FETZER TAKES THE CROW

Skylar Fetzer has always had a love for animals. One of her favorite things to do is to help dry off and feed newborn calves. “She got her first solo responsibility with a bottle calf when she was four years old,” Skylar’s mom Amanda Fetzer said. “It was a steer that she raised, showed at open shows, and then became her 2,200-pound pasture pet that would only lead for her before he was sold.” But this summer she wanted to try something new.

LEWIS AND CLARK REGIONAL DEVELOPMENT COUNCIL TO HIRE A DIRECTOR TO HELP LOCAL COMMUNITIES

To help expand services to communities like McLean County, the Lewis and Clark Regional Development Council will be adding a position geared to helping find money. During the McLean County commission meeting June 17 held at the courthouse in Washburn, Lewis and Clark Regional Development Council Executive Director Brent Ekstrom told county leaders the council is expanding services by hiring an additional director. Ekstrom explained this position would be available to council members who need help finding grants in funding for upcoming projects. They would not only investigate possible funding opportunities, but help in the writing process, as well.

NDSU EXTENSION AGENT SET TO GO TO TRAINING IN MICHIGAN

In an effort to gain more training, the Mercer County North Dakota State University extension agent will be attending a national conference in Michigan later this year. During her report to the Mercer County Commission on June 18 in Stanton, NDSU Family and Community Wellness Agent Metta Pfliger asked commissioners if she could attend the National Extension Association of Family and Consumer Sciences. Pfliger explained the conference is set to take place in October and would cost about $2,000. However, NDSU will be paying for $1,250 of the cost, leaving the rest to be paid for by the county, which Pfliger said she has in her budget to pay.
