ANSWER: DUMBBELL

Lettuce and peas are enjoying this weather under the cover of the high tunnel. High tunnels protect crops from animals and the good old North Dakota Wind.

Suffering from Netflix fatigue, thank you, spring

Thank goodness for long days of sunlight.

The weather is warming, trees leaf out, and the earthworms call me to go outdoors and work in the garden. It's becoming more and more challenging to beat the sun out of bed these days. But, it's a good thing. For one – we get away from the television set.

I am suffering from Netflix, Hulu, Disney Plus, Prime and Yulu fatigue. With the COVID quarantine, it seems like we spent way more time searching for movies than we did watching them. I'm sure you can relate to that.

For years, we longed for the ability to stream movies. Caught in a donut of territorial jurisdiction, we waited a long time for reliable high-speed internet at our small farm north of Mandan.

The wait was costly. Working at home without the internet meant using a phone as a hotspot and several months of $750 phone bills. It was brutal.

My husband was always listening to internet radio or something, and I always asked him to watch the data. Every megabyte over our plan was charged at some outrageous rate. It was stressful.

Finally, the rural broadband initiative broke into our area, and we now have some of the fasted internet available.

At last, we thought, we can stream movies like the rest of the world. No more driving the eight-mile round trip to pick up a Redbox DVD and then back the next day to return it. IF we didn't like the movie, we were stuck. If it didn't work, we were stuck. We thought we died and went to movie heaven when at last, we could stream right from the ROKO box.

WRONG. It's been about three years, and all we seem to do is channel surf for quality programs. There are many series out there, but my spouse doesn't like to keep track of characters as I do. So it isn't easy to find something we can both agree on.

This past week we went back into time and watched a few old movies like "Cool Hand Luke," "A Man Called Horse" and "Little Big Man." I saw Richard Harris in "A Man Called Horse" at the Gackle theatre for 25 cents, well maybe .50 if I was 13 or older. Times have certainly changed, haven't they?

We also watched a 2017 movie about J.D. Salinger's life called "Rebel in the Rye." I was intrigued, never having read that novel in high school. I bit. It was only about $6 on Amazon. I finished it about a week ago and wondered why it was deemed one of the most famous works of American literature? His writing was rapid and nervous and primarily first person. Sorry, folks, I give this one a two out of 10 rating. "To Kill a Mockingbird" and "Animal Farm" are much better reading. And, on that note, "Mr. Jones" is an excellent movie about Stalin's man-made famine and the writer that dared to expose it. I would highly recommend the film and the book.

That brings me to "Little Big Man," an epic movie with Dustin Hoffman playing the main character. It's a great movie about the plight of the Plains Indians during the settlement of the middle of our country. It's also quite humorous.

I did a little research on the movie and found that author Larry McMurtry highly recommends the book. In fact, in the foreword, he mentions wishing he had written it. I'm only in the second chapter, but it has way more details than the movie, and I am looking forward to reading it entirely. I can hear Dustin Hoffman's nasal rendition of the 111-year-old man who narrated the film as I read along.

Finally, our days of darkness and movie streaming are coming to an end as we begin to cut up dead trees on our property, baby transplants and ready the soil for planting. Farmer Market season starts again and long days of being outdoors are in my future. I can't wait. My peas and some lettuce are up in the high tunnel, and it may be too warm in there, but I couldn't wait to plant something.

Oh, and the horseradish I planted last week has shown a little green growth because of this beautiful weather. So, get out from in front of the tv and enjoy these beautiful days.

Just because, let's all pray for rain, or we won't be able to enjoy our campfires.

 When the Burn Ban is lifted, we are asking that all controlled burns be reported to the Sheriff's office, 745-3333 (Mercer) 794-3450 (Oliver), when the fire starts and then another call when the fire has been extinguished, Thank You!

WARNING! A tornado has been sighted.
Seek shelter immediately

SIGN UP FOR ALERTS!

