Fiction from the Dust Bowl

DAKOTA DATEBOOK

Dakota Datebook written by Sarah Walker

September 9, 2021 — During the thirties, intense heat, cold and drought contended with other factors to turn the Midwest into a giant dust bowl. With the erosion of topsoil and the destruction of farmland, many lost their home, and their will to continue. Yet some still chose to stay and push forward, despite the difficulties.

These were the times that led to the publishing of books like John Steinbeck's "The Grapes of Wrath" and "Of Mice and Men;" it led to the careers of people like photographer Dorothea Lange, who photographed migrant workers, documenting the effects of the storms.

Local news reports also helped preserve the memory of these hard times. An article published in the Bowman County Pioneer on this date in 1937 didn't note the weather, but not all that caused trouble was dust. A plague of grasshoppers certainly wasn't much better. Especially giant grasshoppers!

The photo accompanying this article showed a young man who appeared to be holding a grasshopper by its long hind legs, its body stretching to half the lad's height. In his other hand, the young man clutched a shotgun. "Grasshopper shot near Dickinson, North Dakota," is hand-written on the photo.

The article stated: "Many [grasshoppers] have been killed; but it is impossible to get them without a heavy caliber rifle ... A few have been captured alive; but only after great risk to life and limb. It is impossible to completely tame a wild grasshopper."

Continuing the fiction, the article reported that one young man was interested in bronco riding, so he decided to train some of the larger grasshoppers to use as bucking horses in a rodeo at the 1938

Slope County fair.

Placed in a newspaper in the midst of a hard, economically challenged climate, in an all but ruined farmland, this Paul Bunyon-style story would have raised some eyebrows back East.

For those who may have remained worried, the editor included this note of reassurance: "...The picture is not all that it seems. Had the grasshoppers grown as large in North Dakota as this one, the editor would no longer be here to write this stuff."

Theodore Roosevelt Visits DAKOTA DATEBOOK

Dakota Datebook written by Jayme L. Job

September 6, 2021 — It was on this date in 1912 that Theodore Roosevelt visited Fargo by train during his Progressive campaign. Footage from the event shows the President being greeted by massive crowds at the Northern Pacific train depot.

The President spoke from the rear of the train as part of his larger western rail tour. Film also exists that shows the President speaking to groups of Native Americans during the tour on the open prairies of the state.

But September 6 was an even more important date for Roosevelt eleven years earlier in 1901 ... the day President William McKinley was shot at the Pan American Exposition in Buffalo, New York. McKinley later succumbed to his wounds, making then Vice President Roosevelt the youngest man to become president on September

Hunting Big Game Over Bait NDGF

It is unlawful to hunt big game over bait, or place bait to attract big game for the purpose of hunting, in deer units 3A1, 3A2, 3A3, 3A4, 3B1, 3C west of the Missouri River, 3E1, 3E2, 3F1, 3F2, 4A, 4B and 4C.

The North Dakota Game and Fish Department strongly discourages recreational feeding of wildlife within these units. The restriction is in place to help slow the spread of chronic wasting disease, a fatal disease of deer, moose and elk that can cause long-term population declines if left unchecked.

In addition, hunting big game over bait or baiting for any purpose is prohibited on all Game and Fish Department wildlife management areas. Hunting big game over bait is also prohibited on all U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service national wildlife refuges and waterfowl production areas, U.S. Forest Service national grasslands, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers managed lands, and all North Dakota state trust, state park and state forest service lands.

More information on CWD can be found at the Game and Fish website, gf.nd.gov.
