not come to point out all of our flaws. He led what was right—a new way he called the way of the KINGDOM. The Jesus we serve was not American and he was not white. The Jesus we follow was a middle-eastern man who stepped out in broad daylight to meet a person of a different nationality and a different gender at a well outside her village. They came together under God’s Kingdom. He taught us not to ask the wrong question of “Who is my neighbor” but rather the right question of “How do I love all my neighbors?” He’s the Jesus that says you cannot be for Christ while being against someone else. It’s the Jesus who loves the little children of the world—every color, shape and size, they are precious in his eyes. “An individual has not started living until he can rise above the narrow confines of his individualistic concerns to the broader concerns of all humanity.” - Martin Luther King

APPLE CHEESECAKE TACOS

By Sweet Spicy Kitchen

Ingredients

CINNAMON SUGAR TORTILLA SHELLS
6 Large Flour tortillas
½ Cup Brown sugar
1½ teaspoon Cinnamon
Oil for frying
CREAM CHEESE FILLING
8 oz Cream cheese
1 Cup Heavy cream
¼ Cup Powdered sugar
1 teaspoon Vanilla extract
HOMEMADE APPLE PIE FILLING
2 large Apples, diced
½ tsp cinnamon
1/8 cup cornstarch
1/3 cup brown sugar
1 cup water
1/8 tsp nutmeg
½ tsp vanilla extract

Directions

TO MAKE CINNAMON SUGAR TORTILLA SHELLS - Combine brown sugar and cinnamon in a bowl and set aside. Using 3.5-4 inch circle cutter, cut circles from tortillas.

Heat 1 inch oil in a pan, the temperature should be medium. Put tortilla circles, using tongs, in the oil and fry for about 10-15 seconds, then turn the circles on the other side, fold them in half and fry until they become golden brown. Take them out of the pan and wait for a couple of seconds for the extra oil to drain, then immediately put in the bowl with sugar and cinnamon. Cover the shells completely with this mixture. Put some of the mixture inside of the shell, as well.

Finally, place them on the upside down muffin tin. Repeat the same procedure with the rest of the circles.

TO MAKE HOMEMADE APPLE PIE FILLING - In a medium size dish, pour water, add cornstarch, brown sugar, cinnamon, nutmeg and cook for about 2-3 minutes, at medium heat, until it thickens, stirring from time to time.

Add apples and vanilla extract and cook for 10 minutes, or until the apples soften. Remove from heat and let cool at a room temperature.

TO MAKE CHEESECAKE FILLING - Beat cream cheese, heavy cream, powdered sugar and vanilla extract for 2 minutes, using medium speed, until it thickens.

Put the mixture into a piping bag and cut off the peak. Fill the shells with cream cheese filling and put apple pie filling on top of it.

Drive-up COVID testing in Turtle Lake tomorrow

BY SUZANNE WERRE,
Editor

Area residents are invited to be tested for COVID-19 tomorrow (Thursday) in Turtle Lake, a service being provided by Northland Health Centers/CHI St. Alexius Turtle Lake Hospital and the North Dakota Department of Health.

Drive-up COVID-19 testing will be offered from 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. (or until supplies run out) on Kundert St., on the east side of the Northland Health Centers clinic/the west side of the Turtle Lake Hospital.

The testing is open to all ages whether they are symptomatic or asymptomatic, from the comfort of their own vehicles.

“You don’t even need to get out of your car to get swabbed,” said Northland’s Melissa Thury.

Northland recently received a call from the state hoping it would help ramp up the statewide testing for the coronavirus.

“A lot of people that are positive are asymptomatic,” said Thury. “This allows for us to find positive individuals and do contact tracing and find clusters of the illness.”

This testing is not because there has been a positive test in the area. McClusky recently had a free testing day, and all 98 of the people tested were negative, noted Thury.

They don’t know what type of swabs will be used for the testing – it could be either the throat swabs or the nose swabs. It’s the nose swab testing that typically alarms people because they’ve heard rumors about how uncomfortable it is.

Thury said that her eight-year-old daughter recently took the nasal swab test, and, “she said it didn’t even hurt.”

Thury herself said she found it to be less uncomfortable than a flu swab, so people shouldn’t be afraid to get tested.

The clinic/hospital plan to do 150-200 tests Thursday, either until they run out of tests or people stop showing up for the tests.

Even people who have already been tested are encouraged to re-test, said Thury.

“I would encourage them to get tested again,” she said.

Anyone with questions is encouraged to contact Northland’s central office at 448-2054 for information.

Horticulturist NDSU Extension

We all joke about growing zucchini. The vegetable gets no respect.

A zucchini vine is an amazing producer of nutritious vegetables. And yet, instead of admiring this humble vegetable, we ridicule it and take it for granted.

We dump extra zucchini in unlocked cars in the neighborhood. We drop off bags of it on the doorsteps of unsuspecting neighbors.

When the Hunger Free North Dakota project started, while begging for vegetable donations, organizers said only one zucchini plant was needed per county.

Zucchini gets no respect. It’s so plentiful and nobody knows what to do with it.

When I was a kid, my brothers and I always found uses for zucchini. We enjoyed using giant zucchinis as baseball bats.