All Mercer & Oliver Residents wanting to receive Weather Alerts, to include Tornado Warnings on Cell phones and/or Landline phones, need to sign up through the www.mercercounty911.com website, in the "Sign Up for Alerts!" Box on the right. If you can't get on the internet you can also call 745-3302, or email creed@nd.gov, and give your name, phone number and address, requesting what notifications you want to be on. Due to Public response, the 911 Coordinator is not able to automatically sign-up all landlines for Weather Warnings like we have done in the past.

SIRENS

- The severe weather warning alarm is set off by sounding the steady tone. If the warning alarm sounds, seek shelter immediately.
- The Sirens will be tested in Mercer County Cities at 1:00 p.m. on the third Thursday of each month, and in the City of Center on the last Friday of each month at 10:00 a.m. by sounding the steady tone.
- The warble or high-low tone is for all other emergencies.

Don't Wait For Disaster To Strike!

Plan ahead – Take responsibility for your safety and that of your family!

- A basement is safest, preferably under a sturdy table or workbench. If you don't have a basement, go to a small interior room - like a closet or bathroom - with no windows. Keep as many walls as possible between you and the outdoors.
- If you do not have a basement, make arrangements with a relative or neighbor, or plan to use a public shelter.
- Get out of vehicles and mobile homes. If no other shelter is available, lie down outside and cover the back of your head and neck with your hands.
- Be alert for possible flooding.

Paulson takes long road to ministry

BY CINDY PETERSON

When Dan Paulson was in grade school, he drew a picture of himself standing by a church.

His vision included leading his own congregation, an imagination that eventually came to fruition. It just took him a while to get there, and he chose a long and bumpy trail.

Fasten your seat belt tightly. The journey is filled with jolts, bounces and thuds.

Paulson wouldn't have it any other way. Taking the hard road has turned his ministry into one for which he's proud. He has helped reach people in his flock by being open and honest about his human side.

"In order to be a pastor to people, people have to know who I am so they'll let me know who they are," said Paulson, who was recently named the interim pastor at Beulah's Zion Lutheran Church. "The story I come from is the story of Christ personified. I was lost and God found me. When people know you're broken and you're healed through faith, they understand you better."

Paulson grew up in the church – and enjoyed attending and participating in all the youth activities. He told his mom he wanted to be a pastor.

Then Paulson left home and attended college in LaCrosse, Wis. He began to party a lot. Then a string of family deaths occurred, including his dad's, and Paulson got angry with God and began to drown his sorrows in alcohol. Lots of alcohol.

His marriage broke up and he became estranged from his two children. He owned and operated a screening construction business.

Paulson eventually remarried and he and his wife Kathy have been together for 36 years. Kathy, a Makoti native, came from a broken marriage as well with a son of her own.

Even though Paulson and Kathy were newlyweds, he continued to drink.

"He told me he was an alcoholic and was going to get sober," Kathy said. "He was a happy drunk, so I thought I could live with that. When it started to affect our finances, I told him one day that if you don't stop you're going to come back one day and I won't be here."

Paulson was sitting in a bar in Southern California, where they were living at the time. He was there during the noon hour when a young man joined him. Paulson's new drinking friend just completed his court-ordered stint at Alcoholics Anonymous because

"He was talking about these guys at AA, and he said he'd like to have that," Paulson said. "I said, 'What are you doing here?' He said, 'I don't want it that bad.' But I did. As he was telling the story of these guys at AA, he was telling the story of me."

Paulson reached in his pocket and counted his beer tabs. He pounded down eight barley pops in that hour and it had little effect on him. He had always been paranoid he would drive drunk and hit a child, a vision that often made him shake. With a big splat, Paulson hit rock bottom.

Paulson knew he had a problem, and he wanted to rid himself of those demons. Paulson walked out of the tavern and into his van. With tears streaming down his face, he cried out to God. He told God that if He would help him, he would go to work for Him. But Paulson didn't have a ministry in mind.

"I was in a church where my wife was active, and I was going there to appease her," Paulson said. "What I meant by that was I could become more involved around the church."

After Paulson cried out to God, he drove drunk to that same club the man in the tavern talked about. The club had an AA meeting every hour on the hour, 24 hours a day, 365 days a week. Paulson said he was going to go home to sober up and he would come back.

Paulson kept his promise to God and God to him. He never missed a meeting that first year and there were times he'd hit three meetings in a day. He's been sober for 32 years and has repaired his relationship with his children.

"I credit AA and God's grace," Paulson said. "I know I was led there. It started at that bar stool, sitting next to that kid. I've talked about this guy for years, and I don't know his name. He did something to save my life. By the grace of God, I'm alive. I know if I did it again, I'd die."

Paulson went to his pastor while he was getting sober and got the support he needed.

"I said I knew I had a problem, and he said, 'That's great, that's great. You know who you are,'" Paulson said. "People who go through addiction like that and come out the other side do get a pretty good picture of who they are."

While Paulson was getting sober, it was put on his heart to go into the ministry. He attended Lutheran Seminary in St. Paul, Minn., and was ordained when he was 50. At 74, he's now retired, but has taken on interim assignments for almost nine years.

"You have to pick up a congregation and get them headed in the right direction," said Paulson, who lives in Lincoln and commutes to Beulah. "It's a good ministry. I don't have to be committed for a really long time."

Paulson thrives on helping the broken find their way, especially addicts. He was active in Stephen Ministries in California, becoming trained to help people who are facing a crisis in their life. Paulson has seen and helped those who have faced the darkest sides of life.

"The 25 years I've been doing this has been about the Good News, understanding our brokenness and how the Good News affects us," Paulson said. "No matter where we are, no matter how good or bad it is, God's love is always there. I don't think I could have done as much with my ministry without this."

Paulson makes sure he announces to each congregation his jaded past to help his flock see his human side and to give him accountability. Like any addict, the temptations can creep up any time.

"If I can announce that I'm broken too, then that relationship starts," Paulson said. "They know me. When I go into a town, I can't go into a bar or liquor store without getting caught. It helps me. I'm still an alcoholic. I'm vulnerable."

"I have this moniker of a pastor," Paulson continued. "People are resistant about opening up. Some are afraid that you're there and will lord over them. I'm a faithful child of God who falls short for the glory of God."

Paulson encourages those with addictions, or any issues, to come to him for help. Zion hosts AA meetings, which was done by Zoom during COVID. At last week's meeting, nobody showed.

"I tell people if you want to drink, that's your business, but if you want to stop I'll help you," Paulson said. "That's my business. I haven't had anybody come forward yet, but I know they are out there. I have no problem with people drinking, but when it takes over your life that's when there's a problem."

Paulson also ministered in the oil patch when he lived near Arnegard and first retired. He worked briefly for an oil company and workers found out he was a pastor through people he had confirmed.

"I'd get calls from guys who would say 'Hey Dan, do you feel like talking about Jesus for a while?'" Paulson said. "I'd get phone calls from guys who were living in their trucks. They hadn't been home or seen their wife and kids for a year and they were working 14-hour days. They were exhausted emotionally, physically and spiritually. Most were people who were displaced and they came to a place where they could pay their mortgage or child support. They had marriage problems, real stuff ... real stuff. I enjoyed that part of the ministry. There aren't many pastors around the oil field."

Paulson can give off the impression that he's drunk. He suffers from neuropathy, which causes numbness in his feet that stemmed from back problems.

"I might act like a drunken sailor, but I'm not," Paulson said. "If I fall down I'm too big to pick up. I'll just crawl and find a way to get up. I tell people, don't try to pick me up."

No matter what life throws at Paulson, he just can't seem to hang up his ministry. After all, there could be somebody out there who might need his guidance in handling the obstacles life throws at them. Paulson has been equipped with the armor of God to handle any situation.