Did you know zucchini float? You can carve a big zucchini into the shape of a canoe, put a mast on it and have zucchini toy boat races. It’s truly a versatile vegetable.

I recently discovered another use of zucchini - as a weapon! Do you know the Legend of Montana Maggie?

Montana Maggie loved the outdoors and she loved her garden. One day, a bear wandered in her backyard and started to eat apples from her tree. This angered Maggie’s dogs and they started to bark. Bark! Bark! Bark!

This barking made the bear mad. The bear started to attack one of Maggie’s dogs. This made Maggie mad.

She kicked the bear under the chin using a kick she learned from her self-defense training at the YMCA. That got the bear really mad.

The bear swiped at Maggie’s leg and started to move toward her. Maggie scrambled back into the house. She tried to close the door, but the bear stuck its head through the doorway.

Maggie’s life was in jeopardy. She got behind the door and tried to close it with all of her might, but the bear was too strong. Maggie could feel the breath of the angry bear on her face. Out of desperation, she blindly reached with her hand for something - anything - on the kitchen counter to defend herself. She found it.

No, it wasn’t a knife. It was a zucchini she harvested that morning. She grabbed the zuke and bopped it on the bear’s head.

The startled bear turned away and ran in fear.

Now zucchini has my utmost respect. It can nourish, entertain and protect you.

We all can learn from Montana Maggie and grow zucchini in our gardens this year. The soil is warm, and the seeds will sprout rapidly. In less than two months, you can enjoy the goodness of zucchini fruits and blossoms in all kinds of meals and snacks. Lots of websites are dedicated to zucchini cuisine.

The most irritating thing about growing zucchini is harvesting the fruits within the spiny vines. Sow a variety with short or no spines and an open plant habit.

Strong performers in North Dakota include Spineless Beauty, Cashflow, Raven and Desert. These and other F1 hybrids resist diseases and continue producing fruits until frost.

To make harvesting less prickly, give plants ample space. Make sure they are at least 18 inches apart in rows spaced 6 feet apart. Harvest regularly, two or three times a week. Gently twist or cut the fruits off the vine when they are tender, about 6B→ to 8 inches long.

What are you waiting for? You never know when the next bear will strike!

—OUTDOOR LIVING— Tree Pests on the Rise

BY CALANDRIA EDWARDS
Extension Agent, Agriculture and Natural Resources, NDSU Extension, Cankerworm and tent caterpillars defoliate a number of deciduous trees, including ash, elm, linden and boxelder.

The worms are on the move. Every year we have calls about tent caterpillars feeding on trees and how to control their “tents”. Last spring we had numerous calls on damage caused by Cankerworms and unfortunately that will also be the case this year. Now is the ideal time to be controlling those pests, especially since we had a cooler spring. Learn more about two of the wormy pests of trees that are visible now.

Cankerworm populations have been increasing in North Dakota for the past two years, and insect and forestry experts expect another population boom in 2020. Caterpillars of these insects defoliate a number of deciduous tree species, including ash, elm, linden and boxelder. “Caterpillars of cankerworms vary from light green to brownish green to black, with faint white-yellow lines running along the sides,” says Janet Knodel, North Dakota State University Extension entomologist. Pest management is most effective when cankerworms are small, less than 1/2 inch long. When mature, caterpillars reach about 1 inch in length. Now is the time to be looking at trees that were fed on in the past and consider applying some control measures. Confirming the presence of cankerworms before beginning treatments is important because applying treatments at the wrong time or if the insect pest isn’t there would be a waste of time and money, Knodel says.

Several biorational pesticides also are effective at controlling cankerworms. Knodel recommends applying Bacillus thuringiensis var. kurstaki (trade names DiPel, Javelin, Lepinox) when caterpillars are less than 1/2 inch long, or about 10 days after egg hatch, for optimal control of cankerworms. “These bacterial insecticides are very effective against caterpillars and safer for beneficial insects, wildlife and us,” she says. “Caterpillars will feed for about four to six weeks, and defoliation usually isn’t noticed until it’s too severe and too late to apply effective treatments,” Zeleznik says. It’s important to begin scouting early in the summer to catch the caterpillars when they are small. Pay close attention to plants that were fed on last year since they will likely be hosts this spring.

Eastern tent caterpillar (Malacosoma americanum) is the damaging agent on this chokecherry. These insects feed on the leaves during the day, but spend the night back in the communal nests, located in branch crotches. These nests provide a great place to apply control efforts. Some trees attacked by the eastern tent caterpillar include chokecherry, pin cherry, and occasionally other hardwood species. The simplest method of control is to simply remove the nests and destroy them. The bacterial-based pesticide Bacillus thuringiensis var. kurstaki (Btk) works well to control young larvae, while pyrethrins or synthetic insecticides are needed for older larvae. Do not take a blow torch to the nest, as that will also damage the tree.

While these pests are on the move, we can get ahead of and control them before they do too much damage to our trees. Most of the time the damage they cause is minimal, however in years with high numbers of worms they can cause defoliation. Cankerworms have been spotted in Bismarck so it’s likely they are active in McLean County as well.
